

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

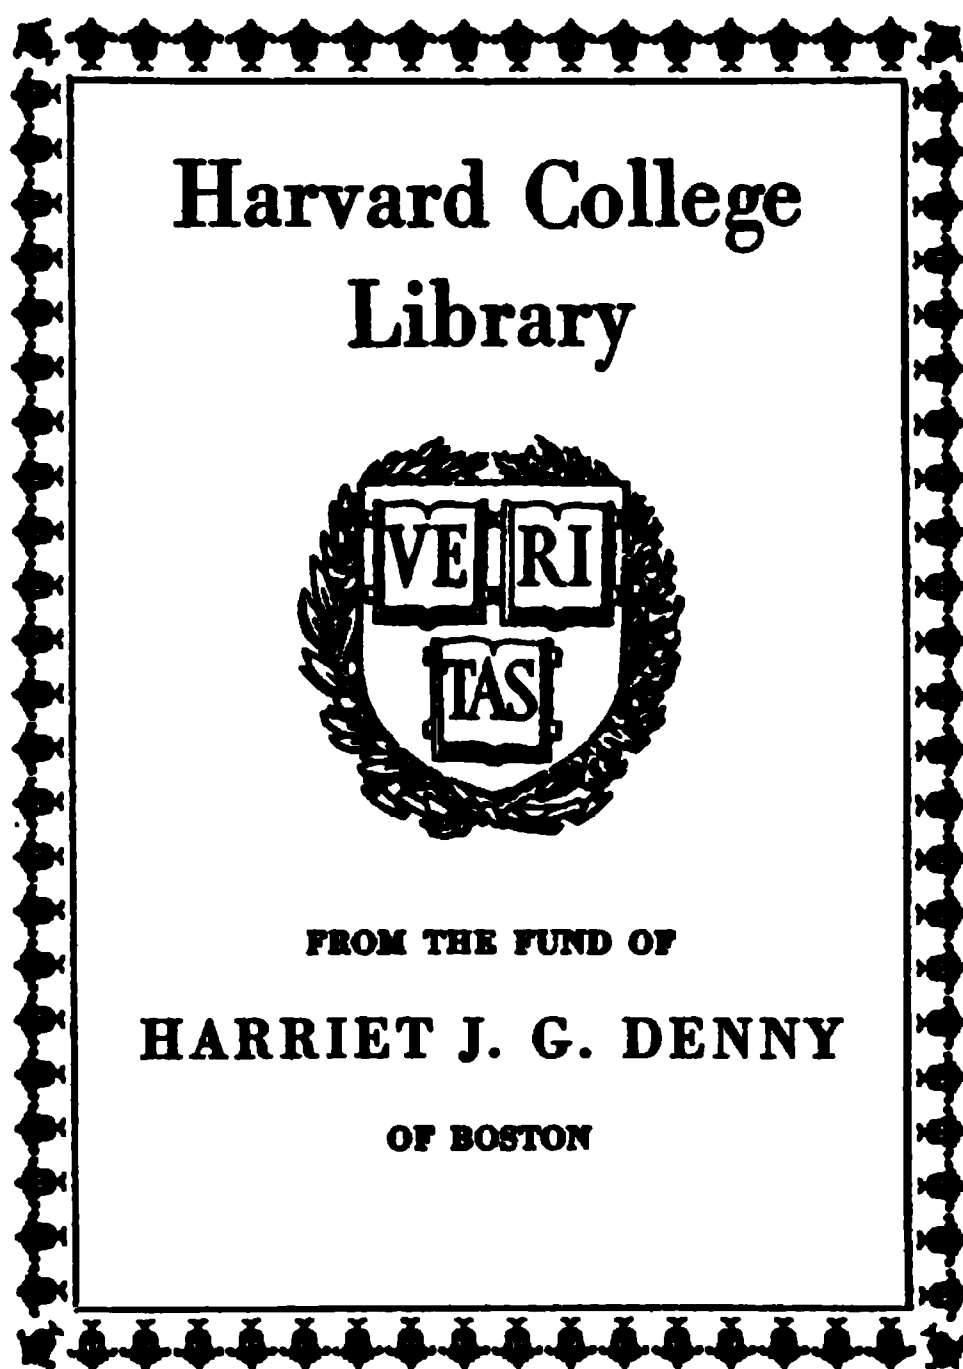

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

NOTES IN SEASON.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. announce that they have added to their popular twenty-five-cent series Mrs. Southworth's "The Missing Bride," Zola's "Mysteries of the Court of Louis Napoleon," and Mrs. Southworth's "Miriam, the Avenger, or, the bride of an hour."

THE BELFORD CO. have in preparation "A New Encyclopædia of American Biography," intended to not merely cover the ground usually occupied by such publications, but to make special mention of the men and women who are doing the work and forming the thought of our own time. Mr. James R. Gilmore ("Edmund Kirke") is the editor.

GEBBIE & Co., Philadelphia, have just published a delightful book on the drama, entitled "Players and Playwrights I Have Known: a record of the English stage from 1840 to 1880, by John Coleman." Commencing with Macready it gives a bright and chatty account of the lives of the actors, both before and behind the scenes, whose names are familiar to the present generation, and is full of anecdote of the plays and players of the time. The book is in two handsome octavo volumes illustrated with fifty engravings. They have also ready a new book by B. B. Comegys entitled "Advice to Young Men and Boys." It seems to be written in a thoroughly practical manner, and not only advises how to keep right, but also gives advice when a "slip" is made by the boys, that they may redeem themselves. The volume is handsomely produced and is illustrated with six fine photo-gravures.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish immediately, "Around and About South America," by Frank Vincent, who relates his experiences of twenty months of quest and query, made useful with maps and plans and fifty-four full-page illustrations; "An Epitome of Herbert Spencer's Synthetic Philosophy," by F. Howard Collins, with preface by Herbert Spencer; "James G. Birney and His Times," the genesis of the Republican party, with some account of Abolition movements in the South before 1828; and "The Religion of the Semites," in which the fundamental institutions are treated by Prof. Robertson Smith. To the Town and Country Library will be added "Blind Love," a posthumous novel by Wilkie Collins, with preface by Walter Besant; to the Gainsborough Series, "Julius Courtney, or, master of his fate," by J. MacLaren Cobban, a reprint from Blackwood's Magazine; and the International Scientific Series will receive a new volume on "The Physiology of Bodily Exercise," by Fernand Lagrange. "Falling in Love," essays by Grant Allen, and "The Town Dweller," by the late J. Milner Fothergill, also promise to be of unusual interest.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MRS. ALEXANDER, the author of "The Wooing O't," has written a new novel entitled "A Woman's Heart."

THOMAS HARDY has written a new novel entitled "The Melancholy Hussar." The scenes are set in the England of George III.

MR. JUSTIN WINSOR is engaged upon a biographical and historical work to be entitled "Christopher Columbus: an examination of the historical and geographical conditions under which the Western Continent was disclosed to Europe, with an inquiry into the personal history of Cristoval Colon." Houghton, Mifflin & Co. will be the publishers.

DR. J. E. OLIVER, of Boston, well known as a careful and intelligent student of American history, has edited, says the Boston Transcript, "the diary of William Pynchon, of Salem, and his book will be published at an early day. This diary was written during the middle and latter years of the eighteenth century, and gives an accurate picture of Salem's social and political life in that interesting period. It will be issued by the Riverside Press."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Adams, W. H. Davenport. The maid of Orleans, and the great war of the English in France. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1889. 10+227 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

A popularly written biography in which the best authorities have been consulted.

Bible. New Testament. Interlinear Greek-English Gospel of Luke; with emphatic translation, copious notes, and references. Printed from the plates of the Emphatic Diaglot by B. Wilson. Chic., Albert & Scott, [1889.] c. '64. no paging, S. cl., 50 c.; pap., 25 c.

Black, W. Prince Fortunatus: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1889. 2+257 p. il. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., no. 664.) pap., 50 c.

The career of a handsome young barytone, who takes the chief part in "The squire's daughter," an opera that was having a long run in London, is very interestingly set forth in "Prince Fortunatus." The young hero is so named, as fortune seems to smile on him throughout; but reverses come to him, and an unfortunate love affair and a heavy cold show him that he is like other mortals. The amateur literary and artistic efforts of the London fashionables are cleverly shown up.

Caine, Hall. The bondman: a new saga. N. Y., Frank F. Lovell & Co., [1889.] c. 2+357 p. S. (Lovell's international ser., no. 51.) pap., 30 c.

A tale of Iceland and the Isle of Man at the beginning of this century. By the author of "The Deemster."

Campbell, Rev. W. M. Foot-prints of Christ. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1889. c. 375 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Beginning with the boyhood of Jesus, his characteristics, labors, lessons, methods, and the striking scenes that made up his busy life, are so depicted as to awaken fresh interest. The book contains sixty chapters, treating as many distinct topics. We select the following as samples: Christ dealing with an inquirer; Honoring God's word; Behavior in a panic; Ignoring social distinction; Absence of envy; Jesus as reprover; Steadiness amid popularity; Moral courage; Silence of Jesus; Self-revelation; Not a stickler; Answering hypocritical questions; Attention to children; Treatment of idle curiosity; Affected by human sympathy; Submission to the divine will.

Dana, Ja. D. Biographical memoir of Prof. Arnold Guyot. From the Smithsonian Report for 1886-'87. Wash., D. C., Smithsonian Institution, 1889. 693-722 p. O. (Miscellaneous coll., no. 707.) pap.

Denominational schools: a discussion at the National Assoc., July, 1889, with papers, by Cardinal Gibbons, Bishop Kane, Edwin D. Mead, and Hon. J. Jay. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1889. 71 p. O. (Papers on school issues of the day, no. 1.) pap., 25 c.

Dobrée, Louisa Emily. Stories of the seven sacraments. Balt., J. Murphy & Co., 1890. 2+168 p. D. cl., net, 40 c.

Seven stories for Catholic children, viz.: Blanche's baptism; The mark that was never rubbed out; Brian Daly; Ted's medal; Sylvia's lesson; The two wishes; Regained.

Bost., Ja. H. West, 196 Summer St., 1889. 21 p. D. (Modern science essayist, no. 17.) pap., 10 c.

Ebers, G. Joshua: a biblical picture. Authorized ed. N. Y., J. W. Lovell Co., 1889. 267 p. D. (Lovell's ser. of foreign literature, ed. by Edmund Gosse, no. 1.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

"The present series," the editor announces, "is intended to be a guide to the inner geography of Europe." The books of which it will be made up will be selected because they present with freshness and variety the different aspects of continental feeling, and because they are both amusing and wholesome. This is a realistic story of the Exodus, in which the scenery through which it moves is minutely described. The author's Egyptian studies and researches throw new light on the Biblical narrative.

Gill, Theodore. An account of the progress in zoölogy in the year 1886. From the Smithsonian Report for 1886-87. Wash., D. C., Smithsonian Institution, 1889. 477-522 p. O. (Miscellaneous coll., no. 704.) pap.

Gray, T. J. Methods of instruction and courses of study in Normal schools. Read before the Normal Department of the National Educational Assoc., July, 1889. Syracuse, N. Y. C. W. Bardeen, 1889. 19 p. O. (Papers on school issues of the day, no. 4.) pap., 15 c.

Harris, W. T. Art education, the true industrial education: a cultivation of æsthetic taste of universal utility. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1889. 9 p. O. (Papers on school issues of the day, no. 3.) pap., 15 c.

Harris, W. T. The education value of manual training: report of the Committee on Pedagogics of the National Council of Education; presented at the meeting in July, 1889; with discussions. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1889. 14 p. O. (Papers on school issues of the day, no. 2.) pap., 15 c.

Hill, Joshua. Thought and thrift: subjects in every letter of the alphabet for all who labor and need rest. Cin., O., Robert Clarke & Co., 1889. c. 4-358 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The titles of a few are: Agriculture; Architecture and building; Balance of trade and public credit; Capital and labor; Free trade; Fashionable follies; Greed and gluttony; Indolence is disease; Land syndicates; Patents and patent laws; Taxes; Trusts; Voting systems; Wealth, etc.

Hinsdale, B. A. Pedagogical chairs in colleges and universities: a paper read before the Normal Department, National Educational Assoc., July, 1889. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1889. 11 p. O. (Papers on school issues of the day, no. 5.) pap., 15 c.

Jones, Emma Garrison. Lady Ryhope's lover. N. Y., Street & Smith, 1889. 307 p. D. (The select ser., no. 32.) pap., 25 c.

Justice and jurisprudence: an inquiry concerning the constitutional limitations of the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth amendments.

*In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1889. c. 40+ 578 p. O. cl., $3.

The J. B. Lippincott Co. publishes this work for "The Brotherhood of Liberty," an order instituted for the advancement of the African race in America. The book is a bold and original treatment of the race question, and is wholly free from partisanship or sectionalism. An appendix contains a full statement of all legislation, national and state, and a succinct digest with table of every case, federal and state, touching remotely or proximately the race question or civil rights.

McCleery, J. F. B. The McCleery method of billiard playing. San Francisco, Payot, Upham & Co., 1890 [1889.] c. 3-139 p. il. S. pap., $1. (Corr. price.)

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

W. HOEPLI, 37 Corso Vittoria Emanuele, Milan, has published a handsomely printed Catalogo della Incunaboli, Manoscritti, Documenti, Storici, etc. (No. 59, 67 p., 532 titles, 12°.)

J. W. JARVIS & SON, 28 King William St., Strand, London, England, have published for the Index Society the second part of the Index to the Obituary and Biographical Notices in the Gentleman's Magazine, 1731-1780. The whole of the Index is the work of Mr. R. Henry Farrar, but only the first few sheets of the present part have been seen through the press by him, that work having been in charge of Mr. Henry B. Wheatley, we believe. This part carries the Index to Missinden. It will be completed in the third part, which is promised shortly. (176 p. sm. 4°, pap., 10s. 6d.)

PATRIOTISM WITH A VENGEANCE.—British Author—But I should have my royalty on your reprint of my books. Literary Pirate—Sir, in the American Republic of letters we acknowledge no royalty.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 4, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

COPYRIGHT IN THE NEW YEAR.

A HAPPY New Year to the trade for 1890! which we trust will open a decade of prosperity such as the trade has not seen for a considerable period. The most important factor toward this prosperity should be the passage of the international copyright measure which we confidently expect to see a part of the law of the United States before the close of the present Congress. The text of the bill now pending is given in full elsewhere. A careful comparison of it with the Chace-Breckinridge bill of last year will show that it is essentially the same bill, although different in form. The changes in arrangement and phraseology are those considered necessary, after the careful consideration permissible since the last session of Congress, to bring the bill more fully into harmony with the existing domestic law and the working arrangements of the Copyright Office, and the only changes in the matter have been in the direction of carrying out more fully the agreed purposes of the original bill. The representatives of the Typographical Union in the Joint Committee, for instance, made one or two suggestions which the other interests agreed were in line with the general purposes of the bill, and these were in consequence unanimously accepted. It is by this creditable desire to keep good faith in the compromise which this bill embodies that the joint conference of the Authors' Copyright League, the Publishers' Copyright League, the Typothetæ, and the Typographical Union, has been able to put before Congress and the people a measure on which all these elements are absolutely united. Like all compromise bills, the measure does not reflect the view of any one interest, and is to that extent unsatisfactory to each; this being admitted, however, the bill is satisfactory to all, and if it becomes a law will do much to put the United States on the plane of other civilized nations in regard to literary property.

The most unfortunate thing that could happen to this bill is that it should become the football in Congress of opposing parties or opposing economic views. Mr. Clemens made the unfortunate remark that he had rather lost interest in the measure because there was no hope of getting a bill passed by a Republican Congress. This was absolutely unjust. The bill has passed a Republican Senate and it received in the last Democratic House the adhesion of a great body of Republicans, while, on the other hand, many Democrats were slow to give their adhesion because of the restrictive features of the bill. But the question is not one of party bearing, neither is it one of protection or free trade. The acknowledgment of property rights is contrary neither to the protection nor the free trade doctrine, and the restrictive features are so incidental that even the most ardent opponents of the restrictive policy ought to be willing to overlook these features because the body of the bill makes so great a stride toward international justice and peace and good-will among nations. There is every reason to believe that on this question Republicans and Democrats, Protectionists and Free Traders, will put aside their political prejudices, as they ought. The bill will have a hearing before the Senate Committee, January 9, and a hearing before the House Committee will probably follow. We trust that early in the year we may be able to announce definitely the passage of the International Copyright Bill.

WE are already at work on the "Annual Catalogue" and on our "Annual Summary Number," and we ask our publishing friends the moment they can free themselves from the stock-taking and book-balancing of the new year, to make up their Annual Summary lists for 1889. The value of these annual lists to the trade consists largely in their promptness, and we hope this year to set a good precedent for future years in this direction.

THE death of Robert Carter takes from the roll of the veterans of the publishing trade a good man, who goes from us in the fulness of years, after a life rich in good works and the fruit of them, leaving to those who come after him the richest legacy that can be left—a good name and a good life.

MR. CARTER'S prompt action in meeting piratical competition, referred to elsewhere in this issue, deserves more than passing mention. Had the publishing fraternity met the pirates in the same manner nineteen years ago the book trade might be in better shape than it is to-day. Had, for instance, some of the houses reduced the prices of their good editions of standard fiction to a "bottom price," instead of imitating their Lakeside rivals, it would have headed these off and made "cheap and nasty" reprinting unprofitable.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

TEXT OF THE PRESENT BILL.

THE following is the text of the bill introduced in the Senate on Dec. 4 by Senator O. H. Platt. Its title is "A bill to amend Title 60, Chapter 3, of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relating to Copyrights":

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled: That in Section 4952 of the Revised Statutes, the words 'any citizen of the United States or resident therein, who shall be' shall be stricken out. The words 'and authors may reserve the right to dramatize or to translate their own works,' in the same section, shall be stricken out, and in lieu thereof shall be inserted the words 'and authors or their assigns shall have the exclusive right to dramatize and translate any of their works for which copyright shall have been obtained under the laws of the United States.' That in Sec. 4954 the words 'and a citizen of the United States or resident therein' shall be stricken out. That in Sec. 4963 the words 'chart, musical composition' shall read 'chart, dramatic or musical composition.' That in Secs. 4964 and 4965 the words 'first publish or import' shall read 'first publish, dramatize, translate, or import,' and the words 'so printed, published, or imported,' shall read 'so printed, published, dramatized, translated, or imported.' That in Sec. 4964 after the words 'every person who, after the recording of the title of any book,' shall be inserted the words 'and the depositing of two copies of such book as required by section two of this act.' That in Sec. 4967 the words 'if such author or proprietor is a citizen of the United States or resident therein' shall be stricken out. That Sec. 4971 be, and it is hereby, repealed.

"SEC. 2. That Sec. 4956 of the Revised Statutes of the United States be, and the same is hereby, amended so that it shall read as follows: 'Sec. 4956. No person shall be entitled to a copyright unless he shall, on or before the day of publication in this or any foreign country, deliver at the office of the Librarian of Congress, or deposit in the mail within the United States, addressed to the Librarian of Congress at Washington, District of Columbia, a printed copy of the title of the book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, cut, print, photograph, or chromo, or a description of the painting, drawing, statue, statuary, or a model or design for a work of the fine arts, for which he desires a copyright, nor unless he shall also, not later than the day of publication thereof in this or any foreign country, deliver at the office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, District of Columbia, or deposit in the mail within the United States, addressed to the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, District of Columbia, two copies of such copyright book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, chromo, cut, print, or photograph, or in case of a painting, drawing, statue, statuary, model or design for a work of the fine arts, a photograph of the same: Provided, That in the case of a book the two copies of the same required to be delivered or deposited as above shall be printed from type set within the limits of the United States, or from plates made therefrom. During the existence of such copyright, the importation into the United States of any book so copyrighted, or any edition or editions thereof, or any plates of the same not made from type set within the limits of the United States, shall be, and it is hereby, prohibited, except in the cases specified in Sec. 2505 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, and except in the case of persons purchasing for use and not for sale, who import not more than two copies of such book at any one time, in each of which cases the written consent of the proprietor of the copyright, signed in the presence of two witnesses, shall be furnished with each importation: And provided, That any publisher of any newspaper or magazine may without such consent import for his own use but not for sale not more than two copies of any newspaper or magazine published in a foreign country. Provided, nevertheless, That in the case of books in foreign languages, of which only translations in English are copyrighted, the prohibition of importation shall apply only to the translations of the same, and the importation of the books in the original language shall be permitted.'

"SEC. 3. That at the end of Sec. 4958 the following clause be inserted: 'Provided, That the charge for recording the title or description of any article entered for copyright, the production of a person not a citizen or resident of the United States, shall be one dollar, to be paid as above into the Treasury of the United States, to defray the expenses of lists of copyrighted articles as hereinafter provided for.' And it is hereby made the duty of the Librarian of Congress to furnish to the Secretary of the Treasury copies of the entries of titles of all books and other articles, wherein the copyright has been completed by the deposit of two copies of such book printed from type set within the limits of the United States, in accordance with the provisions of Sec. 2 of this act, and by the deposit of two copies of such other article made or produced in the United States; for which service he shall be authorized to employ an additional clerk, at a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum. And the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby directed to prepare and print, at intervals of not more than a week, catalogues of such title-entries for distribution to the collectors of customs of the United States and to the postmasters of all post-offices receiving foreign mails; and such weekly lists, as they are issued, shall be furnished to all parties desiring them, at a sum not exceeding five dollars per annum; and the Secretary and the Postmaster-General are hereby empowered and required to make and enforce such rules and regulations as shall prevent the importation into the United States, except upon the conditions above specified, of all articles copyrighted under this act during the term of the copyright.'

"SEC. 4. That in Sec. 4959 the words 'within ten days after its publication, two complete printed copies thereof, of the best edition issued, or description or photograph of such article as hereinbefore required, and 'shall be stricken out. And after the words 'a copy of every subsequent edition wherein any substantial changes shall be made,' shall be inserted these words 'Provided, however, that the alterations, revisions, and additions made to books by foreign authors, heretofore published, of which new editions shall appear subsequently to the taking effect of this act, shall be held and deemed capable of being copyrighted as above provided for in section two of this act, unless they form a part of a series in course of publication at the time this act shall take effect.'

"SEC. 5. That for the purposes of this act each volume of a book in two or more volumes, when such volumes are published separately, and the first one shall not have been issued before this act shall take effect, and each number of a periodical shall be considered an independent publication, subject to the form of copyrighting as above.

SEC. 6. That this act shall go into effect on the first day of July, Anno Domini 1890.

The same bill will be introduced into the House by Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge, on the first available Monday—Jan. 6, it is expected.

Arrangements are being made for an adequate representation of authors, publishers, printers, compositors, etc., at the Senate hearing before the Patent Committee, Jan. 9, and it is hoped that a House hearing will be arranged for by the Judiciary Committee during the same week.

MEETING OF THE INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT ASSOCIATION, BOSTON.

THE annual meeting of the International Copyright Association was held in Boston on December 30, General Francis A. Walker presiding. The Secretary reported that after several conferences the Joint Conference Committee of Copyright Leagues and Associations had decided to urge upon Congress the passage of the Chace-Breckinridge bill with some verbal changes. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: President, General Francis A. Walker; Vice-Presidents, John Lowell, Professor W. W. Goodwin, Henry O. Houghton; Treasurer, Charles C. Soule; Secretary, Dana Estes; Assistant Secretary, Francis H. Little; Directors, Alexander H. Prince, Professor N. S. Shaler, E. H. Clement, John D. Long, Benjamin H. Ticknor, Heman W. Chaplin, and Samuel E. Elder.

MR. HENRY CAREY BAIRD'S SCHEME TO CIRCUMVENT THE BRITISH PUBLIC LIBRARIES.

WE reprint from the London Publishers' Circular for December 16, 1889, the following characteristic letter from our friend Mr. Henry Carey Baird to Messrs. Sampson Low, Marston, Searle & Rivington, Limited:

GENTLEMEN: Having been considerably in arrears in reading up the Publishers' Circular for some time past, I never until yesterday came across, in the April 1, 1889, number, your correspondence with Messrs. Eccles, Robertson Smith, & Nicholson, in regard to the claims of the Universities, etc., of copies of all books published in the United States with English imprints whether alone or associated with those of the American publishers.

Now I propose in the future to circumvent these gentlemen, so far as our books are concerned—books which are not published in the United Kingdom, but in the United States. We shall shortly offer you the market for a new and greatly enlarged edition of Richards' "Aluminium," in 8vo, as well as other important books. On these books we shall not put your imprint, but instead of a bastard title we shall place on that page a notice as follows:

"Messrs. Sampson Low, Marston, Searle & Rivington, Limited, are our authorized agents for the sale of this volume in the United Kingdom, and to them all orders should be addressed.—HENRY CAREY BAIRD & Co., Publishers, Philadelphia, U. S. A."

This must block the little game of these gentlemen, for Mr. Nicholson says: "The law in effect seems to say to the seller of imported books, 'You may import and sell as freely as you like, but if you also put yourselves, as it were, in the place of publishers, you come under my provisions relating to publishers.' I think such a law is capable of being defended, but in any case there is the law, and if you are resolved on putting your own imprint, is it quite fair to suggest that we are unscrupulous?"

Now, for myself, I think they are unscrupulous, for they claim the books as much because they cannot "do without them" and of their "traditions and the expectations" formed of them, that they should seek to make themselves "as nearly as possible complete in books published in this country" and all others over which they can stretch the law. If they "did not claim these books" their "successors would some day or other have to pick them up second-hand at much trouble and cost." And they do not consider themselves "justified in putting them (their successors) to that trouble and cost." And so they are going to get them for nothing. They shall not have a single volume more of the publications of Henry Carey Baird & Co. issued after those now in the binder's hands.

Were any such claim set up in this country by the Librarian of Congress under any similar law, as to imported English books with American imprints, we should simply laugh him to scorn and defy him, and allow him to proceed to law and test the legitimacy of his claim. But in this country justice is easily obtained, and at small expense, while with you it is far otherwise. You are quite at liberty to print this letter in whole or in part in the Publishers' Circular, to the end that the libraries may learn that if they want our books they may get them by buying them and not for nothing, or by claiming them to be English publications when they know full well that they are not.

I am, very truly yours,

HENRY CAREY BAIRD.

PHILADELPHIA, November 18, 1889.

BOOKS AT A DRY-GOODS STORE.—The person who goes into the dry-goods stores to buy books doesn't find the same learned clerks that he does in a genuine bookstore. "Have you Arnold's poems?" asked a thin-chested young man in —'s yesterday.

"Arnold's poems?" answered the fair girl. "Let's see, Mr. Snipley, have we Benedict Arnold's poems?"

SUBSCRIPTION-BOOK PUBLISHERS' METHODS CRITICISED.

From Sidney S. Rider's "Book Notes."

THE writer of Book Notes acknowledges receipt of a letter from Charles L. Webster & Co., publishers (3 East 14th St., New York City) of the "Personal Memoirs of U. S. Grant," and of "Mark Twain's Works." The purport of the letter is, that "A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court," published by the said company, is now for sale by subscription, and that if said writer, as a bookseller, should "attempt to buy and sell" said book, he will be liable under the decisions of certain U. S. Courts, in an action brought by said publishers, and that this right will be protected; and the said publishers include in their letter, extracts from the decisions cited. Now the said writer of Book Notes, while not versed in the intricacies of the law, begs to inform Messrs. Webster & Co. that he is quite familiar with the decisions aforesaid. There is no new ground taken in them. The basis of every trade is good faith; where good faith is lacking, there is fraud, and where there is fraud in either a buyer or a seller, there is no title. Unless it be bank-notes or bonds, no one can by purchase obtain a good title to stolen property. A "Connecticut Yankee" is possessed of no special qualities or attributes different from other forms of personal property, and no man can be punished for "attempting to buy and sell it." But the writer of these Book Notes has a word further to say to Messrs. Charles L. Webster & Co. It is this: that no court in these United States would protect it (the said firm) in their allowing the public to be so treated, as it was treated, and is now being treated, by the sale of "General Grant's Personal History," published by the said firm. And a word further: If this new book by Mr. Mark Twain is not soon offered to the general trade, at discounts varying from forty to fifty per cent. from the subscription price, it will be the first book by this author which has not been so offered and sold. This firm obtained large numbers of subscriptions for General Grant's book at $7.00 per copy; within a very short time after its publication, it was everywhere offered to booksellers, and bought and sold by them, at about $4.50. This could not have been done, at least so the letter informs me, excepting with the connivance of the said publishers, for they inform me that every copy of their publications is so marked in binding as to be capable of identification; and the sale of the book at this price, or something approximating to it, is still continued, and the same thing is true with all of the publications of Mr. Mark Twain.

I beg to assure Messrs. Webster that, in spite of the decisions, I cannot be punished for attempting to buy anything, nor after I have bought and paid for it, can I be punished for selling it. If by the rascality of some of their agents I should be entrapped, the firm itself would be held. This very book was offered to me for sale by a person purporting to be their agent. Had I in good faith bought it, this firm has the impudence to inform me that I should have become liable to them, both in losing the book and in damages, and moreover should have purchased a piece of property which I could not have safely offered for sale. However, that may be the law in the circuit courts of other States; it is not law here in Rhode Island.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS.—FIFTH ANNUAL DINNER.

ON the evening of December 30, about sixty members and friends of the B. C. T. sat down in the charming and handsomely decorated dining-room of the Hotel Marlborough, at the corner of 36th St. and Broadway, to enjoy the fifth annual dinner given by that Association. The various committees had done all to make the entertainment a success, and it was an admirable one. We have seldom attended a more sociable and at the same time more dignified gathering than this. Throughout the evening good fellowship prevailed and every one present seemed intent upon promoting good feeling in his neighbor.

The menu was in the shape of a russia leather memorandum-book, the strap of which bore the member's or guest's name. On the front of each was a hand-painted figure of a traveller in full rig or in undress, in various attitudes of motion or rest. The first page of the menu contained the announcement of the entertainment set off with the monogram of the society in colors. The second page contained the list of the new officers—J. F. Hitchcock, President; J. A. McQuillan, Vice-President; John Hovendon, Secretary; Samuel Eckstein, Treasurer; and Samuel Garre and John L. Peoble, Trustees. This page was headed with the motto:

"'Tis pleasant, sure, to see one's name in print:
A book's a book, although there's nothing in't."
BYRON.

The third page contained the names of the various committees, as follows: Committee of Arrangements, Dwight Terry, Samuel Gabriel, A. M. Wilson, and Samuel Eckstein. Reception Committee, Samuel Garre, John L. Peoble, W. B. Walker, F. W. Bailey, and Louis Rohde. Souvenir Committee, C. S. Plummer and J. A. McQuillan. The list of dishes was introduced with the sentiment:

"A good digestion to you all, and once more and concluded by a vignette representing a baggage-smasher in the act of hurling one of Gilmore's best with the legend, "We'll stand the racket." The last five pages were given up to autographs, which proved a very happy notion.
I shower a welcome on you: Welcome, all!"

The association struck upon the good idea of making the gathering a purely family affair—a celebration, in fact, of its wooden wedding—and so had not provided stock professional orators to bore the members present with their platitudes and perfunctory speeches. After coffee was served, the President, Mr. Hitchcock, delivered a happy speech, in which he gave some statistics pointing out the importance of the travelling man to the community, etc., and called upon the Souvenir Committee to fulfil its duties. Mr. Plummer, in behalf of the committee, presented to the retiring President, W. J. Kelly, an emblem consisting of a miniature ivory gavel suspended from an orange watered-silk ribbon. Mr. Kelly made a fitting reply and responded to a call for "that same old song"—"Vive la Compagnie." Messrs. C. E. Hopkins, C. S. Plummer, and Mr. Loughhead, of Philadelphia, then responded to calls for a short story, and were followed by Col.

Ammon, who dwelt at some length on the advantages to be derived from South American trade apropos of the Pan-American Commission visit to this country. Prof. Levison then favored the company with a couple of songs sung in a masterly manner. Mr. Van Culin, who had arrived from a tour around the world, on the very morning of the dinner—his notification to the Secretary that he would be present, if possible, at the dinner was dated Singapore—gave an account of his experiences in foreign lands and waved his little American flag. Wm. B. Walker then delivered a speech in which he deplored the defection of a number of the members of the Association, and concluded with the declaration that as long as one other member could be found he would sit down with him once a year and celebrate the occasion. Among others called upon to speak and who responded were Messrs. Jonas Langfield, F. Salt, Urquehardt, Sam'l Eckstein, J. Hovendon, Watkins, Lansing, Chas. A. Blanchard, the proprietor of the Hotel Marlborough, and A. Growoll. The Association voted to second the efforts of the American Ticket Brokers' Association to reduce passenger fares throughout the country.

After a touching recital of an allegory on Friendship, by Mr. C. S. Plummer, the President declared the meeting adjourned.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

MR. M. W. HAZELTINE denies the statement that he has been engaged by Bonner Brothers to edit the New York Ledger. He says he expects to write for the Ledger, but has nothing to do with the management, Mr. Oliver Dyer remaining, as he has long been, the editor of the paper.

Illustrated American is to be the title of a new illustrated weekly journal to rank with the Paris Illustré, Figaro, and similar foreign art journals. Mr. Walsh, formerly editor of Lippincott's, will have charge of the literary portion and the Baron de Grimm is to look out for the artistic management. The first number will be published in a month or so.

Our Trade, a handsomely printed quarto, has just made its appearance in Chicago. It is to appear monthly, and will be devoted to the news of the paper, stationery, book, fancy goods, and kindred trades. It will be edited by W. A. Ballard, and published by Our Trade Publishing Co., of which C. E. Pratt is the business manager. It starts out with an enterprising number, and we wish it all success!

THE Daily Register and the Law Journal have consolidated, and will hereafter be issued by the New York Law Publishing Company. The publication of the Register will be discontinued at the expiration of existing advertising and subscription contracts, but both papers will henceforth be issued from the Register office, 303 Broadway, New York. Gen. Anson G. McCook, of the Register, is the head of the new company.

THE Magazine of American History opens the new year and its twenty-third volume with a bright and readable January number. This periodical seems to be on the flood-tide of the newly awakened popular interest in everything that relates to the heroic past. An admirable portrait of William Cullen Bryant forms the frontispiece, and an animated and welcome paper by the clever editor treats of his place in American history.

OBITUARY.

ROBERT CARTER.

ROBERT CARTER, the senior partner and the founder of the publishing firm of Robert Carter & Brothers, of 530 Broadway, New York, died at his residence, 47 W. Fifty-third Street, December 28, 1889, aged eighty-two years. He had been ailing more or less for nine months—indeed, he had never left his house for the past seven months. About ten days before his death he was confined to his bed. He was buried on the 31st from the Scotch Presbyterian Church in W. Fourteenth Street, of which he had been an elder for fifty years.

Robert Carter was born in Earlestone (or Ercildoune), in the vicinity of Abbotsford, Scotland, November 21, 1807. As a boy he evinced a remarkable fondness for study and a great desire to obtain an education. Many a night after the family had retired to sleep he pursued his studies by the light of the coal fire in the family sitting-room. One day when he was very small he was standing in a crowd listening to an auctioneer who was disposing of the household goods of a neighbor. The auctioneer put up a copy of Josephus' complete works in one thick folio, but minus one of the boards of the cover. "How much am I offered for this?" said the auctioneer. There was a pause, no one bidding, the boy looked with wistful eyes at the book, then contemplated doubtfully the fourpence, which was all the money he possessed. At last he mustered up courage to bid "fourpence" in a feeble voice. The auctioneer immediately handed it to him, saying: "You shall have it, for you are the smallest customer I have had to-day." The book was about as much as the boy could carry, but the enjoyment he derived from it was very great, and doubtless it influenced in a large degree his future career.

When only fifteen years of age he opened a night-school for young men in one of the rooms of his father's cottage. Most of the scholars were older and larger than he was. At the same time he was carefully studying Latin and Greek, assisted by a cousin who had been at college. When he was twenty he heard that Mr. Sloane, of Peebles, wanted an assistant in his grammar school, and he determined to apply for the situation. The distance was twenty-five miles. Rising early he started on foot, reading as he walked. He arrived at Peebles at noon and immediately made his application. Mr. Sloane received him politely, but said at once that he was too young. "My boys," he said, "are sprigs of nobility and hard to manage; the last assistant left because he could not keep order." But the lad was not to be put off this way. He begged hard for a trial, and asked to be examined as to his literary qualifications. On the latter point Mr. Sloane was soon satisfied, but still shook his head over the candidate's youthful appearance. The lad, however, persisted, and conquered. He was told he could come the next week and make a trial. With a glad heart he turned his face toward home. Thus he secured a situation, though to get it he walked in going and coming fifty miles in one day! The young teacher was wonderfully successful, and Mr. Sloane frankly acknowledged that his school had never been so orderly before. He next entered the University of Edinburgh, where he made rapid progress, becoming a special favorite of the Latin Professor, the gifted Prof. Pillaus.

In 1831 he came to New York, landing on May 16 of that year. He started life here as a teacher in the High School, Crosby St., New York, and then opened a school of his own at the corner of Broadway and Canal Street. The school was patronized by many of the sons of the prominent business men of the city, and from a financial standpoint was a very successful venture. Schuyler Colfax was among the pupils who afterwards became famous.

In 1834 Mr. Carter exchanged the ferule for the book business. He purchased the stock of a bookseller who had become insolvent, rented a store at the corner of Canal and Laurens Streets (now South Fifth Avenue), and hung out his sign, "Robert Carter, Bookseller." His business grew, and he shortly moved to a larger store, at Canal and Mercer Streets. Here he began publishing theological and religious books. His first publication was "Symington on the Atonement and Intercession of Jesus Christ." In 1842 he brought out D'Aubigné's "History of the Reformation," which at once became popular and brought the publisher into prominence. A pirate in Philadelphia pounced on the book and published a cheap edition. But Mr. Carter was equal to the occasion. He did what his confrères forty years later overlooked and failed to do—he did not compete with his rival by making an inferior edition, but put the price of his edition down to one dollar for the set. The book was a very charming one and the price lower, perhaps, than anything of the kind ever attempted before, so that the sale of tens of thousands in a few months ensued; and although the profit on each set was microscopical, yet it served to extend his business, and probably increased the circulation of his other publications.

From Canal St. Mr. Carter removed his business to 285 Broadway, then the centre of the publishing trade. In 1856 he made what was considered a suicidal move by going up to the corner of Broadway and Spring Street, which at that time was almost out of town. Here his business remains to this day.

In 1848 he took his brothers Walter and Peter into partnership, and in 1874 Robert Carter, Jr., a son, was also admitted. Their publications have been wholly theological or religious, every evangelical denomination being represented in their catalogue. Their list contains one of the largest series of juvenile books adapted to Sunday-school libraries issued in this country.

The esteem in which Mr. Carter was held by his fellow-publishers is well expressed by one of them in a letter to the Observer in April, 1884, on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of Mr. Carter's entry into the trade. That letter said in part:

"Fifty years of a life devoted, as his has been, to the making of books, not one of which would make men worse, but ought to make them better, may well be recognized. For a half century he has been doing a wholesome, honest, beneficent work. He has passed through many seasons of general business depression, and yet maintained his own credit unimpaired. He conducted his business with dignity, integrity, and success. Who can estimate the value and extent of his influence as a publisher? What a factor he has been in the religious education of this country. He has survived all his early contemporaries in the trade—the elder Harpers, Daniel Appleton, John P. Haven, Jonathan Leavitt, Roe Lockwood, and George P. Putnam. Beloved and honored by all who know him, he is not only without enemies, but with troops of friends the whole land over."

Three sons and a daughter survive Mr. Carter. His two elder sons are Presbyterian ministers, one, Thomas Carter, at Boonton, N. J., and the other, Samuel T. Carter, at Huntington, L. I. Peter, with the dead man's son Robert, manages the business. His daughter married the late Rev. I. W. Cochran, of Mendan, N. J. His wife died two years ago.

Mr. Carter was the oldest living Manager of the American Bible Society and was a Trustee on the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church.

The ceremonies at his funeral were simple and impressive. The pulpit was occupied by the pastor of the church, Rev. Dr. S. M. Hamilton, ex-President James McCosh, the Rev. Dr. George Alexander, and the Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler, all of whom took part in the general ceremonies. The interment was at Greenwood Cemetery. The book trade was represented by his old friends, Mr. A. D. F. Randolph and Mr. A. C. Armstrong.

HON. GEORGE H. BOKER, poet, playwright, and diplomat, died suddenly from heart failure on the 2d inst., at Philadelphia. Mr. Boker was sixty-six years of age, having been born in Philadelphia, October 6, 1823. He attended Princeton College and graduated in 1842. After graduation he studied law, but never practised it, living a life of ease, wherein literary activity was his chief work and pleasure. Shortly after leaving college he went abroad for two or three years. Upon his return he married Miss Riggs, who with one son survives him. In 1847 he published his first volume of poems under the title of "The Lesson of Life, and other poems." This was followed by "Calaynos," a tragedy in blank verse; "Anne Boleyn," a tragedy; "The Betrothal," "Loner de Guzman," and his best-known and most successful tragedy, "Francesca de Rimini." Other volumes of poetry by him are "Songs of the Earth," "War Songs," "Ivory Career," "Book of Plays and Poems," "Konigsmark," "Book of the Dead," and "The Podesta's Daughter." It was during this exciting period that the "war poems" came out, the most noted of which were "The Black Regiment," "Sheridan, Sheridan, Cavalry Sheridan," and "Lay him Low." All of Mr. Boker's poetry is highly imaginative, original in conception, and simple in portrayal. Leigh Hunt in his "Book of the Sonnet," pronounced Mr. Boker one of the foremost of poetic writers. Mr. Boker was always an earnest patriot. His services as such were recognized by President Grant, who appointed Mr. Boker to the Turkish mission. He remained at Constantinople four years. His first triumph there was the achievement of securing the right to sell the Bible in the Turkish domains. He secured it in the face of a refusal of the Sultan to grant an audience to an English deputation seeking an interview to ask religious toleration. He also secured a treaty recognizing the rights of naturalization, and another for the extradition of criminals. He was a great favorite at Constantinople, and was made an honorary member of the Greek Syllagos, a degree of honor bestowed on foreigners of only the highest literary merit.

FORGOTTEN BOOKS.

OF books I sing, but not of those
Which any Book Collector knows—
The priceless, rare editions, not,
But volumes which the World forgot
And with them those who wrote, as well,
Before they had a chance to sell:
Ephemerals that find themselves
With the Immortals on my shelves.
I name no names, for if I should None would recall them now, nor could
A word of mine bring any one
Out of its long Oblivion.
The ink on many fly-leaves still Looks quite as fresh as when the quill
On each inscribed an author's name,
And signed his title there to Fame
Without one solitary fear
About its being proven clear.
One has its pages still uncut,
Clean, kept ironically shut
By him whose name therein is penned
And not infrequently I come
Across the imprint of a thumb,
Or in the paragraphs I find
A pleasing sentence underlined,
Or neatly on the margin set
A compliment in epithet:
Each one of these, I'm satisfied,
Was read before its author died.

But there is one among them all,
Morocco bound, gilt edged, and small,
Filled with the amatory rhymes
Of ante-Tennysonian times,
Stiff in their phraseology
And rather rough in melody.
'Tis Dedicated unto Her
By Her Unworthy Worshipper.
And just below is written, "These
Many and pleasing Melodies,
Dear Wm. writ in '98,
& unto Me did Dedicate."
This one was read and read again,
And annotated by her pen:
And this fulfilled the Author's hopes,
Repaid the toil of all his tropes,
And had, at least his span of life,
One constant reader in his wife.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE POPE MFG. CO. have issued a useful desk calendar as an advertisement of their Columbia Bicycles.

SAMPSON LOW & CO. have published a second revised edition of P. H. Emerson's charming "English Idyls," a series of prose poems on various subjects.

WE are pleased to note that the Burrows Brothers Company's handsome edition of "Lorna Doone" has met with a sale far beyond the anticipation of the publishers.

METHUEN & CO., London, will publish shortly a new book by Baring Gould, entitled "Old Country Life," treating of the country customs of the last century, old houses, old roads, old country parsons, and old musicians. The book will be fully illustrated.

As a memorial of a distinguished administrator and to further the cause of Imperial Federation, Mr. Stanley Lane-Poole has edited the papers of Sir George Bowen, and they will be published immediately in London and New York by Longmans, Green & Co. In one of Sir George's earlier letters there is a pleasant glimpse of Washington society during Grant's administration.

THE AUTHORS' COÖPERATIVE PUBLISHING CO., London, have recently published a neat and artistic volume entitled "A Book of Vagrom Men and Vagrant Thoughts," by Alfred T. Story.

The author in a pleasing and entertaining manner treats of tramp musicians, peddlers, ballad-singers, tinkers, sparrows, and a host of other vagrants. The volume reflects creditably upon publisher and author.

MRS. I. S. FREELAND, sister of the author of the "Little Tycoon," and daughter of the author of "Brinka," "The Benefit of the Doubt," etc., made an address on the subject of International Copyright in Dunkirk, N. Y., on the 17th inst. We note this as an encouraging sign, as one of the first efforts of which we know that has been made by a private individual to bring the subject home to an average public.

SILVER, BURDETT & CO., Boston, have issued a neat block calendar for 1890, compiled by Prof. Frank E. Morse, of the New England Conservatory of Music, etc. On the background is a portrait of Prof. John Knowles Paine, of Harvard University, while the pages of the calendar itself are filled with interesting facts relating to eminent American musicians, and also many important facts concerning the history of music in this country. The calendar is also enriched on every page by choice selections of prose and poetry, relating to music, largely from American authors.

E. A. ARNOLD has removed from Ludgate Hill to 18 Warwick Square, Paternoster Row, London, where he proposes to carry on business as a publisher and as an importer of foreign and American books. The European agency of Ginn & Co., of Boston and New York, will be transferred to the above address, and Mr. Arnold will continue to act as their English representative. Mr. E. A. Arnold is a grandson of Dr. Arnold of Rugby, and a nephew of the late Mr. Matthew Arnold. He was for some time at Messrs. Bentley & Son's, where he managed successively the country department and the advertising department. He has been the editor of Murray's Magazine since its foundation.

THE book trade of Atlanta, Ga., is enjoying a little fun caused by a "tug-of-war" in progress between one of the dry-goods bazaars and a book and stationery concern. It would seem, according to the American Stationer, "that last winter Thornton & Grubb, of Atlanta, were able to handle a very good line of books at the phenomenally low price of twenty-five cents per volume, and consequently they made so good a drive on them that the greed of one of the big dry-goods houses was aroused to the extent of making heavy purchases of the books in New York, and a short time ago it displayed them on its counters at nineteen cents a volume. Having a pretty good supply on hand, Thornton & Grubb announced the next day the same book at eighteen cents. The next morning the bazaar dropped a cent below that, to be followed by Thornton & Grubb posting the books at sixteen cents. The bazaar saw them one better, at which point the sinews of war gave out and, at last reports, both belligerents were resting on their oars awaiting large consignments of books, on receipt of which the contest will undoubtedly be resumed. Other booksellers, with one exception, have remained simply spectators of the fray, as they do not handle the books. The exception is W. B. Burke, the 'Old Bookstore Man,' who on the 4th inst. hung up a lot of handkerchiefs, striped hosiery, etc., in front of his store, and announced 'cut rates in dry-goods.' What other lines of feminine apparel Mr. Burke will add to his display is not known, but no doubt the ladies of Atlanta, purses in hand, are keeping a sharp eye on his movements, and stand ready to crowd the store the moment he spreads out a genuine bargain counter of hooks and eyes, whalebones, dress braids, gloves, tapes, laces, embroidery, and other things dear to the female heart. We hope he will sail in courageously. Meanwhile the legitimate book trade is getting another punch in the ribs."

BUSINESS NOTES.

APPLETON, WIS.—B. F. Butler & Co., booksellers and stationers, have sold out.

BOSTON, MASS.—Thomas Y. Crowell & Co. announce that they are now ready for business at a new building corner of Purchase and Oliver Streets. Having five well-lighted and spacious floors containing about 25,000 square feet of surface, fitted up with entirely new machinery and with all modern improvements, their facilities for binding all kinds of edition work are unsurpassed.

COLDWATER, MICH.—Root & Culver, booksellers, have sold out.

DENTON, TEX.—Yates & Garv, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

FLORENCE, ALA.—Murray & Smith, booksellers, of Huntsville, Ala., have opened a branch store here.

MOORHEAD, MINN.—J. Ninger, bookseller and stationer, is closing out his business.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—The Cumberland Presbyterian Publishing House will remain in this city. Several other cities were anxious to have the Publishing House locate in them, Evansville going so far as to offer $21,000 as an inducement. But the Advisory Committee, after weighing all the advantages, decided to remain. The Publishing House have purchased the old K. J. Morris place, fronting 99 feet on Cherry Street, between Church and Broad Streets, for $15,600. A part of the present structure will be utilized for the Publishing House, but the building will be entirely remodelled and much enlarged.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Photogravure Co., 853 Broadway, has become financially embarrassed. Several suits have already been begun against the firm. What the future of the publications will be is not yet determined, but the general hope is expressed that a way will be found to continue them.

NEW YORK CITY.—Lockwood & Coombes have become involved with some of their creditors. Particulars will be given in our next issue.

NEW YORK CITY.—We regret to hear of the suspension of the firm of Daniel Slote & Co., on account of losses through the failure of J. B. Sheffield & Son, of Saugerties. The firm has been in existence thirty years. It was originally known as Slote, Woodman & Co. Daniel Slote, who died a few years ago, was the "Dan" of Mark Twain's "Innocents Abroad," and the firm for many years past have made a specialty of Mark Twain's scrap-book. A statement made in July, 1888, showed that the firm had assets amounting to $231,031; liabilities, $94,317; surplus, $156,714. The firm at present consists of Mrs. Sarah B. Slote, Frank Bowman, and W. A. Metistock.

SHOA'S, IND.—Motsinger & Motsinger, booksellers, have sold out.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

NOTES IN SEASON.

MACMILLAN & Co. have now ready for the American market, Tennyson's new volume, "Demeter, and other poems." In London, nearly 20,000 copies were sold within one week of the day of publication (December 13).

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish early next month "Albrecht," a new novel by Arlo Bates, and "The Bagpipers," by George Sand, translated by Katherine Prescott Wormeley, so favorably known through her translations of Balzac's works published by this house. They have now in preparation Miss Wormeley's translation of Balzac's "Sons of the Soil."

HARPER & BROS. have just published Stanley's letters, telling the story of Emin's rescue, accompanied by illustrations and a map showing the traveller's route from the Congo to the coast. Sir William Mackinnon, chairman of the Emin Pasha Relief Committee, adds some interesting material to the volume. It is of course understood that this book will not in any way trench upon Mr. Stanley's great work, which cannot possibly be published for several months.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. expect to have ready for delivery at once the handsomest lines of Valentine and Easter goods they have ever presented to the public. Samples of all are now ready for inspection and bear out liberally all this house claims for them. The monotint has given way to colors and new kinds of tints, and the ordinary booklet has been supplanted by the shaped or cut-out books, of which the few that were introduced last year became so popular.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. publish this week "A Conversation on Mines Between Father and Son," a lecture on the atmosphere and explosive gases by William Hopton, to which are added questions and answers to assist candidates to obtain certificates for the management of collieries; "A Text-Book of Assaying," by J. J. and C. C. Beringer, for the use of students, mine managers, etc.; and a new novel by a Nashville pen, called "Miss Breckenridge, a Daughter of Dixie."

D. APPLETON & Co. publish this week "An Epitome of Herbert Spencer's Synthetic Philosophy," by F. Howard Collins, with a preface by Herbert Spencer; "The Religion of the Semites," by Prof. W. Robertson Smith; "James G. Birney and His Times," by William Birney, giving the genesis of the Republican party, with some account of Abolition movements in the South before 1828; "The Town Dweller," by the late J. Milner Fothergill; a new volume in the International Scientific Series on "The Physiology of Bodily Exercise," by Fernand Lagrange, and one in the International Education Series on "Practical Hints for Teachers of Public Schools," by George Howland, Superintendent of the Chicago schools.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY publish this week a little volume addressed to all workers with hand and brain, entitled "The Shop," devoted to the possibilities and probabilities of social, home, church, and political reform, by Albert E. Winship, editor of the Journal of Education; "Aids to Endeavor," by Mrs. Castle, a timely collection designed for the public and private use of members of Christian Endeavor Societies, with an introduction by Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clarke, President of the U. S. Soc. of Christian Endeavor; "Those Raeburn Girls," by Mrs. A. F. Raffensperger, a suggestive and inspiring volume for the thousands of ambitious young women who are struggling with the problem just how to become self-supporting; also, in the Spare Minute Series, "Well Springs of Wisdom," a volume of selections from the words of England's famous preacher, Frederick William Robertson, compiled by Rose Porter. They have also just issued new editions of Margaret Sidney's "Little Red Shop;" Frances Eaton's "Queer Little Princess;" Mary Bathurst Deane's "Three Little Maids;" Annie E. Ryder's "New Every Morning;" and a library edition of Elbridge S. Brooks' "Story of the American Soldier," uniform with the library editions of the same author's "stories" of the American Sailor and Indian.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights

Bell, Alex. Melville. Popular manual of vocal physiology and visible speech. N. Y., N. D. C. Hodges, 47 Lafayette Pl., [1889.] c. 59 p. S. bds., 50c. (Corr. title.)

Bellamy, C. J. An experiment in marriage: a romance. Albany, N. Y., Albany Book Co., 1889. 286 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50c.

C. J. Bellamy is the brother of Edward Bellamy, who wrote "Looking backward;" he is also the author of "The Breton mills" and "A moment of madness." This is an audacious treatment of the subject of love and marriage. In the guise of a story a history is given of a socialistic experiment made in California. The place is called Grape Valley—the men and women only living together as husbands and wives as long as love lasts; the marriage is easily dissolved and another as quickly entered into. The children are cared for by the State.

Boehmer, G. H. Report on Smithsonian exchanges for the year ending June 30, 1887. From the Smithsonian Report for 1886-'87. Wash., D. C., Smithsonian Institution, 1889. 29-52 p. O. (Miscellaneous coll., no. 674.) pap.

Booth, Maud B. Beneath two flags. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1889. c. 288 p. il. D. cl., $1.

Partly an explanation and partly a vindication of the "Salvation Army." The author is the wife of Marshal Booth, who is the son of General William Booth, founder and leader of the whole movement. The book is full of incidents and deeply interesting.

"Blind love" is the novel Wilkie Collins was writing for the Illustrated London News at the time of his death. Although left unfinished, there were numerous notes by the author, and the plot written out in full, enabling another to finish the work. This task was intrusted to Walter Besant, who has followed Wilkie Collins' notes to the letter. The tale is of Ireland and the Irish Invincibles. There is also a love affair, which has many episodes.

Walker, Francis A. First lessons in political economy. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1889. c. 8+323 p. D. (Amer. sci. ser., elementary course.) cl., $1.25.

For use in high schools and academies. In preparing a text-book for students of fifteen, sixteen, or seventeen years, the author has not thought it necessary to make the work childish. It is no "primer of political economy" which is offered, but a substantial course of study. The chief characteristics are: a clear arrangement of topics; a simple, direct, and forcible presentation of the questions successively raised; the avoidance, as far as possible, of certain metaphysical distinctions which the author has found perplexing to students of even a greater age; a frequent repetition of cardinal doctrines; and a liberal use of concrete illustrations, drawn from facts of common experience or observation.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 11, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

"STANDARDS" AND "TRASH."

THE condition of the book trade in the past few years has done much to justify the prevalent superstition that it does not pay to publish really good books. A correspondent, whose letter we reprint elsewhere, speaks of our frequent mention of "the fact that the most valuable books are those which are the least profitable to the publisher and have the smallest sale." We do not recall that we have ever presented that, in this broad way, as a fact, although we have lamented that a good deal of trash has very wide sale. On the contrary, while we have to recognize that the book trade system of distribution which is needed to market books of standard value, is not what it should be and not what it used to be, yet there is good evidence that really valuable books are still worth publishing. This fact has doubtless been obscured by the prevalence of cheap reprints, the fashion of "flat books" for Christmas sale with less regard to literary contents than to mechanical get-up, and the gimcrackery of booklets and such things, but the sales of the Christmas season just past have shown that really good editions, tasteful and not too expensive, of what may fairly be called standard books, have been positively remunerative. Among the chief successes of the year have been Burrows' "Lorna Doone," Houghton, Mifflin & Co.'s "Marble Faun," Scribners' "Dream Life" and "Reveries," and Harpers' "Letters of Motley;" all of them books for all time as well as Christmas time. We believe that the experience of this past year will lead publishers again in the direction of making this class of books rather than Christmas flummery.

There has undoubtedly, however, been among leading publishers in recent years an indisposition to take up new enterprises of high character whose success would be slow but sure. It is the proper function of a really great publishing house, with capital and a history behind it, to find its success in promoting literature by taking risks which an author cannot take, but which are likely not to be risks in the long run under capable publishing management. We have known of more than one projected work requiring great outlay both in time and study on the part of capable authors which has been put aside because of this present unwillingness of publishers to do what publishers were accustomed to do a generation ago. Mr. Henry Adams, a scholar with the advantage of wealth, could afford not only to write his recent history without publishing encouragement but to print it in advance of publication for correction by the scholars whom he consulted. But most authors are not men of wealth, and if they are prudent men, cannot afford to enter on great undertakings without a reasonable certainty that they will see the light at the hands of some publisher of standing. The ordinary reply of publishers that they will be pleased to examine the manuscript when completed, does not meet this class, though Professor McMaster, for one instance, did indeed take the risk of preparing his first volume without such definite encouragement. Of course a conservative publisher cannot be expected to pledge in advance that he will publish and insure success for an unwritten work. But there is a middle ground of encouragement which should not be neglected by publishers. Enterprises projected by men who have proved themselves capable scholars and which are of a nature if well done to attain final if slow success, are just those which should have encouragement from publishers who are really masters of their calling.

Our correspondent, however, asks another question—why the public does not buy labor-saving books, produced by publishers at enormous expense, and combining the value of numerous individual books which in the aggregate cost much more than the price of the combined volume. We should answer that the public do buy such books when they are what the public want, and are presented to the public in the right way. Witness the enormous sale in this country of the Encyclopædia Britannica, in three several editions, the cheapest of them aggregating a considerable cost for the set. A number of others might be cited. When a book of this kind fails to pay, it means either that the public has not agreed with the author, or editor, or publisher as to the practical "value" of the book—in which case the public is the only judge; or that it has not been adequately presented to the public—and we must sadly confess that the distributing machinery of the "regular" trade is not in good shape for the most effective work. But good books, well pushed, do still pay, and it is worth while for publishers to issue them.

We throw out these suggestions at the beginning of the new year, when new enterprises are apt to arise in the minds of authors and publishers, because with the decadence of cheap reprinting and the probability of an international copyright law, there should be opportunity for a renaissance of good publishing. A publishing house, old or new, holds or wins repute, not so much by making a large catalogue as by producing a more limited number of books of real literary importance and consequently of permanent sale.

We were in error in recording in our last issue as published Brown's "Genesis of the United States," which Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin & Co. will as a matter of fact not have ready for some time. Our error arose from the fact that the book had been advertised as ready, and we had not received notice of the postponement of its publication.

CONTRIBUTIONS OF THE BOOK TRADE TO THE HOSPITAL SATURDAY AND SUNDAY ASSOCIATION FUND.

THE following is a list of the subscribers in the Book Trade to the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association Fund for 1890. Compared with the amounts subscribed by other trades, and compared even with the amounts contributed heretofore by the book trade, this year's showing is a poor one. We imagine it is because it is no one's business in particular to get at the trade in this matter, and because the occasion itself occurs at a time when the book trade above all others is too driven to think of anything but business. Yet it ought not to be so, because, as we have said before, this is a practical charity through which the principals and their employes will be directly benefited if they care to avail themselves of it. Each subscriber is entitled to the use of a bed for one day for every dollar he subscribes:

STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE—ANNUAL MEETING.

THE annual meeting of the Stationers' Board of Trade was held at its rooms on the 7th inst., President George L. Pease presiding. In his report the President said that the year had been a prosperous one. Referring to the difficulties under which the Bankruptcy Department had labored on account of the lack of uniformity in the bankruptcy laws of the different States, he strongly urged the members to use their influence in favor of the Torrey Bankruptcy Bill, soon to come up before Congress. C. T. Dillingham, chairman of the Executive Committee, reported 1200 claims handled during the year by the Failure and Assignment Department. They aggregated $219,853.16, of which $40,283.14 was collected. The Collection Department received 2044 claims, amounting to $169,817.60. The collections were $64,076.13. The present membership of the Board is 187. At the election of trustees the following were chosen: Alexander Agar, James C. Aikin, Henry C. Bainbridge, Walter G. Berlin, Bloomfield Brower, C. T. Dillingham, Oscar S. Greenleaf, William C. Horn, Samuel I. Knight, Amos M. Lyon, John McLoughlin, J. K. Osborn, George L. Pease, Frank Squier, Iwan von Auw, James S. Warren, Frank Wood, and Edwin Young, all of whom, except Messrs. Osborn, Warren, Wood, and Young, were reelected.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE SALE OF "VALUABLE" BOOKS.

PHILADELPHIA, January 4, 1890.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

SIR: You often comment on the fact that the most valuable books and those which are the least profit to the publishers have the smallest sale. Why is it? The bookbuying public are constantly demanding works that will be of permanent value, and such as will save them from having to buy individual authors and portions of subjects and such as will (to the general reader) be equal to the possession of a library of them, by containing critical estimates of all authorities, so that the reader has his study made easy and can form intelligent conclusions of his own, be able to read to advantage any current material on the subject, and buy intelligently individual authors as he really wants them. Yet when enormous expense has been made by publishers to produce such books, no generous appreciation is shown by the public to encourage further attempts to do costly, painstaking, and meritorious work. Many instances could be cited, and several notable ones. The difficulty is, the reading public will not carefully enter into the spirit of really good books and so understand how necessary they would be to have. A great many imagine because a work costs forty or fifty dollars for a set, they cannot afford to buy it, and yet continue to spend hundreds of dollars in the same direction on two to five dollar single books, all of which would be read to better advantage did the bookbuyers first possess the work they without proper deliberation have passed as beyond their means. The writer knows from experience 'tis easier to sell books of transient importance and which are really extravagant purchases to many who buy, than to find purchasers for books which have great value for the price charged, and of lasting value as books of reference and pleasurable study.

No wonder publishers hesitate to go to enormous outlay to make books which really are time and money savers to the general reader, when so little appreciation is shown by them to respond.

Yours truly, GEORGE MACLEAN.

A PLEA FOR CLOSE DISCOUNTS AND TRADE REFORM.

Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

DEAR SIR: We particularly wish to congratulate and encourage you in your earnest efforts in two or three things which seem to us to be of vital interest to American booksellers, viz.: international copyright, the system of close discount to the retail trade, and a reduction of the publishers' retail list. Make a list mean the fair retail price of a book, something near its true market value.

It seems to us this is the only hope of the retail book trade, the only business like way in which we can successfully meet the bazaar and dry-goods trade. ***

OBITUARY.

HENRY P. NICHOLS.

HENRY P. NICHOLS, one of the veterans of the book trade and member of the old firm of Crosby & Nichols, died at his residence in Boston, Dec. 21, at the age of 73 years. Mr. Nichols was a native of Salem (where his father, George Nichols, was for many years a noted auctioneer), and went from there to Boston in 1844, in which year he formed, with his friend Wm. H. Crosby, the bookselling firm of Wm. H. Crosby & H. P. Nichols. Eight or ten years after Mr. Joseph Ainsworth was admitted as a partner, and the firm became Crosby, Nichols & Co. Their business having become considerably enlarged, they removed to a more commodious store at 111 Washington Street. Shortly after this removal they purchased the book stock and good-will of John P. Jewett & Co., three doors above, at 117 Washington Street, and transferred their business to the latter place, where they remained for a number of years. In 1860 Mr. W. Lee, of Lee & Shepard, who had then just returned from Europe, was admitted into the firm, which became Crosby, Nichols, Lee & Co. Two years after, the firm failed and reorganized as two separate concerns—Crosby & Ainsworth, who took over the wholesale business of the old firm, and Nichols & Noyes, who continued the retail business at 117 Washington Street. Mr. Lee, it will be remembered, in that year went into business with his old friend, the late Mr. Charles A. B. Shepard. Some time after, the firm of Nichols & Noyes was dissolved, and the business carried on under the name of Noyes, Holmes & Co., who removed to 221 Washington Street. Mr. Nichols continued the relations with the house as salesman, and subsequently with its successors, Lockwood, Brooks & Co., Cleaves, Macdonald & Co., and Wm. Macdonald & Co.

Mr. Nichols was of a retiring disposition, and was held in the highest esteem in and out of the trade. He was in every sense of the word an honor to the profession he followed for so many years. The imprint of his firm was borne by a number of the best publications, among which we now remember the North American Review, Christian Examiner, Religious Miscellany, the well-known Payson and Dunton's copy-books, Channing's complete works, etc. Mr. Nichols' death was caused by a blow over the eyes, from the shaft of a herdic which ran him down three days previous to his death.

✓ EDWARD C. SWAYNE.

UNEXPECTEDLY the news comes of the sudden death, in the prime of manhood, of Edward C. Swayne, of E. P. Dutton & Co. On the evening of the 5th inst., while walking along East 129th Street, New York City, and only a block from his house, he staggered and fell, and before aid could be summoned he was dead. It is supposed that a heart trouble was the immediate cause of his death. Mr. Swayne, who is well known to the trade throughout the country, was born in Dorchester, N. B., in 1849. He came to New York when quite young, and began his career in the book business in the New York office of Ticknor & Fields. When E. P. Dutton & Co. bought out the "Old Corner," Swayne entered their employ, and worked himself up step by step until in 1882 his services were recognized by admitting him to a partnership. He was on the road for a number of years until he took charge of the manufacturing department. Then his absence for months in Europe making arrangements with English and German printers and lithographers necessarily restricted his calls upon the trade in this country to the larger cities. Mr. Swayne was a man of athletic build, and had the appearance of enjoying excellent health.

ANDREAS PERTHES, of the famous house that publishes the Almanach de Gotha, died from influenza on the 4th inst.

GEORGE T. PATTERSON, the well-known stationer, died on the 3d inst., at his residence in New York. He was born in the north of Scotland on March 8, 1824, and when a child came to this country with his parents. When ten years old he was apprenticed to a blank-book manufacturer. After nearly forty years of hard work he began business on his own account in 1874, and in 1878 founded the George T. Patterson Stationery Company, of which he was the head until he gave up business a few months ago.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, ILL.—H. D. Chapin, bookseller, has sold his stock to John E. Burton, who intends to open the big bookstore, etc., that he talked of doing a few years ago, when Mr. Chapin turned over his stock to him. Mr. Chapin has gone to Mexico to meet Mr. Burton at his extensive mines, and expects to return in a few months, when he will probably be ready to lay out a programme for his own future.

MARIETTA, O.—P. M. Snyder made an assignment, on the 2d inst., being closed by U. S. Marshal, on complaint of W. W. Charlers, of Chicago, Ill. No assignee has been appointed.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.—Henry S. Hutchinson & Co., booksellers, on the 2d inst. sustained a loss by fire, to the amount of nearly $10,000, which fortunately is covered by insurance. Messrs. Hutchinson will carry on business at 14 Pleasant Street (Cheapside) until repairs to the damaged building are completed.

NEW YORK CITY.—Wm. C. Wood has been admitted to the firm of William Wood & Co., publishers of medical works.

SALIDA, COLO.—E. P. Chester, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

SAUGERTIES, N. Y.—Wm. G. Killmer has been appointed receiver of J. B. Sheffield & Son, who recently failed in connection with J. Q. Preble & Co., of New York, and Howard Gillespy was appointed receiver of the Saugerties Blank-Book Co., which was also involved in these failures. The combined direct liabilities of the Sheffield and Saugerties Blank-Book Companies will probably amount to less than $1,000,000, including all claims made by J. Q. Preble & Co. excepting the endorsements of paper, which Preble & Co. will take care of. Daniel Slote & Co. and the Wabash Manufacturing Co., it is expected, will also take care of their paper.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—C. B. Swart, bookseller, is dead.

WINDSOR, MO.—Mitchell & Mitchell, booksellers, have sold out.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE credit for the clever account of the trouble in the book and dry-goods trade in Atlanta, Ga., reprinted in our columns last week, belongs to Geyer's Stationer, and not to the journal we mentioned.

C. H. WOODWARD, known unfavorably in connection with the book publishing swindle in Boston and Providence, R. I., has been convicted in Washington, D. C., for swindling three persons out of $100 each in the same manner, and was sent to the Albany Penitentiary for one year.

BOOKSELLERS have had their three days' business; they can now lay on their oars for the coming eleven months and twenty-four days, and live upon the profits of the last three days if they can. If there is not a reconstruction of this branch of business it will become extinct; in fact, it is well-nigh extinct already, there is scarcely an educated bookseller in business in this country.—Rider's "Book Notes."

THE annual dinner of the Typothetæ in honor of Franklin's birthday will be held this year at the Brunswick, New York City, on the evening of the 17th inst. No effort has been spared to make the affair a very enjoyable one. Among the speakers expected are Murat Halstead, of Cincinnati; Col. Horace T. Rockwell, of Boston, President of the National Typothetæ; Clayton McMichael, of Philadelphia; Edward Eggleston, Isaac H. Bailey, and others.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. announce as in press several books in various departments of literature. In fiction there will shortly appear "Old Country Life," by F. Baring-Gould, and "Starlight Ranch, and other stories of army life on the frontier," by Captain Charles King. The "Recollections of George W. Childs," published serially in Lippincott's Magazine are almost ready in book-form. Of educational and scientific value will be "The Third Reader," by Eben W. Davis; and "Elements of Trigonometry," by Prof. E. P. Crawley; and of importance in medicine, "Therapeutics of Diseases of Women," by J. M. Keating, and "A Text-Book of Clinical Diagnosis," by James Cagney, translated from the second edition with additions by Dr. William Sterling, of Owens College, Manchester.

D. APPLETON & CO.

PUBLISH THIS WEEK:

Around and About South America:

TWENTY MONTHS OF QUEST AND QUERY. By FRANK VINCENT, author of "The Land of the White Elephant," etc. With maps, plans, and 54 full-page illustrations. 8vo, xxiv-473 pages, cloth, $5.00.

Mr. Vincent made the entire circuit of South America. He visited every capital, chief city, and important seaport, made several expeditions into the interior of Brazil and the Argentine Republic, and ascended the Paraná, Paraguay, Amazon, Orinoco, and Magdalena Rivers; he inspected the coffee districts of Brazil, descended the gold mines; in brief, left no place of importance unvisited. Several interviews with Dom Pedro are of special interest.

Falling in Love:

WITH OTHER ESSAYS ON MORE EXACT BRANCHES OF SCIENCE. By GRANT ALLEN, author of "Flowers and Their Pedigrees," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"Mr. Grant Allen's treatment is dexterous, his style light and pleasant, his command of the fields of science extensive, and his resources in all that pertains to the 'fairy-tales of science' admirable indeed. The result is a bright and readable book."—London Saturday Review.

Bishop Butler:

A RELIGIOUS PHILOSOPHER FOR ALL TIME. A sketch of his life, with an examination of the "Analogy." By THOMAS RUGGLES PYNCHON, D.D., with portrait from painting at Trinity College, Hartford. Square crown 8vo, cloth, $1.25.

The Dean's Daughter.

By SOPHIE F. F. VEITCH, author of "Angus Graeme," etc. Appletons' Town and Country Library. 12mo, paper, 50 cents.

"Recalls to some extent the vanished hand of the author of 'Jane Eyre.' . . . The 'Dean's Daughter' firmly establishes Miss Veitch's position among the upper ten of the female novelists of the day."—London Academy.

Julius Courtney; or, Master of His Fate.

By J. MACLAREN COBBAN. Reprinted from Blackwood's Magazine. The Gainsborough Series. 12mo, paper, 25 cents.

This remarkable novelette illustrates some new and startling phases of hypnotism. It has attracted much attention in course of its publication in Blackwood.

1, 3, & 5 BOND STREET, NEW YORK.

A NEW EDITION DE LUXE OF Charles Dickens' Complete Works.

LIMITED TO 1000 NUMBERED SETS.

Unquestionably the handsomest edition of Dickens' writings—the nearest approach to the highest ideals of perfection in book-making—ever attempted in this country.

The type is from a new font, especially cast for it and never used for any other purpose.

The paper—also especially made for it—combines the qualities of excellence in finish and in the materials used, with a lightness of weight that prevents the volume from being uncomfortably heavy to hold and read.

The illustrations—half the value of a good edition of Dickens—are incomparably superior to any ever issued in any edition printed in this country, and are only excelled—if at all—by the original issues of each volume, sets of which bring from one to two thousand dollars.

All the original etchings by Cruikshank and others have been carefully re-etched, line for line, from brilliant original proof impressions, and proofs taken for this edition on Imperial Japanese paper. The wood-engravings are printed on Japanese paper from electrotypes never before used furnished by Dickens' original publishers.

The set will be completed in 45 volumes, at the rate of about two volumes per month.

Price, bound in vellum cloth, gilt tops, uncut, $2.50 per vol.

Issued by subscription only, and no orders taken except for complete sets. Prospectus, with specimen showing type, page, paper, etc., with specimen illustration, mailed free upon application.

NOTES IN SEASON.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have just published "The Story of Tonty," an historical romance, by Mary Hartwell Catherwood, who wrote the recent Century novel, "The Romance of Dollard." The volume is illustrated from original drawings by Enoch Ward.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON will publish shortly Chas. Loring Brace's new work, entitled "The Unknown God, or, inspiration among pre-Christian races." The object of this work, which takes its title from St. Paul's sermon at Athens, is "to show that the unknown God has been worshipped and devoutly followed by people of distant ages—long previous to Christianity—or by those of later periods, who knew nothing of the Christian revelation."

A. L. BURT has issued a volume on "Fugitive Facts," edited by Robert Thorne. It comprises short articles, alphabetically arranged, on topics constantly arising in conversation and general reading, on which it is hard to find accurate and definite information. The volume is strictly popular and not intended for scientific reference, but all the statements made are supported by acknowledged authorities. The queries in the correspondence departments of periodicals and newspapers have suggested many of the subjects treated. The editor has added an appendix, devoted to short selections of constantly used medical and business terms and short dictionaries of mythology and music. The book is neatly gotten up in handy shape and ought to be successful.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish shortly a new volume, in The Story of the Nations Series, entitled "The Story of the Barbary Corsairs," by Stanley Lane Poole, with the collaboration of Lieut. J. D. Jerrold Kelley, of the United States Navy; three new Knickerbocker Nuggets, "The Garden," with critical essay, by Walter Howe; "Letters of Philip Donner, Fourth Earl of Chesterfield, to His Godson," by the Earl of Carnarvon, a supplementary volume to the "Chesterfield Letters," containing all the newly collected English and French letters recently issued by the Clarendon Press; and "The Boyhood and Youth of Goethe," comprising the first thirteen books of his autobiography; and two new books in The Questions of the Day, on "Railway Secrecy," by John M. Bonham, and "American Farms," by J. R. Elliot.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have just ready "The Bible and Modern Discoveries," by Henry A. Harper, with an introduction by Walter Besant, which includes, in a popular form, the most significant results of the researches made under the Palestine Exploration Fund; "The Discovery of the Ancient City of Norumbega," already fully described in the WEEKLY; "The Diary of William Pynchon, of Salem," edited by Dr. F. E. Oliver, which gives an interesting picture of Salem life, social and political, during the eventful years 1776 to 1789; also a new and enlarged edition of Prof. J. M. Hoppin's delightful volume, "Old England," which contains a chapter devoted to places not included in previous issues.

DODD, MEAD & Co., in response to a very general demand, will publish, in the course of the next seven or eight months, cheap twelvemo editions of fourteen of E. P. Roe's novels. This series will be well printed and attractively bound in paper covers to retail at 50 cents, and will include "The Earth Trembled," "Young Girl's Wooing," "Opening of a Chestnut Burr," "From Jest to Earnest," "Without a Home," "His Sombre Rivals," "Day of Fate," "Nature's Serial Story," "Face Illumined," "He Fell in Love with His Wife," "Knight of the XIXth Century," "What Can She Do?" "Driven Back to Eden," and "Near to Nature's Heart." Each volume will be strictly limited to 30,000 copies, and the entire edition will be sold through the American News Company.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

"It was James G. Birney who first called abolitionists away from obsolete issues to the true one. In the summer of 1835 he abandoned his Southern home and removed to Ohio, declaring that the slavery of the blacks had ceased to be the question before the country, and that the liberties of all American citizens and the safety of the republic were in danger. During the following ten years he was recognized by the opponents of the slave-power as their leader."—Preface.

Black, W: Nanciebel: a tale of Stratford-on-Avon. N. Y., G: Munro, [1890.] 4-118 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1259.) pap., 20 c.

In the grouping of the words, the general plan has been followed of placing the subsidiary words, or those treated as such, a little to the right of the leading word, for the reader's guidance of the eye. This system of grouping presents at once all the derived and related words in good use. No preference to any one authority has been shown, but the words have been compiled principally from the Stormonth, Webster, and Worcester. No definitions are given, excepting in the case where words are pronounced alike—these are gathered into an appendix.

Booth, Mrs. Otto, ["Rita," pseud.] The Ladye Nancye; or, the woman in black. N. Y., G: Munro, [1890.] 4-274 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1253.) pap., 20 c.

Cameron, Mrs. H. Lovett. Her father's daughter. N. Y., G: Munro, [1890.] 4-256 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1236.) pap., 20 c.

Catherwood, Mrs. Mary Hartwell. The story of Tonty. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1890. c. '89. 3-227 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

"The story of Tonty" is eminently a Western story, beginning at Montreal, tarrying at Fort Frontenac, and ending at the old fort at Starved Rock, on the Illinois River. It weaves the adventures of the two great explorers, the intrepid La Salle and his faithful lieutenant, Tonty, into a tale as thrilling and romantic as "The Romance of Dollard" by the same author.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 18, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

BOOKS AND FURNITURE.

IN one of the Western cities a few years ago there was a simultaneous movement on the part of the richer men to build fine houses for themselves, and the leading bookseller of the place bethought himself that here was a chance to furnish private libraries for these elegant mansions. The architect had in each case, of course, provided a library, or at least marked such a room on his ground-plan, and it seemed that here at last was a field where good bookselling and real enterprise might tell. Consequently the bookseller engaged a capable agent and sent him in succession to the several men who were building these new fine houses. He found his results so near to nothing that they did not pay the expense of the canvasser—a most sad conclusion which convinced our bookselling friend that the bottom had dropped out of the book business.

This is really an extraordinary social phenomenon. These same rich men were buying all sorts of bric-à-brac, and sometimes filling picture galleries with most costly paintings, and yet for their libraries they did not want any books. A well-known sanitary engineer who has had occasion to visit a great proportion of the finer houses in New York, states that in almost no case has he seen a fair collection of books, a real private library, in houses where thousands of dollars were spent upon china and bric-à-brac. Private libraries outside of those of the collectors of specialties seem indeed almost to have ceased to exist.

We have no theory to offer adequate to explain this fact. In Boston it might be attributed to the existence of the great Public Library and the great scholarly library of the Athenæum, but in Boston there are probably more private libraries than in any other one place in the country. It might be attributed to the demands upon reading time made by the magazines and big newspapers, but this explanation is hardly adequate. One of the great publishers once said epigrammatically, that the business of publishing was one of solicitation, and that is even more true of the bookselling business, that is, the retailing of books. Yet the dealer of whom we first spoke would say that he had done his best to solicit this class of custom and had failed. What seems to be the case is that the public sentiment of the richer class of the community does not call upon a man to be the owner of a private library. Bookselling itself has throughout the country reached such a low ebb that booksellers have little to do in making public sentiment. At any rate the matter is worth the consideration of the publishing and bookselling trade.

THE Senate Committee on Patents did not hold a meeting on the 9th inst., hence the expected hearing in favor of international copyright was not had. Dr. Edward Eggleston made a brief statement of the case at an informal hearing before the House Judiciary Committee.

THE London publishers of Biart's "Adventures of a Young Naturalist," having sold the plates and the exclusive rights of the book for America, have inadvertently sent to this market one hundred copies of their edition of the book. We simply call attention to this case as one of oversight on the part of the English publishers, and as one which we are pleased to state does not often occur. The ownership of the rights of publication of this book for America rests with Messrs Harper & Brothers.

ANOTHER example of fighting fire with fire is furnished by Messrs. H. N. Brooks & Co., booksellers, of Meriden, Connecticut. They send us a circular headed "Dry-goods without profit," which they say turns out the most successful scheme they have tried yet. In this circular they offer pins, Coates' thread, and other leading lines of the dry-goods stores at bottom cut prices, and "dry-goods 12mos" at 19 cents each. The sting of the circular is in the concluding paragraph, which says, "No price others can make on these goods will be as low as our price, save until we find it out. We shall set the prices." The circular is signed by H. N. Brooks & Co., as "booksellers and stationers and temporary dry-goods dealers." The dry-goods people in Meriden are beginning to feel that what is "sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."

WE are taking unusual pains this year to make the ANNUAL CATALOGUE (books issued during 1889) as complete as possible, by means of the supplementary list, and also to issue it, as well as our Annual Summary Number of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, promptly. During the year we make every effort to induce publishers to send us all books issued or the titles of them, and to follow up every title that appears in any shape, in book reviews, advertisements, or mention, in the large number of papers on our exchange list, which are carefully read for that purpose. But our efforts are not always promptly responded to, and despite all endeavors, some titles escape us. Therefore we take the additional precaution this year of sending to every publisher who has issued books during the year, asking him to supply any omissions, and offering to loan for his guidance the list which we keep arranged by publishers. These titles we include in our supplementary list. But we do not undertake to give there mere reissues, in which only binding is changed, or mere changes of prices—of which we are glad to make record during the year in "Literary and Trade Notes." We trust our pains in this work will be appreciated by practical support, both in the way of subscriptions from the trade at large and of advertising lists of their books of 1889 from publishers. The necessity of this ANNUAL CATALOGUE is not done away with by the new volume of the AMERICAN CATALOGUE, for that cannot begin to appear until next fall.

CAN PICTURES BE ENGRAVED IN BOND?

THE Photo-Electrotype Engraving Company of New York is having some trouble with the Collector of the Port over pictures sent to it from Glasgow that were seized and held for appraisement. On Dec. 26 the company was notified that a registered package was in the Post-Office awaiting payment of duty. The company said it was importing nothing for sale here. The pictures were drawings sent here for the company to make plates from, and when the plates were made the pictures and plates and everything pertaining to them were to be shipped back to Glasgow to the book publishers that had sent them here. There were eighteen pictures for illustrating a book. The Appraiser said that he had no discretion in the matter, but he would be as easy as he could in the case; he would appraise them at $2 each. The duty was $10.80. The pictures were the work of a well-known artist. Even at the appraised value of $2 each the duty was enough to take the edge off the profit in the job, and the work will have to be abandoned unless the Collector reverses the decision of the Appraiser. The Secretary of the Treasury has not yet returned his answer. In the meantime the Photo-Electrotype Engraving Company has paid duty under protest, has engraved the plates, and has sent them back together with the originals.

WANAMAKER'S BOOK NEWS—A CRITICISM.

From the New York Sun.

THE career of Mr. Wanamaker as a statesman, as a laundryman, as a Government contractor, as a host to guests of the nation, as a Sunday-school superintendent, as proprietor of a bargain counter, and as a writer for the advertising columns of the local press, has, at one time and another, been referred to appreciatively by The Sun. There is one field in which he is conspicuous that remains to be described. Mr. Wanamaker is the editor and proprietor of a monthly magazine entitled Book News. It is now in its ninth year of successful publication, in spite of the fact that its existence has not hitherto been well known to the general public.

It is a particularly interesting publication on several accounts. For instance, some of the most marked characteristics of its editor and proprietor, Mr. Wanamaker, are as plainly seen in its pages as they are in his combined management of a department of the public service and a bargain counter.

Books are unquestionably considered as books in Book News just as spittoons are considered as spittoons at the bargain counter or in Government contracts. There are pages in the periodical where the name of "the Wanamaker" does not appear, but they are pages which have been sold to advertisers at $200 per page for the year.

Some people would, on an examination of this periodical, decide that it was an advertising circular. The statement that it was "published monthly by John Wanamaker, 50 cents a year, postpaid," would not alter this conviction. Indeed, on reading that all communications should be addressed

BOOK NEWS,

JOHN WANAMAKER,

Philadelphia,

they might be confirmed in this opinion. An examination of the records of the Philadelphia Post-Office, however, should immediately disabuse the mind of this belief. It cannot be an advertising circular, because it is mailed as second-class matter, or at two cents per pound. It must therefore be "published for the dissemination of information of a public character," and is "not primarily designed for advertising purposes," as the law provides. It is not to be supposed that "the Wanamaker" and Postmaster-General would violate the law by sending advertising circulars through the mails under the guise of a periodical "devoted to literature." This is a case wherein the evidences of the senses should give way to the evidences furnished by official records.

In connection with a consideration of Book News, it is not inappropriate to recall the fact that a very considerable space in the report of John Wanamaker, Postmaster-General, was devoted to the government's loss of revenue in carrying periodicals, that by means of a nominal subscription list were able to evade the law excluding advertising circulars from the second-class mail-matter. Editor and Publisher Wanamaker does not say how large a subscription list Book News has. It may be taken for granted that the list has an existence, however, if one remembers, in connection with Carlyle's estimate of the human race, that all other periodicals devoted to book news are sold at $1 a year, while Editor Wanamaker's is only 50 cents a year—not payable in advance—once a subscriber, always a subscriber.

THE "BLUE-BOOK" FOR 1889.

MR. AMRS, the Superintendent of Documents, has completed the compilation of the first volume of the Official Register, or "Blue-Book," for the year 1889. It is expected that the work will be ready for distribution by January 20. "This volume," says a correspondent to the New York Tribune, "contains a list of all the employes of the government, with the exception of those in the general postal service, together with the officers of the army and navy, the total number of names amounting to 58,000. The volume shows that 16,234 persons are employed in the city of Washington, 12,215 being men, and 4021 women. These are divided among the several departments as follows: Treasury, 2334 men, 1308 women; War, 1749 men, 79 women; Navy, 1430 men, 27 women; Interior, 2308 men, 801 women; Post-Office, 481 men, 147 women; Justice, 82 men, 15 women; Agriculture, 156 men, 120 women; Labor, 44 men, 9 women; Government Printing Office, 1504 men, 709 women; Washington City Government, 706 men, 667 women. Totals—11,081 men, and 3894 women. The remaining 1259 are employed chiefly in the smaller Executive offices of the Government and at the Capitol."

COMMUNICATIONS.

IS IT RIGHT?

I AM a retailer and am entitled to a trade discount. Do I get it? Let us see.

Here is a book published at \$5. It is so listed and advertised. I send to the publisher for a copy, and it is billed to me at \$3.33. But a private buyer goes to the publisher for it, and is quite likely to get it for \$4. Does not the man who is not a bookseller get more by 33 $\frac{1}{3}$  cents than I do, if, to meet the action of the publisher, I am compelled to sell at the same price? In other words, he gets \$1 off, and I get 67 cents, which don't pay me the actual cost of handling! And the publishers wonder why the retailer doesn't carry a full line of their books! How can he?

RETAILER.

THE WANAMAKER BOOKSTORE: "STANDARD BOOKS OF PERMANENT VALUE."

PHILADELPHIA, January 13, 1890.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

As the buyer and Manager of the Book Department of the firm of John Wanamaker, I ask that I may have an opportunity of calling the attention of the readers of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY to the false impression the writer of an editorial in the WEEKLY for December 28 (page 1003) has of our stock of books. After saying that his friend was going to Wanamaker's to buy his books, he adds, "The books upon which he decided were probably not in stock there, for they were standard books of permanent value, such as the 'department' bookstores do not usually keep on hand." If the writer had consulted any leading publisher in the country, he would have found that we do carry a large stock of standard books. We have never attempted to keep Law, Medical, Scientific, or School-Books, but outside of these lines, we buy every new book published by Harper Bros., D. Appleton & Co., Chas. Scribner's Sons, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., and every leading publisher in the country. Now the assertion to which I take exception is equivalent to saying that no book of "permanent value" has been published in the United States for three years (I speak for the time the department has been under my charge). The importers of the Oxford Teachers' Bible will tell you, I think, that we use more of these books than any other retail store in the country, and surely you will agree that the Bible is, at least, entitled to a place among the books of "permanent value."

In the number for December 7, under the heading "The Old Book Clerk and the New," your correspondent gave rather an amusing account of what might possibly occur in a business of such proportions that we are compelled to add to the book department alone one hundred extra salespeople, and a hundred others to act as packers, cashiers, cash boys, and delivery men to meet the demands of the holiday business; but with all the prejudice that he evidently has against stores of this kind, I am sure that he would not endorse the assertion that we do not keep books of "permanent value," for it is an unjust reflection upon every author and publisher in the country, and misrepresents my manner of conducting this branch of the firm's business.

WARREN SNYDER.

[Our phrase "standard books of permanent value" was an inexact one; the article was intended to point out that the "department" bookstores do not carry a general stock of standard books not of recent issue, which should be found in a well-appointed bookstore. Probably the Wanamaker department store carries more such stock than most department stores, for it represents the department system at its best. But it does not keep in stock, so we understand, the books infrequently in demand, which it costs most to keep.—ED. P. W.]

BOOK CLERKS IN DRY-GOODS STORES.

BUFFALO, N. Y., January 13, 1890.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

DEAR SIR: You reprint a paragraph from the Buffalo Courier about a girl who did not know the difference between Edwin Arnold and Benedict Arnold. I doubt whether this occurred here, but even if it did it is not as surprising as a thing that occurred a few years ago at Christmas in a bookstore in New York City. A man who professed to be a bookseller asked me if we had "Martin Chuzzlewit," by Oliver Twist. I got him the book, but the other salesmen, hearing of it, plagued him all day. The next day he asked me for "The Heart of Midlothian," by Scott. I showed him a set from which to take it, but he said, "Oh, you can't catch me; that set is by Mr. Waverley." He called himself a bookseller, while our girls came from notions departments and do not pretend to know the trade. The story you quote also does not compare with a certain well-known publisher of New York who advertised in your paper that he had entered with the Librarian of Congress the assignment of copyright on Ware's "Zenobia," a book published about fifty years ago; he also claims copyright on the works of such authors as Arthur Helps and Mayne Reid.

Some dry-goods stores have as good bookmen in them as any bookstore, and have as good a stock of books as nine out of ten bookstores in the U. S.

ONE WHO KNOWS.

OBITUARY.

ROBERT FARRAN.

WE regret to record the death on December 13, at Surbiton, of Mr. Robert Farran, formerly head of the firm of Griffith, Farran, Okeden & Welsh, of Saint Paul's Churchyard and Charing Cross Road. He had not been actively engaged in business for nearly two years, and his retirement from the firm from June 30, 1888, owing to his prolonged illness, was announced only a few months ago. The son of Major Charles Farran, of the 14th Madras Infantry, he was born in India on January 28, 1829, but was taken to London at a tender age. He received his early education as a bookseller and publisher in the house of W. H. Allen & Co., now of Waterloo Place, but at that time in Leadenhall Street; the training so well begun was completed by a long subsequent engagement with Messrs. Longmans & Co., whom he left to join Mr. Griffith at the corner of St. Paul's Churchyard after the retirement of Mr. Grant in 1856. The high reputation of this old established house for the excellence of its publications and the strict integrity of its transactions was strengthened and enhanced by the influence of Mr. Farran, whose cautious judgment, excellent business aptitude, and courteous kindness won the confidence and esteem of all who were fortunate enough to know him. He took a very keen and active interest in everything that concerned the welfare of the Booksellers' Provident Institution. He was buried on Dec. 17 at Norbiton Cemetery.

MAJOR JAMES FRANKLIN FITTS, the littérateur, lawyer, and soldier-novelist, died at Lockport, N. Y., on the 12th inst., at the age of fifty years. He began his career as a story writer when seventeen. Bullou's Pictorial, The Flag of Our Union, and the New York Weekly published his first short novels and poems. From 1860 to 1870 he wrote for The Galaxy, Beadle's Monthly, Lippincott's Magazine, and various other periodicals. He also wrote for The Youth's Companion, Hearth and Home, and other magazines and papers. His most noted novels were "The Parted Veil," published in Belfora's Magazine for August, 1889, and "A Modern Miracle," published in the Manhattan Series.

WESTLAND MARSTON, the poet and dramatist, died on the 8th inst., aged seventy-one. Among his better-known plays are "The Heart and the World," "Strathmore," "Ann Blake," "A Life's Ransom," "A Hard Struggle," "Pure Gold," "The Wife's Portrait," "Donna Diana," "The Favorite of Fortune," "A Hero of Romance," "Life for Life," and "Under Fire." Among his poems are "The Death Ride at Balaclava" and "Gerald." In 1860 he published a novel called "A Lady in Her Own Right." He was one of the editors of the National Magazine.

S. C. GRIGGS, Jr., son of S. C. Griggs, the well-known publisher of Chicago, died at his father's residence on the 11th inst. Mr. Griggs was for some time connected with literary periodicals in Chicago, and at the time of his death was associated with his father in the publishing business.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

MR. STEAD, who severed his connection with the Pall Mall Gazette, has begun the publication of a new periodical entitled The Review of Reviews.

THE New York Ledger for Jan. 11 has an artistically printed souvenir supplement, giving

Mr. Whittier's poem, "The Captain's Will," with illustrations by Howard Pyle.

BEGINNING with the January number of the Illustrator, the main office of publication hereafter will be in Chicago, Mr. Fleming H. Revell being its publisher from that city, and Minneapolis will only be a branch office.

The Newsdealer is the title of a projected journal to be issued shortly by Warren E. Price, 1203 Market St., San Francisco, Cal., in the interest of newsdealers in the United States. Its ambition is to be "to the newsdealers all that the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is to the bound-book trade."

"THE NEW YORK BANKS" is the title of an article by Richard Wheatley, which will be published, together with elaborate illustrations of the subject, in the February number of Harper's Magazine. In the same issue George William Curtis will discuss New York street cleaning, the electric light problem, and inter-collegiate athletics.

Le Livre has become Le Livre Moderne, and will drop long bibliographical accounts, editorial notices, advertisements of all kinds, etc. In connection with Le Livre a paper which is to be called La Librairie Internationale: Journal de la Publicité du "Livre Moderne" will be started, containing advertisements specially connected with the book trade in all its branches.

WALTER BESANT in the January English Illustrated Magazine takes up the story of the career of the hero and heroine of Ibsen's "Doll House," twenty years after the now famous separation with which that play concludes. Helmer has become a drunkard, one of his sons is a forger. The daughter loves the son of Krogstad (now a man of position), but Krogstad forbids the banns, and the girl drowns herself. All this, we are taught, is Nora's fault.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. WILLIAM SHARP has undertaken to write the volume on Browning for the Great Writers Series.

GEORGE C. GORHAM, who for many years was Secretary of the United States Senate, is at work on his biography of Edwin M. Stanton.

MRS. ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS WARD has finished a novel entitled "Come Forth," which is described as "a love-story full of religious interest, and culminating in the raising of Lazarus." It will be published first through the McClure newspaper syndicate. Her husband, the Rev. H. D. Ward, has nearly finished an historical novel depicting life in Ancient Babylon.

ZOLA's latest work, "La Bête Humaine," will be followed by "L'Argent," which will deal with Bourse speculation and, to a certain extent, with politics. Then will follow "La Guerre," a naturalistic work, treating of the army, the war of 1870, and containing a long dissertation on the surrender of Sedan. The next book will conclude the Rougon-Macquart series, and will describe how all the characters not already killed off will end. As soon as the series is completed, which will be in 1891, M. Zola intends to devote himself exclusively to the stage. He will then be fifty-two years of age, and will confine himself to the production of original plays, that is to say, plays which have not been adapted from his novels.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

JOSEPH MACLEAN, of Philadelphia, not George Maclean, wrote the letter, "The Sale of 'Valuable' Books," printed in our last issue.

MR. HENRY S. ALLEN, well known to the book trade, sailed on the 11th inst., by La Normandie, of the French Line, to spend about six weeks abroad on business, visiting London and Paris.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish this week "The Prayer-Book Reason Why," giving catechetical instruction on the doctrines, usages, holy days, etc., of the Episcopal Church, by the Rev. Nelson R. Boss; also "Pathways to the Church," by the Rev. Geo. W. Shinn, D.D., a brochure intended for wide circulation.

THE closing volume of C. A. Fyffe's "History of Modern Europe" is now in the hands of Cassell & Co. The volume embraces the period from 1848 to 1878, and throws, we understand, considerable light on the complex problems in European politics which led to the Franco-Prussian War.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. announce the following important publications: "Fort Ancient," an account of the great prehistoric earthwork of Warren Co., Ohio, by Warren K. Moorhead, of the Smithsonian Institution; "A History of the Girtys," the curious record of certain "renegades" of the American revolution, by Willshire Butterfield; and "Monographs of the Kentucky Geological Survey," John R. Procter, Director.

WILLIAM HODGE & Co., Glasgow, will shortly publish by subscription a book entitled "Trial by Combat," by George Neilson. The author traces the history of the judicial duel in both England and Scotland; and he claims that, by this comparative treatment, he is enabled to throw light upon many hitherto unexplained features in the law and practice of both countries. In particular, he deals with the duel on the borders under the march laws, and with the famous combat of the clans on the Inch of Perth, in 1396.

W. HEINEMANN, who has been associated with the late firm of Trübner & Co. for the past ten years, commenced business at 21 Bedford St., Strand, on January 1, and will issue at an early date new works by well-known and popular English writers. We also understand that Mr. Heinemann is negotiating for several works by American writers, and that he proposes to issue such works by special arrangement with the authors and publishers here. In his new venture Mr. Heinemann takes with him Mr. Ham. Smith, who has been in the employ of Trübner & Co. for fourteen years past, and who may be known to several of our publishers who have visited the old firm on Ludgate Hill.

THE American Grocer says in reply to a critic on the question of competition: "Free competition means bankrupt, ignorant, malicious, unfair competition. Chicago has recently furnished an instance. A large book-publishing firm failed; its stock was slaughtered, and New York book-buyers are offered a complete set of Dickens' and other authors' works far below the cost of paper, printing, and binding. Books quoted at $18 list are retailed by dry-goods stores at $3.58. The honest, thriving publishers cannot meet such competition. Is it right that thousands of families dependent upon their wages as bookmakers should suffer in order to let a few hundred people have a line of cheap books?"

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

It is desirable to receive copy in shape ready for the printer, viz.: first, headline—name and address—then, titles in separate lines (see below), all written on a separate sheet, or at the bottom of letter, or on postal card. Compliance with this request will secure accurate and prompt insertion.

NEW CHEAP EDITION OF

DODD, MEAD & COMPANY have published, from time to time, limited editions in paper covers of the works of E. P. Roe. All of these have been quickly sold and have entirely disappeared from the market with the exception of three recently published, of which small numbers still remain.

The aggregate sale of these limited editions has reached the large total of about three-quarters of a million copies.

In response to a very general demand, they now announce a limited edition, in a more convenient form, of fourteen of the most popular works of this author, to be well printed and attractively bound, and issued in 12mo size in paper covers, at fifty cents per volume. These will be published as numbers of their Library of Fiction, as follows:

Jan. 15th .....The Earth Trembled.
Feb. 1st.....Young Girl's Wooing.
Feb. 15th .....Opening of a Chestnut Burr.
Mar. 1st.....From Jest to Earnest.
Mar. 15th.....Without a Home.
Apr. 1st.....His Sombre Rivals.
Apr. 15th.....Day of Fate.
May 1st .....Nature's Serial Story.
May 15th.....Face Illumined.
June 1st.....He Fell in Love with His Wife.
June 15th.....Knight of the XIX. Century.
July 1st,.....What Can She Do.
July 15th.....Driven Back to Eden.
Aug. 1st .....Near to Nature's Heart.

These numbers of the Library of Fiction will be strictly limited to 30,000 copies of each, and the entire edition will be sold through the

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 25, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

THE BOOKS OF 1889.

As is often the case, after a year of great productiveness one of comparative inactivity follows. The production of books in the United States in 1888, as shown by the titles recorded in the "Weekly Record" of the Publishers' Weekly, was, next to the year 1886, the largest known in the annals of the publishing trade. Our figures for 1889 show a marked falling off from 1888, only 4014 books having been recorded against 4631 of the previous year, this being 617 books less than in 1888 and 662 less than in our largest year, 1886.

Notwithstanding the great decrease in the total number of books published in 1889, the department of fiction was larger than the previous year, showing 942 books against 874 of 1888. Every other department of current literature testifies to fewer books, but fiction, sad to say, testifies to the reverse. There is no doubt regarding the truthfulness of these figures. Allowing about 450 books as issues of the better class of the best known cheap libraries which we record, the balance must stand for new novels either from American or foreign sources. The larger proportion is, we should say, from American writers—a perfect flood of novels from home authors having marked the year. That the majority of them were characterized by the feeblest indications of talent—not to mention genius—and that many, especially from our women writers, were inspired by a motive so base, and illustrated with details so gross, as to put to the blush many famous French offenders in this line, is putting the case mildly. It is a satisfaction, however, to record, in favor of American sense and morality, that the reaction against this style of literature set in before the close of the year. Several publishers, we understand, with whom the highest idea of their profession does not go beyond a book that sells, checked the demand they had in a measure created, and responded to the almost universal condemnation of the press by refusing to examine any further manuscripts in this line offered them. The ephemeral nature of these novels made publishers resort largely to paper bindings, the year witnessing more books sent out in paper covers than we have ever before known. Many of the covers were pretty and tasteful, and the paper and print generally tolerably good, while the cost was so small as to seem to leave but a small margin of profit. Still it is claimed that many of these paper books have made money for authors as well as publishers—a hopeful indication for the not far distant days, we trust, of international copyright. Paper bindings for all ephemeral literature are growing more and more in favor. They are certainly preferable to the cloth binding for hasty reading, either to hold in the hand or to carry in the pocket or satchel. There is no reason why we should not make our paper bindings as artistic and attractive as the French do theirs.

When we consider the place fiction occupies in the whole number of the books of the year—being almost a fourth of all the books written—it is singular that so few novels of permanent merit were produced. Recently, too, there seems to be in American fiction, no middle point between the passion of the immoral novel and the commonplace colorlessness of the moral one. The same, or even more perhaps, may be said of our poetry. If in the latter America has not a Swinburne, neither do we possess to-day the peer of Longfellow, with his warmth and refined tender glow. In reviewing the imaginative literature of the year, its colorlessness—we find no better word—seems its chief characteristic. Without doubt American life has its tragedy and its romance, and our people are not all the morbid introspective pessimists our novelists delight in picturing them. This baleful, depressing spirit is even invading our juvenile literature, which heretofore has been the richest and most promising of all fields, and we have the sickly, precocious child heroine, born into a vale of tears, dissecting her doll's motives with her first lisp.

The "holiday gift-book" is apparently doomed. The best specimens of the hybrid that came to us this year fell far short of any known standards of artistic book-making. While our faith in photogravure, as one of the best processes for a perfect reproduction of the artist's meaning, remains unshaken, the art is either so imperfectly understood in this country, or so badly handled, as to make caricatures almost of some of the more expensive works upon which we have seen it used. If we had never made fine books, if we knew nothing about book illustrations, these faults might be condoned, but in view of a past of which we may be justly proud, it must candidly be said that the illustrated books of 1889 sink beneath criticism. Whether their badness lessened the demand, or whether they became bad because the demand had ceased, is one of the problems of our publishing trade. But it is generally admitted in the better class of bookstores frequented by the cultured few, that the holiday gift-book was this year a drug in the market. The inquiry was chiefly for good editions of standard or popular works, and this inquiry was fairly met by some excellent issues, in library shape, of well-known, time-tested authors.

Other than these, we recall no striking features of the year. Great books were unknown in any department of literature. Novels from the French were quite numerous, but the literature of other nations was only encroached upon tentatively. Our literature of political and social science, which is generally strong in local color, displays no special bias, unless it be in the direction of our uneven marriage and divorce laws and the inevitable negro.

The table which follows gives in classes the books of 1888 and 1889—the former being offered for comparison.

Of the 4014 books recorded in our "Weekly Record" 2454 were books received at this office, and generally described in a brief note—the balance being titles taken from data sent us by the publisher, or industriously looked up. The large increase of books received, which in spite of the year having fewer books, is larger in proportion to past years, testifies to our increased and improved facilities. The order in which the popular classifications run is, according to the figures, as follows: Fiction, Theology, Biography, Poetry, Fine Art, Political Science, Literary Miscellany, Description, History. According to their real importance the order is frequently reversed.

FICTION.

F. Marion Crawford's two novels, "Sant' Ilario" and "Greifenstein," are among the most notable efforts in American Fiction produced during 1889. In "Sant' Ilario" he again takes up the story of the "Saracinesca," and proves himself a profound and sympathetic student of the remarkable political and social conditions of the Rome of twenty-five years ago. "Greifenstein" is an unusual illustration of a novelist's versatility. If it had come from the pen of a German, it could not be more thoroughly German in character, scenery, sentiment, and even construction. The gloomy grandeur of the Black Forest is the fitting background to a tale of horrors worthy of the Middle Ages. Strong as these novels are in evidences of their author's talents, they are scarcely American novels in the true sense of the term. It is to Mr. W. D. Howells that American readers must turn for realistic pictures of their own lives and conditions. His latest work, "A Hazard of New Fortunes," possesses much of the charm of his earlier works. Its scene is laid in New York, the career of a literary magazine run on a coöperative plan being described with point and humor. "A Little Journey in the World," by Charles Dudley Warner, is a special study of certain phases of American life. The power of wealth to deteriorate even a high-minded, conscientious woman, the unscrupulous methods resorted to in gaining wealth, and the gradual forgetfulness of society's conscience where the possessors of wealth are concerned, is the text of Mr. Warner's sermon. A charming heroine and an interesting love-story cleverly conceal the fact that the novel is a sermon. Bret Harte returned to his old love in "Cressy," one of the not wholly good nor wholly bad heroines of early California days. Though an unsolved puzzle, she is not without fascination. Her grace and beauty are the high lights in a realistic picture of a cruel Southern vendetta. In this group is represented all that the older school of American novelists have produced during the past year.

Lafcadio Hearn, a well-known magazine writer, produced a short novel, "Chita," thrillingly vivid in its descriptive parts. A hurricane which swept Last Island in the Gulf of Mexico, some thirty years ago, is the subject. "The Romance of Dollard" was a surprise from a writer not widely known—Mary Hartwell Catherwood—a heroic episode in the early history of Canada being the basis of a powerful and pathetic story. The author of "Anne" established with that novel the right to respectful consideration. All that she has since written has been eagerly read. "Jupiter Lights" is the name of her last book. Here Miss Constance Fenimore Woolson repeats her favorite theme, the all pardoning, unreasoning love of good women. The scene is Georgia, immediately after the late war. The author of "The Story of Margaret Kent" (Mrs. Ellen Olney Kirk), pleased many readers with "A Daughter of Eve." An unlovely marriage and a disputed will are the leading motives, but the salient points of New York fashionable life are not overlooked.

It is remarkable how many of our novelists seek material outside of their native land. "Passe Rose" is a charming and refined story of the time of Charlemagne. Arthur Sherburne Hardy, the author, is well remembered through "But Yet a Woman" and "The Wind of Destiny." "The Witness of the Sun" is an impassioned story of Italy, by Amélie Rives (Mrs. J. Armstrong Chandler). Blanche Willis Howard in "The Open Door" writes a story of German life and character as perfect as if her studies were made on the spot—as probably they were. "Two Coronets" has the scene laid partly in Italy and partly in New England, but it is essentially an Italian story of a "Montague and Capulet" feud of some fifty years ago. Mary Agnes Tincker, one of our brightest New England women, who has long lived in Italy, is the author. William Waldorf Astor offers a companion picture to his "Valentino" in "Sforza," a story of Milan in the fifteenth century. Mexico a half century ago was studied by Louise Palmer Heaven in writing "Chata and Chinita." The domestic life of the Mexicans is wonderfully well described, and the story of the many revolutions of Mexico vividly presented. Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett went to Spain for "The Pretty Sister of José," a passionate love-tale of Madrid. And although Henry Harland ("Sidney Luska") finishes up his tale of "Grandison Mather" in New York, the opening scenes give a sunny picture of a honeymoon spent in Paris. "In the Time of the Cherry Viewing," a clever trifle, finds a setting in Japan. Margaret Peale—a name unknown to fame—is on the title-page. Admiral David D. Porter illustrates English life in "Arthur Merton." Julia Fletcher, the author of "Kismet," broke through a long silence with "The Truth About Clement Ker." Supernaturalism plays here a strong part in a story of Scotland. Old Japan at the close of the feudal era is the elaborate picture found in Arthur Collins Maclay's "Mito Yashiki." Amelia E. Barr in "Feet of Clay" brings us into close contact with the fisher-folk of the Isle of Man.

Novels that are American both in their subject and authorship and which may be included among the notable books of the year are plentiful enough.

"John Charáxes," issued at first under the pseudonym of "Peter Boylston," was shortly afterwards acknowledged to be the work of George Ticknor Curtis. Besides scenes from the late war, there is an excellent portrait in the hero of a well-known New Yorker, the late S. L. M. Barlow. "Would You Kill Her?" by George Parsons Lathrop, shifts from the historic shores of Otsego Lake to New York. It illustrates the power a vindictive woman often obtains over a good man. "Far in the Forest," by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, is a story of early pioneer days in Northern Pennsylvania. "The Light of Her Countenance," by one of our adopted citizens, H. H. Boyesen, has a New York man and a Western girl for its leading characters, the subject being the familiar one of love. Mrs. Helen Kendrick Johnson gave in "Raleigh Westgate" a poetical romance of Maine. Charles King produced two of his favorite war stories—"Between the Lines," in which the action occurs between the lines of the Northern and Southern armies in August, 1862, and "Laramie," a brilliant story of barracks life and the Sioux war of 1876. Louis Pendleton's "In the Wire-Grass" is a characteristic tale of Georgia, some fifteen years after the Rebellion. "Ogeechee Cross-Firings," by R. M. Johnston, is also of Georgia; the time, however, being before the late war. A story of mistaken identity is cleverly worked out in "Romance of an Alter Ego," from the pen of Lloyd S. Bryce, the talented editor and proprietor of the North American Review. The scene is in Brooklyn. Eleanor Putnam, the late Mrs. Arlo Bates, was amusing in "A Woodland Wooing." Mabel Louise Fuller, a new name in literature, scored a marked success with a gracefully written society novel, "The Aspen Shade." The famous author of "Cape Cod Folks," Sally Pratt McLean, unmistakably imitated Bret Harte's earlier efforts in "Lastchance Junction." "American Coin," a satire on American society, lacked the brilliancy of "Aristocracy," by the same author. Albion W. Tourgée scarcely sustained his reputation as a story-teller in "With Gauge and Swallow, Attorneys." The scene here changes from North to South, the time covering a period antecedent to and during the Rebellion. "Steadfast" is of Connecticut a hundred years ago. The writer is Rose Terry Cooke. "Standish of Standish," by Jane G. Austin, carries the reader back to the time of the Pilgrims. "A Quaker Girl of Nantucket" is a charmingly quaint picture of Nantucket in days gone by. It is the first book, we judge, of the author, Mary Catherine Lee. Life at a fashionable sea-side resort is sharply delineated in "Three Days," by Samuel W. Cooper. "Memoirs of a Millionaire," by Lucia True Ames, although appraised in the guise of fiction, is said to be the biography of a real woman—a wealthy philanthropist of Boston recently dead. It abounds in suggestions upon the leading religious, social, and political questions of the day. "A Blind Bargain," by Robert Howe Fletcher, opens in Washington and presents characters from the United States Navy.

Among the many novels of an immoral tendency from the pens of American writers which marked the year we select two by Edgar Saltus, "The Pace that Kills" and "A Transaction in Hearts" as too important from a literary standpoint to be passed in silence. The author degrades his talents in both in a realistic presentation of unhallowed love and low motive. Edgar Fawcett, one of Mr. Saltus' contemporaries, although showing no trace of the influence of his special literary coterie, falls below his usual high standard in "Miriam Balestier" and "A Demoralizing Marriage." Miss M. G. McClelland offers in "Burkett's Lock" another story of the South far exceeding in artistic finish "Oblivion" and "Princess." "A Splendid Egotist" and "Baldy's Point" are from Mrs. J. H. Walworth; "That Frenchman" and "How I Escaped" from Archibald Clavering Gunter; "Osborne of Arrochar" from Amanda M. Douglas, and "Janus" from Edward I. Stevenson. The latter is a charming musical novel, with German scenes and characters. Mrs. Nathaniel Conklin wrote a typical New England story in "Marigold." Charles L. Marsh in "Opening the Oyster" is fresh and original, telling a plausible story of two gentlemen tramps who visited forty prominent cities of the world. "An I. D. B. in South Africa" relates to the traffic in stolen diamonds that goes on in Zululand. Miss L. V. Sheldon in a former work, "Yankee Girls in Zululand," showed the same intimate knowledge of this little travelled country. "The Working Ten of the King's Daughters," by Elizabeth Greenleaf, is a little book which in the form of a story offers rich suggestions to the members of the Society of "The King's Daughters." Members of the "Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor" will find many helpful thoughts in Mrs. H. M. Lathrop's "Our Town" and Francis E. Clark's "The Mossback Correspondence."

Other American novels which do not call for special characterization but which belong to the history of the year are Mary Abbot's "Alexia;" Selina Dolaro's "Bella-Demonia;" "The Prophet's Mantlet," by Fabian Bland; "Bertha Laycourt," by Edgar C. Blum; "Inside Our Gate," by Christine Chaplin Brush; "The Black Ball," by Ernest De Lancey Pierson; "The Garden of Armida," by Anne Sheldon Coombs; "White Marie," by W. N. Harben; "Frederick Struther's Romance," by Albert Ulmann; "A Nameless Wrestler," by Josephine W. Bates; "Cleopatra's Daughter," by W. Armstrong; "The Wreck of the Greyhound," by C. M. Newell; "Sergeant Von," from the diary of Inspector Byrnes; "Gold that Did not Glitter," by Virginius Dabney; "How They Kept the Faith," by Grace Raymond; "Viera," by Roman I. Zubof; and "Metzerott, Shoemaker." The last-named novel has a strong socialistic tendency.

The year of 1889 was unusually rich in American short stories. Henry James' volume, "A London Life," etc., embraces four of the strongest short stories he has written. They are all character studies of English and American types and delightfully satirical. Bret Harte in "The Heritage of Dedlow Marsh, and other tales," proves anew the vitality of his genius. Few of his stories exceed "Dedlow Marsh" in gloomy weirdness of description. Early life in San Francisco is again his theme. Two of the most popular of our magazine writers, Henry Stillwell Edwards and George H. Jessop, gathered into dainty volumes their recent stories contributed to Harper's and the Century. "Two Runaways, and other stories," by the first-named author, depicts the better and brighter parts of the old Georgia negro in the days of slavery. The characterizations are exquisite, illumined by the indescribable touch of genius. The same may be said of "Gerald French's Friends," by the second-named writer. Our adopted Irish citizens on the Pacific coast are the subjects of Mr. Jessop's pen. He is both pathetic and amusing. His descriptions of some Irish flights of journalism are the very essence of humor. Mr. George W. Cable's "Strange True Stories of Louisiana" have all the old ring. They are a fresh illustration of the proverb that "truth is stranger than fiction." Mary Hallock Foote's "The Last Assembly Ball" is an episode of Leadville, Colorado. Another attractive story, "The Fate of a Voice," is embraced in the volume. Other meritorious collections are included in Edgar Saltus' "A Transient Guest;" Julian Hawthorne's "Constance;" Oliver Bell Bunce's "Story of Happinoland, and other legends;" E. P. Roe's "Taken Alive;" H. H. Boyesen's "Vagabond Tales;" J. Brander Matthew's "A Family Tree;" Theodore Bartlett's "Heart Stories," and Henry Harland's "A Latin-Quarter Courtship."

No distinctively great book appeared during the past year in English Fiction. Many, however, well worth reading were issued, the best of the domestic and unsensational kind finding reproduction in the Leisure Hour Series. One of the earliest numbers of this series was "A Stiff-Necked Generation," by Mrs. L. B. Walford, the author of "Mr. Smith." A typical family of the nobility are delineated under this title, deaths and marriages playing a leading part in the story. Following came "Esther Denison," a strong character study by Adeline Sergeant; "Far Away and Long Ago." an American story of the Berkshire Hills and copyrighted here, but by the well-known Englishwoman, Mrs. Frances Anne Kemble; Mrs. L. B. Walford's "A Sage of Sixteen," with scenes from fashionable London life; Mrs. Annie F. Hector's ("Mrs. Alexander") "A Crooked Path," with a heroine who hides a disinheriting will of a miserly uncle that she may rescue her mother from poverty; and W. E. Norris' "Miss Shafto" and "Mrs. Fenton." These two latter works close the list and are as rich in interest as former novels of the talented author.

R. D. Blackmore's "Kit and Kitty" does not reach his highest level. Sunbury in Middlesex, England, is the scene, the owner of a garden of rare fruit being the leading character. "The Two Chiefs of Dunboy," an Irish romance of the last century by the famous English historian, failed to satisfy the eager interest its first announcement aroused. Robert L. Stevenson's "Master of Ballantrae" is one of the decidedly successful books of the year. Its wealth of startling incidents and its many vivid descriptions illustrate the author's choicest gifts. It is a story of Scotland in the days of the Pretender. In collaboration with Lloyd Osbourne, Mr. Stevenson wrote a second tale, "The Wrong Box," which was copyrighted in this country. Readers found in this work a specimen of his most eccentric and amusing style. "The Reproach of Annesley," by Maxwell Grey, is a somewhat sombre story of a crime in line with "The Silence of Dean Maitland." An unknown English writer is the author of "Lady Bluebeard" and "Zit and Xoe," two novels which are both original and amusing. The Orient forms the background for the first, while the second is a laughable sketch following the Darwinian theory of the prehistoric man. By another anonymous writer are "Thoth" and "A Dreamer of Dreams." "Thoth" is a strange story of Athens in the days of Pericles; "A Dreamer of Dreams" is a sermon on the opium habit. S. Baring-Gould sent out three characteristic novels. "The Pennycomequicks," a story of Yorkshire, is delightfully humorous, though it also possesses a tragic element; "John Herring" is located in the west of England among the miners; and "Mehalah" deals also with life in western England, but near the salt-marshes. Three novels by Walter Besant were extremely popular and readable. They were "The Lament of Dives," "The Bell of St. Paul's," and "For Faith and Freedom." The second deals with the subject of heredity, the third with the persecution of the Nonconformists in England during the seventeenth century. "Lady Car," a sequel to "The Ladies Lindores," is in line with Mrs. M. O. W. Oliphant's other novels. "The Little Pilgrim—further experiences," continues her story of "The Little Pilgrim" in the unseen world. "A Hardy Norseman" and "Derrick Vaughan" evince the same high ethical purpose as Edna Lyall's previous novels. B. L. Farjeon added two new books to the many which bear his name, "The Peril of Richard Pardon" and "Toilers of Babylon." H. Rider Haggard continued the history of Allan Quatermain, who figured in "She," in "Allan's Wife," and wrote a glowing tale of old Egypt in "Cleopatra." Marvellous adventures on the high seas were again the subject of W. Clark Russell's latest stories—"An Ocean Tragedy" and "Marooned." London literary society is cleverly satirized by D. Christie Murray in "The Weaker Vessel." He also wrote "A Dangerous Catspaw" and "Wild Darrie" in partnership with Henry Herman. Justin Huntly McCarthy put his name to one novel, "Lily Lass," a vigorous sketch of the Irish uprising of 1848. Justin McCarthy and Mrs. Campbell Praed are the sponsors for "The Ladies' Gallery," in which may be found equally graphic pictures of life in the Australian bush and in the political vortex of London. Ouida's "Guilderoy" again paints the wicked syren of high life and abounds in marital infidelities. Miss Braddon's "The Day Will Come" is a detective story in which a murderer is successfully unearthed. F. Anstey Guthrie produced "The Pariah," G. Manville Fenn "Commodore Junk," and Frances Mary Peard a charming tale of London society, "The Country Cousin." William Westall's only novel was "Birch Dene," a realistic picture of the cruelties practised in the cotton-spinning trade in the early days of the century. Grant Allen's "The Tents of Shem" is as odd as anything he has written; its scene is in Algeria. "Such is Life," by May Kendall, achieved a flattering success. "The Career of a Nihilist," by "Stepniak," culminates with the assassination of the Tzar Alexander I. "Passion's Slave" is by R. Ashe King, the author of "The Wearing of the Green." Caroline Fothergill carries her heroine in "Diana Wentworth" to Prussia, and Mrs. Comyns Carr's heroine, "Margaret Malliphant," who also gave title to the book, lives and loves in beautiful Sussex.

Quite a number of unknown names appear upon some of the most successful English novels of 1889. Specially we would quote "The Phantom Future," by H. Seton Merriman, and J. M. Barrie's "When a Man's Single." Both novels are notably fresh in scenes and characters, and betray an intimate knowledge of English literary life. To this same group belongs George Gissing's "The Nether World," a novel, strongly in sympathy with the London poor; "Fraternity;" "The Awakening of Mary Fenwick," by Beatrice Whitby; "Micah Clarke," by A. Conan Doyle, a story of the Roundheads and Covenanters; "Mistress Beatrice Cope," a tender, romantic tale of the days of the Stuarts, by M. E. Le Clerc; "The Son of a Star," carrying the reader back to Western Britain when the country was a province of Rome, the author being B. Ward Richardson; "The Story of Helen Davenant," by Violet Fane; "Uncle Piper of Piper's Hill," an Australian novel, by "Tasma;" and "Through Love to Life," by Gillan Vase.

Other English novels which should not go unnoted are: "Giraldi," by Ross G. Dering; "The Fog Princes," by Florence Warden; "A Lost Wife" and "The Cost of a Lie," by Mrs. H. Lovett Cameron; "French Janet," by Sarah Tytler; "The Englishman of the Rue Caïn," by H. F. Wood; "A Fair Emigrant," by Rosa Mulholland; "Adrian Lyle," by Mrs. Otto Booth; "The Fatal Phryne," by F. C. Phillips and C. T. Wills; "A Life's Remorse," by the "Duchess;" "Life's Long Battle Won," by Edward Garrett; "The Cunning Woman's Grandson," by Charlotte M. Yonge; "That Other Woman," by Annie Thomas; "Julian Karlake's Secret," by Mrs. J. Hodder Needell; and "The Wing of Azrael," by Mrs. Mona Caird. A fine new library edition of Thackeray's complete works and of Warren's "Ten Thousand a Year" should not be overlooked among notable publications of this class.

The principal translations made in fiction during the past year are mostly from the French and German. In French the number is even larger than in German. Firstly are Katharine Prescott Wormeley's fine literary translations of Balzac. The latest works with which she has made American readers acquainted are "Bureaucracy," "Louis Lambert," and "Seraphita." Guy de Maupassant is represented by two works, "The Odd Number" and "The Two Brothers" (Pierre et Jean). The first is a charming collection of short stories, the second a novel rather French in tone but quite beautiful in its illustrations. "The Apostate," by Ernest Daudet, is a strong novel of the Second Empire. Alphonse Daudet's "The Immortal," a brilliant satire upon the Académie Française, is one of his most recent efforts. It excited considerable attention with American readers. Daudet's "Jack" and "Artists' Wives," in new and appropriate dresses, found a new circle of admirers. "Madame de Maurescamp," by Octave Feuillet, a story of Parisian life, is quite unlike previous works from his pen. "My Cousin, Miss Cinderella," is a pretty little love-tale from the French of Leon de Tinsseau. "Near to Happiness" abounds in scenes from domestic life and the Franco-Prussian war. "Nikanor" is a story of Russia by Madame Henry Greville. "The Confessions of an Abbé," by Louis Ulbach, is the story of a priest who broke his vows. "Antoinette," by Georges Ohnet, has the scene laid in Normandy. "Dr. Rameau," by the same author, portrays a great physician who is an atheist, but who through suffering becomes a believer. "A Love Match," by Ludovic Halévy, embraces several pretty tales. "A Happy Find," by Mme. Gagnebin, is a simple, happy story of French country life. Jules Verne is rivalled in "Babylon Electrified," a romance of marvellous adventure, by A. Bleunard. "My Uncle Barbasson," by Mario Uchard, and "Valentine," by Leon Gozlan, are both novels of questionable morality. François Coppée's "Henriette" is an unsensational story of Corsica. Handsome library editions were published of De Vigny's "Cinq-Mars," Dumas' "Monte Cristo" and "Marguerite de Valois," and of George Sand's "Consuelo."

The translations from the German included four novels of Bertha Behrens, better known under her pen-name of W. Heimbürg. They are all purely domestic in plot and incidents, and have been quite popular. Their names are: "Gertrude's Marriage," "Lora," "Magdalen's Fortunes," and "Two Daughters of One Race." Ernst Eckstein's "Nero" is a wonderful portrait of the profligate Roman Emperor. A charming tale of old Nuremberg in the 15th century is offered in Ebers' "Margery," and Mrs. Wister adds another notable work to her delightful list of German translations with Werner's "Alpine Fay." Hauff's "Wine-Ghosts of Bremen" was translated anew by E. Sadler and C. R. L. Fletcher. "Countess Lorely," by Rudolf Menger, "Erlach Court," by Ossip Schubin, "Lace," by Paul Lindau, and "Sought and Found," by Golo Raimund, are all genuine love-tales of Germany and the Germans.

From the Portuguese came a famous novel, "Dragon's Teeth," by Eça de Queiros, telling with the minuteness of a Balzac of a sin and its consequences. There was a new translation directly from the Russian made of Tolstol's "War and Peace" by Nathan Haskell Dole.

THEOLOGY AND RELIGION.

Although rich in numbers, the department of THEOLOGY AND RELIGION, like that of Fiction, contains few works that attracted widespread attention. From American religious writers the contributions were chiefly studies of the different books of the Old and New Testaments, and volumes of sermons that had first been heard in various congregations, and which are colored by the belief of the speaker. The Rev. James Stalker and several others treated the character of Jesus Christ from a fresh standpoint. Dr. Stalker's "Imago Christi" presents him chiefly as an ethical teacher—as a perfect example for imitation he is shown in the home, the state, the church, etc. "Emmanuel," by William Forbes Cooley, is the story of the Messiah bound together by a slight thread of fiction. Rev. R. B. Cook also contributed a "Story of Jesus." In textual criticisms of the books of the Old Testament, "The Lily Among Thorns," by the Rev. William Elliott Griffis, who is also known as the author of a charming book of travels—"The Mikado's Empire"—probably takes the leading place. It will be ranked among the most poetical and scholarly studies of Solomon's "Song of Songs" yet produced. The Book of Job excited the special interest of George H. Gilbert and Edward B. Latch. The one writes of "The Poetry of Job," the other of "Indications of the Book of Job." Both are from a layman's point of view and consequently unconventional and at times unexpected in their reasoning. The first volume of a useful compilation, "Scriptures, Hebrew and Christian," telling the story of the Old Testament from the creation to the exile, was issued in 1886. During the past year the second volume came to us under the title of "Hebrew Literature." Young students, for whom the series was prepared by Dr. Bartlett and John P. Peters, will find it an excellent aid in making the acquaintance of the Scriptures. The last volume carries the narrative through the time of Ezra, giving the dramatic stories of Ruth, Elijah, Jonah, Daniel, and Esther. Dr. Charles S. Robinson's "From Samuel to Solomon" comprises twenty-nine sermons on the pictorial Biblical characters of the period, and his "Simon Peter" represents a series of discourses on the life and times of this old disciple. Volume I. of Drs. Terry's and Newhall's "Commentary on the Old Testament" covers Genesis and Exodus. The Rev. A. C. Kendrick published a "Commentary on the Epistle to the Hebrews." The Rev. Louis R. Dunn points out "The Gospel in the Book of Numbers," a book rich in prophecy and illustration of the historical Christ. A work representing many years of laborious research in New Testament reading is from the pen of the Rev. Marvin R. Vincent, the pastor of the Church of the Covenant in New York City. The title of the whole work is "Word Studies in the New Testament." The second volume issued during 1889 relates to "The Writings of John—the Gospel, the Epistles, the Apocalypse." It is a scholarly study of the original meaning and color of significant words and phrases, and is invaluable to English readers and students. The teachings of the Epistle of James is adapted to men's everyday surroundings by the Rev. Charles F. Deems, of the Church of the Strangers, in "The Gospel of Common-Sense." The discourses are popular and marked by the broadest charity. His name also appears as editor of the 6th series of "Christian Thought"—lectures and papers on philosophy, Christian evidences, etc. "The Authorship of the Fourth Gospel, and other critical essays," selected from the unpublished papers of the late Ezra Abbot, embody results of the highest value to students of the New Testament. "Our Christian Heritage," by Cardinal Gibbons, is a strong indication of the present broadening of religious thought. Here a priest of the Church of Rome claims fellowship with all who believe in Jesus Christ, and aims to show that the fundamental truths of Christianity are susceptible of being demonstrated by our unaided reason. "Belief," by George Leonard Cheney, is a Unitarian's effort in the same line to find a universal basis upon which Christian people may kneel together. Prof. Charles A. Briggs in "Whither" adds a Presbyterian's protest against the doctrinal divisions among Christians. Dr. James McCosh took a stand against the proposed revision of the "standards" of the Presbyterian Church in a review of Dr. Briggs' work, under the name of "Whither? O Whither? Tell Me Where." Dr. Philip Schaff's "Progress of Religious Freedom as Shown in the History of Toleration Acts" may also be considered a contribution to this subject, as it forms with his "Church and State in the United States" a brief history of religious liberty in Europe and America. One of the most successful attempts to interpret the theory of evolution in harmony with Evangelical Christianity is offered in the Rev. Myron Adams' "The Continuous Creation." The reverend author is pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church of Rochester. "The Way," by John F. Weir, dwells upon the general teaching of revelation as pointing the way to salvation. "The Church in Modern Society," by Rev. Julius H. Ward, suggests a closer union of the church and society, demonstrating where lies the work of the former.

Works in philosophy and ethics, bordering upon religion, are necessarily grouped in this department. "The Beginning of Ethics," by Rev. Carroff Cutler, is simply a guide pointing out the principles by which we should live. "Ethical Religion," by W. MacIntire Salter, includes lectures delivered before the Society for Ethical Culture, of Chicago. They are practical and moral, and designed for men and women who are in the midst of the stress of life. "First and Fundamental Truths," by Dr. James McCosh, is in harmony with the two preceding works, being an inquiry into the nature of first principles. The Rev. Charles Woodruff Shields' "Philosophia Ultima" was enriched by a second volume treating of "The History of the Sciences and the Logic of the Sciences." Like the first volume it is wonderfully comprehensive and betrays a wide research.

"Signs of Promise," by the Rev. Lyman Abbott, comprises the sermons preached by Mr. Beecher's successor in Plymouth pulpit from 1887 to 1889. "Christ and His Teachings" forms the second volume of selections from the sermons of the late Alexander G. Mercer, D.D. Bishop Harris, of Michigan, gathered together some of his sermons referring to the conditions of everyday life under the title of "The Dignity of Man." Sermons by Rev. L. H. Reid are called "Believing and Doing." The subject of the Bishop Paddock lectures for 1889 was "Diabolology." The Rev. E. H. Jewett was the lecturer. The late pastor of the old South Church, Boston, the Rev. Jacob Merrill Manning, had some of his best efforts issued simply as "Sermons." "Christian Manliness, and other sermons," are by John Rhey Thompson, D.D. "The Immanent God, and other sermons," were preached in California by Abraham W. Jackson. They are both liberal and devout. "Living Questions" is a book of thoughtful sermons by Warren Hathaway, the pastor of Blooming Grove Congregational Church, Washingtonville, N. Y. "God in Nature and Life" is a volume of selections from the sermons and writings of the late Walter R. Brooks, pastor, from 1858 to 1873, of the Baptist Church in Hamilton, N. Y. That we shall see and know each other in the hereafter is the belief set forth in "Recognition After Death," by Dr. J. Aspinwall Hodge. "The Struggle for Immortality," by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, is a book of peculiar interest to thoughtful readers. Religious work among the heathen is considered in "The Great Value and Success of Foreign Missions," by Rev. John Liggins, and "Foreign Missions, Their Place in the Pastorate, in Prayer, in Conferences," by A. C. Thompson. The first series of "Lectures on the Augsburg Confession on the Holman Foundation," delivered in the Theological Seminary of the General Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, Gettysburg, Pa., between 1866 and 1886, is a thick volume rich in discourses on many doctrinal points, by many different lecturers.

Practical papers gathered from the Sunday-School Times, the contributions of its editor, Mr. H. Clay Trumbull, appear as "Principles and Practice," in six little volumes. Sunday-school workers may seek aid in "The Church School and the Sunday-School Normal Guide," by John H. Vincent. "Seed Thoughts for Workers in His Name," by Annie Darling, is also helpful and practical. An admirable manual for Christian workers is C. W. Bibb's "Polished Stones and Sharpened Arrows," a collection of Scripture texts and illustrations. "The Liberal Christian Ministry," by J. T. Sunderland, is designed to win young men to a calling the author believes worthy of their careful attention. "Current Discussions in Theology," by the professors of Chicago Theological Seminary (v. 6.) is a most careful summary of the theological literature for the year, duly classified and characterized.

"Aryan Sun-Myths" shows the origin of religions. "Old Heroes" is a monograph upon the Hittites of the Bible by Dr. J. N. Fraden-burgh. "Beacon-Lights of the Reformation," by Dr. Robert F. Sample, contains seventeen lectures on the life and times of Wycliff, Savonarola, Luther, and others. "Supernatural Revelation," by Dr. C. M. Mead, is an essay concerning the basis of the Christian faith. "Christian Theism, its claims and sanctions," was discussed by D. B. Purinton. "Unto the Uttermost," by James M. Campbell, is rich in hope in the divine promises.

The following works also are worth mention, and are sufficiently explained by their titles: "Facts About the Salvation Army," by Nora Marks; "The Bible and Modern Thought," by George H. Emerson; "The Sacramental Teaching of the Lord's Prayer," by Rev. E. A. Larabee; "The Bible View of the Jewish Church," by Rev. Howard Crosby; "Saturday Afternoon, or, conversations for the culture of the Christian life," by Dr. Wayland Hoyt; "Readings in Church History," by Dr. James S. Stone, and "Aryas, Semites and Jews, Jehovah and the Christ," by Lorenzo Burge, tracing the spiritual progress of the world.

English theologians produced many exegetical works. The best of them were made known to us through reprints or importations. "The Sermon Bible," of which the first volume was published in 1888, is a most valuable series for the clergyman's library. It represents the essence of the best homiletic literature of this generation. Two additional volumes were published in 1889, the one covering, "I. Kings to Psalm lxxvi.," the other running from "Psalm lxxvi. to Song of Solomon." Like the first volume they are a mine of wealth to the Biblical student. Dr. Joseph Parker's "People's Bible," a series of discourses upon the Holy Scripture, is another practical aid of great importance. The 10th and 11th volumes were issued in 1889, covering "II. Chronicles xxi.-Esther" and "The Book of Job." Dr. Parker's treatment of the latter book is admirable. His many apt illustrations, his vigorous logic and fertile conceptions, easily place him in the highest rank of Biblical expositors. In the series known as The Expositor's Bible six new volumes of critical commentary were included, each one of which is a testimony to the author's research and scholarship. Their names are "The Book of Revelation," by William Mulligan, D.D.; "The Epistles of St. John," by Dr. William Alexander; "The First Epistle to the Corinthians," by Dr. Marcus Dods; "The Epistle to the Galatians," by the Rev. G. G. Findlay; the first volume of "The Book of Isaiah" (in 2 v.), by the Rev. George Adam Smith, and "The Pastoral Epistles," by Dr. Alfred Plummer. Naturally following here is the Rev. Jos. S. Exell's "Biblical Illustrator." The latest issue, devoted to the "Gospel of St.

Luke," which will require two volumes, is a rare collection of anecdotes, similes, illustrations, and so on, gathered from a wide range of home and foreign literature on the verses of the Bible. The Men of the Bible Series leans as much to criticism and exposition as to biography, and belongs to this group of helpful theological works. The additions to it were: "The Kings of Israel and Judah," by George Rawlinson; "Jesus Christ, the Divine Man," by J. F. Vallings; "David, His Life and Times," by Rev. William J. Deane; "Daniel," by H. Deane; and "Jeremiah," by Dr. T. K. Cheyne. The late Charles Reade's realistic studies of Nehemiah, Jonah, David, and St. Paul, offered in "Bible Characters," may be mentioned here, and the recent volume of "Nisbet's Theological Library" on "The Gospel According to St. Paul," by Dr. J. Oswald Dykes. Supplementing this valuable collection of reference works are the Epochs of Church History, the new volumes of which discussed "The Arian Controversy" and "The Counter-Reformation," the authors being severally H. M. Gwatkin and Adolphus William Ward. The Rev. Canon Farrar's "Sketches of Church History in Biography," representing two volumes of Lives of the Fathers, was a work of an entirely popular character. "The Bible and Modern Discoveries," by Henry A. Harper, was notably broad and informing. Sir J. W. Dawson's "Modern Science in Bible Lands" is in the same line. "New Notes for Bible Readings," by S. R. Briggs, is a work of a popular character, by an Englishman who spent the greater part of his life in this country. Such special books or epochs of the Bible as found critical study may be seen in the following group: "Lectures on the Book of Revelation," by W. Lincoln; "A Critical and Grammatical Commentary on St. Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians," by the Rev. Dr. Charles J. Ellicott, Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, England; "The Gospel of the Kingdom of Heaven," a course of lectures on the Gospel of St. Luke, by F. Denison Maurice; and "The Kingdom of God, or, Christ's teachings according to the synoptical gospels," by Dr. A. B. Bruce.

Sermons and religious discourses came from all denominations. The late Dr. John Ker, one of the most eminent divines of the Scotch Protestant Church, was recalled to the memory of his friends by a volume of "Lectures on the History of Preaching," representing his work in that direction in the Theological Seminary of the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland, just before his death in 1886. The Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon's "Second Series of Lectures to My Students" are admirable expositions of his special methods of exhortation. The popular evangelist's name appeared on many volumes of sermons during the year—such as "The Lord and the Leper,"

"Twelve Sermons on the Resurrection," "According to Promise," "All for Grace," "Twelve Soul-Winning Sermons," "Twelve New Year's Sermons," and "Twelve Christmas Sermons." "Spurgeon's Gold" is a selection of gems from his works, and Spurgeon's "Salt-Cellars," the first volume reaching to N of an alphabetical collection of proverbs, with homely notes thereon. Canon Farrar's "Sermons" were included in "The Contemporary Pulpit Library." "Voices of the Spirit," by Dr. George Matheson, is a volume of helpful meditations on the spiritual life. "The Incarnation as a Motive-Power" by the Rev. William Bright, Canon of Christ Church, Oxford, is a series of sermons whose purpose is explained by the title. The Canon of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, the Rev. H. S. Holland, gathered twelve of his most eloquent efforts together under the name of "On Behalf of Belief." Other sermons worth noting are George MacDonald's "Unspoken Sermons, Third Series;" Dr. Alexander Russell's "The Light that Lighteth Every Man;" and the Rev. Andrew Murray's "The Spirit of Christ." "Living Voices of Living Men" is the 2d series of practical sermons by bishops and clergy of the Protestant Episcopal Church for family and lay reading. They are twenty-nine in number, and by as many different divines. The Gifford lectures delivered before the University of Glasgow in 1888 had for their subject "Natural Religion," the eminent writer and scientist, F. Max Müller being the lecturer.

"The Petrine Claims" is an important controversial work. It represents a corrected re-issue of a series of articles contributed by Dr. R. F. Littledale to the Church Quarterly Review from 1878 to 1884. They form a searching critical inquiry into the claims of the Papacy to sovereign authority over the Church Universal. "Christian Doctrine Harmonized and Its Rationality Vindicated" (2 v.), by the Rev. John Steinfort Kedney, is well worth examination. Papers by Dr. Henry Wace, Prof. Thomas H. Huxley, the Bishop of Peterborough, and others, first published in The Nineteenth Century and Fortnightly Review, made an exceptionally interesting volume under the name of "Christianity and Agnosticism"—the controversy being ably sustained on both sides. The Duke of Argyll repeated Pilate's inquiry, "What is Truth?" in a brief address delivered to the Students' Representative Council of the University of Edinburgh, on the 22d of February, 1889. The address was thought worthy of publication. A little story by Barton Lee, called "Thomas Hard, Priest," is really a sermon in disguise against intolerance. A speculative work trenching upon the "occult" sciences came from the pen of the late Laurence Oliphant, being the final literary effort of his life, and so strongly colored with his latter belief in spiritualism and supernaturalism as to be difficult to classify. As a so-called contribution to "Scientific Religion," we make a place for it in this department. "Indian Life, Religious and Social," is a collection of graphic papers on Orientalism by John Campbell Oman.

In French theology we had the 2d volume of Ernest Rénan's picturesque "History of the People of Israel," from the reign of David up to the capture of Samaria. Dr. Godet's "Studies on the Epistles," also from the French, gives a vivid picture of the early churches in their trials and triumphs. Dr. Godet is a Swiss Protestant of rare eloquence, as is also Dr. Adolphe Monod, of the Reformed church of Paris. A little book from the latter on "The Childhood of Jesus" will prove rarely interesting to young people. The sermons of the Rev. Francis Hunolt, from the German, filled several new volumes.

BIOGRAPHY.

The classification of BIOGRAPHY, MEMOIRS AND CORRESPONDENCE is generally a rich one in numbers and in works of general interest. During 1889 the figures fell below the two previous years, but the notable additions were still comparatively large. The third and fourth volumes in the life of the great abolitionist "William Lloyd Garrison" concluded one of the most important biographies in American literature. The period covered is from 1841 to 1879, the narrative being strongly political, dealing as it does with the first steps of the anti-slavery movement, the war, and the final triumph of the cause. One of the most picturesque figures in American literary history is recalled by the "Correspondence of John Lothrop Motley." George William Curtis is the editor of this charming volume, and he appears to have done his work exceptionally well. These letters were written mainly to his family, but the strong public interest they possess is made manifest throughout. The accomplished historian is seen in every page. Though lacking the literary quality and the artistic roundness which mark the experienced littérateur, "Herndon's Lincoln" stands as one of the strongest books of the year. Its very crudeness is a testimony to its truth, and that it is one of the most truthful pictures yet painted of the great Lincoln is generally believed. Certainly as a foundation for the future biographer it embraces a most valuable and remarkable Lincolniana. "Louisa May Alcott, her life, letters, and journal," edited by Mrs. Ednah D. Cheney, belongs to a class of popular biography that every one reads and no one criticises. Its subject will ever live in the memory of American readers as one of their most beloved writers. "The Life of Harriet Beecher Stowe," compiled from her letters and journals by her son, the Rev. Charles E. Stowe, was warmly welcomed. The world-renowned author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will never cease to find an admiring audience. "The Life-Work of the Author of Uncle Tom's Cabin" is the title of a second biography of the same subject from the pen of Florine Thayer McCray.

American Religious Leaders is the title of a new biographical series begun during the past year. "Jonathan Edwards" was its first issue. Prof. Alexander V. G. Allen succeeded in reproducing an excellent portraiture of Edwards as a man and theologian from his books and treatises. The second issue was "Wilbur Fisk," by Dr. George Prentice, treating with rare breadth and wisdom the career and character of the eminent Methodist divine. The American Statesmen Series received two contributions, "George Washington," by Henry Cabot Lodge, and "Benjamin Franklin," by Thomas T. Morse, Jr. In spite of the many lives that have been written of Washington, Mr. Lodge's work attracted a special interest. It is neither the soldier nor the statesman of whom he makes a picture, but the man, full of faults and weaknesses, and yet so intensely human. George Bancroft's "Martin Van Buren" is in line with the former works. It relates chiefly to Van Buren's political career, and was written by Mr. Bancroft during Van Buren's life, who pronounced it authentic and fair. "Life of General Lafayette," by Bayard Tuckerman (2 v.), is another impartial biography of a man who has suffered as much from the exaggerated praise of his friends as from the bitter attacks of his enemies.

The stage is represented by two works, "Memories of Fifty Years," by J. Lester Wallack, and "Edwin Forest," by Gabriel Harrison. "Emerson in Concord" is a brief memoir of Ralph Waldo Emerson prepared by his son for the "Social Circle" in Concord, Mass. "Glimpses of Fifty Years" is the autobiography of the celebrated President of the Woman's Temperance Association, Frances E. Willard. The beautiful lives of three venerable members of the Society of Friends are recounted in Rufus M. Jones' "Eli and Sybil Jones" and in "Extracts from the Journal of Elizabeth Drinker." Elizabeth Drinker belonged to another century and had much that is amusing to read of the life of her day. The old Knickerbocker life of fifty years ago is described in "The Diary of Philip Hone, 1828-1851." Politically and socially Mr. Hone was a prominent man. His diary is rich in reminiscences. "Great Senators of the United States Forty Years Ago," by Oliver Dyer, tells its own story. "Great Leaders," compiled by George T. Ferris, offers over eighty graphic pen portraits of as many famous men selected from the great historians. "Living Leaders of the World" is a similar work, relating to men of to-day.

A marvellous life-story is contained in Dr. Safford's "Hosea Ballou," a New England Universalist minister born in the last years of the past century. Congregationalism in its early days in Illinois and Indiana is the background to the biography of "Asa Turner," by Dr. George F. Magoun. "Personal Recollections of Pardee Butler" is a thrilling chapter of early Kansas history. A kindred theme is found in Hermann von Holst's "John Brown." "Life and Services of John D. Philbrick" eulogizes a well-known New Englander. "James Nelson Burnes," late a Representative in Congress from Missouri, had his life written by his private secretary, Edward W. De Knight. "Authors at Home," by J. L. and J. B. Gilder, contains papers on twenty-seven American writers. "Great Captains," by Theodore Ayrault Dodge, relates as much to the art of war as to some of the great leaders. An exquisitely gotten up life of "Barye," the noted French sculptor, was prepared by Charles De Kay. "The Letters of the Duke of Wellington to Miss J." must be treated as an American book, as the editor, Mrs. Christine Terhune Herrick, claims that the letters were found in America and first published here. Some doubts have been cast upon the genuineness of the book—the Iron Duke's part of it being superlatively silly. A charming volume that is altogether and undisguisedly fiction is "An Author's Love." It is said to be from the pen of a brilliant American woman, Miss Elizabeth Balch, who aims to supply the other side of the correspondence of Prosper Mérimée's Lettres à une inconnue. As an exquisite specimen of the epistolary art, we quote the volume here. Champlin's and Apthorp's "Cyclopedia of Music and Musicians" was completed by the second and third volumes.

The reprints and importations in this department from English sources are mostly works of intrinsic value. Early in the year a second volume was published of "My Autobiography and Reminiscences," by W. P. Frith. It is marked by numerous anecdotes and personal details of well-known literary men and women of a few decades back. "Portraits of Friends," by John Campbell Shairp, is a loyal tribute of friendship to many noted men. A condensed "Life of Samuel Wilberforce, Bishop of Oxford and Winchester," by his son, met a popular demand. A new edition, brought down to date, of Robertson's "Life and Times of the Right Hon. John Bright," was issued after this noted statesman's death in March, 1889. "A Collection of Letters of Dickens, 1833-1870," selected from the three-volume edition, was designed for general readers. "Letters of the Late Edward Bulwer, Lord Lytton, to His Wife," excited wonder that so great a genius could write such unmitigated nonsense.

The Famous Women Series added two more celebrities to its ranks, "Saint Theresa of Avila" and "Jane Austen." The author of the first is Mrs. Bradley Gilman, of the second, Mrs. Charles Malden. The International Statesmen Series gained three additions: Dunlop's "Life of Henry Grattan," Arthur Hassell's "Life of Viscount Bolingbroke," and F. C. Montague's "Life of Sir Robert Peel." Great Explorers and Explorations Series had as its initial volume "A Life of John Davis, the Navigator," by C. R. Markham. The World's Workers, another new series, "Dr. Arnold of Rugby," by Rose E. Selfe. English Men of Fiction included popular biographies of "Wellington," by George Hooper, of "Lord Lawrence," by Sir Richard Temple, and of "Monk," by Julian Corbett. Twelve English Statesmen Series was represented by James Gairdner's "Henry the Seventh." In the Great Writers' Series were Nevinson's "Life of Friedrich Schiller," Sharp's "Life of Heinrich Heine," Courtney's "Life of John Stuart Mill," and Rolleston's "Life of Gotthold Ephraim Lessing." "John G. Patton," a missionary to the New Hebrides, wrote his autobiography. "Lady Missionaries in Foreign Lands" had their trials pictured by Mrs. E. R. Pitman, and "Samuel Crowther, Bishop of the Niger," had the details of his career put into book-form by Jesse Page. The last two mentioned works belong to the Missionary Biography Series. Among standard library works mostly imported in small editions may be named: "The Life of Richard Steele," by George A. Aitken (2 v.); "Caroline Schlegel and Her Friends," by Mrs. Alfred Sidgwick; "Mary Howitt, an autobiography" (2 v.); "The Life of William Wordsworth," by William Knight (3 v.); "The Life of Lord John Russell," by Spencer Walpole (2 v.); "Father Damien," by Edward Clifford; "Letters of General Gordon to His Sister, M. A. Gordon;" "Daniel O'Connell's Correspondence" (2 v.); "Life of Lamartine," by Lady Margaret Domville; "Horace Walpole's Letters" (2 v.); "Fanny Burney and Her Friends;" "Clavers, the Despot's Champion," a Scots biography, Graham of Claverhouse; and several new volumes in Leslie Stephen's "Dictionary of National Biography."

The sensation of the year in biography came from the French. The journal of "Marie Bashkirtseff" created a profound interest in a most remarkably gifted personality. "Thiers," by Paul de Rémusat, belongs to the Great French Writers Series. "Recollections of a Literary Man" are charming pen portraits and autobiographical sketches by Alphonse Daudet. From the Italian of Leader and Marcotti was translated a life of the celebrated soldier of fortune, "Sir John Hawkwood," and from the German Froebel's "Autobiography."

HISTORY.

The majority of the historical works are American in author and subject, but few reprints or importations being shown in this line. Prof. John Fiske's "Beginnings of New England" is an admirable sketch of the circumstances which attended the settlement of New England. The volume represents the substance of the lectures originally given at Washington University, St. Louis, in May, 1887, by Prof. Fiske, in the course of his duties as University Professor of American History. New light is shed upon early Western history by Theodore Roosevelt's "Winning of the West" (2 v.). The work is based upon papers found in the archives of the American Government and gives an absolutely new aspect to, and in many cases completely reverses, the current accounts of the Indian fighting which marked our early occupation of the Western lands. "Fifty Years on the Mississippi," by E. W. Gould, is a succinct history of river navigation and the introduction of steam. "Recollections of Mississippi and Mississippians" gives in autobiographic form the reminiscences of the Hon. Reuben Davis of life in the South for the half century before the Civil War. Mr. Eli Thayer in "A History of the Kansas Crusade" aimed to show by what agency Kansas was made a free State. For the first time his scheme of assisted emigration is fully and truthfully told. Several important histories of the United States, in which the matter was freshly treated in the light of recent researches, were given to students. The first two volumes of Mr. Henry Adams' "History of the United States of America" are devoted to the first administration of Thomas Jefferson. They present a masterly review of the great political, financial, and international questions which agitated the country at that period. The work, when complete, will embrace the two administrations of Jefferson and the two following of Madison. "The United States, Its History and Constitution," by Alexander Johnston, is a lucid, scholarly, and succinct narrative of the history of the United States from the earliest discoveries down to the present time. George Ticknor Curtis finished the first volume of his "Constitutional History of the United States from the Declaration of Independence to the Close of the Civil War." This first volume is chiefly a revision of a former work under a similar title, but the continuation of the work in the second volume will be wholly new. The 4th volume of James Schouler's "History of the United States Under the Constitution" was issued, covering the years 1831-1847. "The Birth of the Republic," compiled by Daniel R. Goodloe, is a valuable work of reference to the student of American history. Justin Winsor's comprehensive "Narrative and Critical History of America" was completed by the publication of the 7th and 8th volumes.

Hubert Howe Bancroft's apparently unending "History of the Pacific States of North America" was enriched by several exhaustive volumes on special States. V. 11, being the second volume of "Texas," tells the story of the growth of that State during 1801 to 1809; v. 12 relates to "Arizona and New Mexico, 1530-1888," and is one of the most important and interesting volumes of the series; v. 21 is a history of "Utah, 1540-1886," or rather of Mormonism, for the history of Utah is the history of Mormonism, written with remarkable fairness; v. 25 is the second volume of "Oregon," and begins with the discovery of gold in Oregon and ends with the present time. The Story of the States, a series begun in 1888 under the editorship of Mr. E. S. Brooks, proved justly popular. "The Story of Louisiana," by Maurice Thompson, and "The Story of Vermont," by John L. Heaton, were the additions of the past year. "The Story of Washington, the National Capital," by Charles Burr Todd, was issued in The Great Cities of the Republic Series, and also "The Story of Boston," by Arthur Gilman. A freshly written narrative of an old subject is offered in Samuel Adams Drake's "Burgoyne's Invasion of 1777." The sketch represents the opening volume of another series, Decisive Events in American History. Brooks' "Story of the American Soldier in War and Peace" is a companion volume to his "American Indian" and "American Sailor." It is a valuable supplementary volume to the preceding line of investigation.

The contributions to the already rich literature of the Civil War were Townsend's "Honors of the Empire State in the War of the Rebellion," Admiral Porter's "Pictorial Battles of the Civil War" and "Naval History of the Civil War," Benedict's "Vermont in the Civil War," Richard B. Irvin's "History of the Nineteenth Army Corps," Mrs. Septima M. Collis' "A Woman's War Record, 1861-1865," and Mrs. Laura Winthrop Johnson's "Eight Hundred Miles in an Ambulance." The two last-mentioned monographs are clever, vivacious little books, giving the lighter side of war, as women see it. "The Battle of the Big Hole," by G. O. Shields, describes an engagement that occurred in Montana with the Indians in 1877. Local histories are embraced in Mrs. Schenck's "History of Fairfield, Fairfield Co., Conn.," and in McClintock's "History of New Hampshire."

Fay's "Three Germanys" finally appeared during the past year. Three periods of German history, the later ending with the death of the Emperor Frederick, are graphically described. A different subject was handled successfully by Paul Barrow Watson in "The Swedish Revolution Under Gustavus Vasa." This is the first work in English bearing on the period covered by the writer. "The Federal Government of Switzerland," by Bernard Moses, is an able essay on the specific type of Federal institutions evolved in Switzerland. "The Reconstruction of Europe," by Harold Murdock, is a sketch of the diplomatic and military history of Continental Europe, from the rise to the fall of the Second French Empire. Du Chaillu's "Viking Age," a careful, comprehensive work in two volumes, throws new light upon the history of the Northmen. The additions to the Story of the Nations Series are: "The Story of Mexico," by Susan Hale; "The Story of Phœnicia," by George Rawlinson; "The Hansa Towns," by Helen Zimmern; and "The Story of Early Britain," by Alfred J. Church.

But few historical works from the English found their way to this side of the water. Lady Jackson's "The First of the Bourbons" is a recent addition to her studies of French history. Prof. Rawlinson's "History of Phœnicia" is a profusely illustrated volume and a comprehensive treatment of a most picturesque subject. T. P. O'Connor's "The Parnell Movement," and Sir Charles Russell's opening speech for the defence, published as "The Parnell Commission," are rich in a present interest. Students will find aids in "The Crusade of Richard I.," a compilation of extracts from old chronicles prepared by T. A. Archer for English History by Contemporary Writers, and in Osmund Airy's "The English Restoration and Louis XIV.," issued in Epochs of Modern History.

"New Materials for the History of the American Revolution" contains valuable documents, translated from the French and edited by John Durand. The Empress Eugénie is charmingly depicted by her Lady of Honor, Mme. Carette, in "Recollections of the Court of the Tuileries." Also from the French is Louis Leger's "History of Austro-Hungary from the Earliest Time to the Year 1889." The Italian yielded only Dr. Emilio Comba's "History of the Waldenses of Italy, from their origin to the Reformation."

DESCRIPTION AND TRAVEL.

American writers sought new subjects for books not only in their own country, but all over the globe. Charles Dudley Warner's "Studies in the South and West" are not only delightful descriptions of scenery, but keen, shrewd observations upon the negro and Indian and the condition of the country. Charles F. Holder told us "All About Pasadena," an ideal health resort in Southern California. Mexico was visited by F. Hopkinson Smith and J. R. Flippin. "A White Umbrella in Mexico" is the title Mr. Smith gives his graphic pen-and-pencil sketches. The second writer, under the name of "Sketches from the Mountains of Mexico," has gathered together many valuable facts. Alaska seems to have held out strong attractions to the traveller. We had four books on this little-explored country, namely, "Arctic Alaska and Siberia," by Herbert L. Aldrich, the story of eight months on a whaler; "The New Eldorado," a summer journey to Alaska, by Maturin M. Ballou, "The Red Mountain of Alaska," by Willis Boyd Allen; and "Picturesque Alaska," by Abbe Johnson Woodman. Joel Cook, the financial editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, made "An Eastern Tour at Home," between Pennsylvania and Maine, and Benson J. Lossing described in "Hours with the Living Men and Women of the Revolution" a pilgrimage to old historic scenes of Revolutionary fame. "Five Years in Panama" gives an excellent idea of the Isthmus. The author is Dr. Wolfred Nelson. "The Bermuda Islands," in their scenery, physical history and zoölogy, found a gifted historian in Angelo Heilprin.

Mrs. M. B. Norton wandered "In and Around Berlin," jotting down many pleasant impressions of the people and the noted buildings. Theodore Childs' "Summer Holidays" carried him over the greater part of Europe. Carter H. Harrison, late Mayor of Chicago, ran "A Race with the Sun" in a tour around the world. "From Japan to Granada" also contains sketches of observation and inquiry in a tour around the world in 1887-8, by James H. Chapin. The Holy Land is the subject of "Through David's Realm." Norway and Russia were visited by E. Frazer Blackstock. He gave the world the benefit of his observations in "The Land of the Viking and the Empire of the Tsar." Dr. Mutchmore's "Visit of Japheth to Shem and Ham" is a study of the religious condition of the people of Europe and Asia. "Winters in Algeria" illustrates F. Arthur Bridgman's versatility. It is rich in both pen and pencil sketches. Joseph and Elizabeth Pennell wrote with characteristic fervor of a recent travelling experience in "Our Journey to the Hebrides," and one of the most exquisitely beautiful portions of France receives careful attention in "A Midsummer Drive Through the Pyrenees." Edwin Asa Dix enthusiastically describes the wonderful scenery that delighted his eyes in this novel tour.

English works in this department are poorly represented. The chief reprints and importations are; "Lady Brassey's Last Voyage to India and Australia in the Sunbeam;" "New Zealand After Fifty Years," by Edward Wakefield; "Five Thousand Miles in a Sledge," a midwinter journey across Siberia, by Lionel F. Gowing; "The History of a Slave," a realistic sketch of life in the Western Soudan, by H. H. Johnston; "Foreign Visitors in England, and What They Thought of Us," composed by Edward Smith; "France in the Atlas and Southern Morocco," a narrative of exploration, by Joseph Thomson; "Russian Pictures," by Thomas Michell; "East Africa and Its Big Game," by Sir John C. Willoughby; and "Swiss Travel and Swiss Guide-Books," by W. A. Coolidge.

Rather a number of translations were made from the French. "Unknown Switzerland" carries us far from the beaten track of the tourist. It represents one of Victor Tissot's most charming efforts. Guy de Maupassant's "Afloat" and Pierre Loti's "Into Morocco" glow with the warmth and picturesqueness of these well-known writers' styles. "Afloat" is the chronicle of a yachting sojourn off Cannes. The beautiful women, the beautiful scenery, the fine horses, and magnificent gardens of Morocco, all find a place in Pierre Loti's work. A new translation was made of Jean Baptiste Tavernier's "Travels in India" from the original French edition of 1676. "Through the Heart of Asia," by Gabriel Bonvalot, contains much new information about a part of the Central Asia region little known. "Among Cannibals," from the German of Prof. Charles Lumholtz, comprises a graphic account of four years' travels in Australia and of camp life with the aborigines of Queensland. "Vitus Bering," from the Danish, records the Russian explorations made from 1725 to 1743 under Bering.

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE.

The additions to POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE, from American writers are, as usual, large and varied. Our methods of election are considered in "The Political Problem," by Albert Stickney, and a remedy for their defects offered in "The Australian Ballot System," by John H. Wigmore. Constitutional law and government were fruitful sources of research, as may be witnessed by the following named books: "Constitutional History and Government of the United States," by Judson S. Landon; "An Introduction to the Local Constitutional History of the United States," by George E. Howard (v. 1); "Essays in the Constitutional History of the United States," edited by J. Franklin Jameson; "Constitutional History of the United States as Seen in the Development of American Law;" "The Government of the United States," by W. J. Cocker; "Essays on Government," by A. Lawrence Lowell; and "The State," a sketch of institutional history and administration, by Woodrow Wilson. The Questions of the Day Series received some timely discussions of living issues, such as "Outlines of a New Science," by E. J. Donnell; "Politics as a Duty and as a Career," by Moorfield Storey; "Monopolies and the People," by Charles Whiting Baker; "The Public Regulation of Railways," by W. D. Dabney; and "The Plantation Negro as a Freeman," by Philip A. Bruce. The latter is only one of the many views that have been ventilated on the negro question. Mr. Bruce found his future in this country without hope, as did also the anonymous author of "An Appeal to Pharaoh." "The Negro in Maryland" is simply a dispassionate study of the institution of slavery and of the free negro, made by Jeffrey R. Brackett. "Pleas for Progress," by Atticus G. Haygood, also contributes to this question, although it touches upon other subjects. Our divorce laws, with their many legal perplexities, are attracting widespread attention. William L. Snyder discussed them under the title of "The Geography of Marriage," D. Convers under "Marriage and Divorce in the United States," and Lelia Josephine Robinson compiled for popular use "The Law of Husband and Wife," giving a general idea of the common law concerning marriage and divorce.

Richard T. Ely prepared an admirable "Introduction to Political Economy" for schools and general reading. He also considered "Social Aspects of Christianity" in a volume of essays which are related to political economy and also other topics. Mr. David A. Wells' most recent and valuable reflections are found in "Recent Economic Changes and Their Effect on the Production and Distribution of Wealth and the Well-Being of Society." The volume is in part made up of papers contributed to the Popular Science Monthly and Contemporary Review during 1887 and 1888. Somewhat allied in thought is Edward Atkinson's "Industrial Progress of the Nation," two series of articles which have appeared, one in the Century Magazine, and one in the Forum. A study in the evolution of the wages system is given in Nicholas Paine Gilman's "Profit Sharing Between Employer and Employee." Lee Meriwether in "The Tramp at Home," a companion volume to "A Tramp Trip," showed many valuable statistics and interesting facts relative to our working people. Mrs. Helen Campbell treated a kindred subject in "Prisoners of Poverty Abroad." In line with these works are McAnally's "The Unemployed," Hugo Bilgram's "Involuntary Idleness," and C. Osborne Ward's "History of the Ancient Working People." "An Honest Dollar," by E. B. Andrews, is one of the recent valuable publications of the American Economic Association.

"Constitutional Government in Spain" is a helpful sketch for the student of the science of government by Mr. J. L. M. Curry, late Minister of the United States in Spain. "Federal Government in Canada," also for the student, is one of the Johns Hopkins University Studies. The author is John G. Bourinot. Edwin Sutherland in "The Destiny of America" foretells the great future that will be ours after the political union of the United States and Canada has been accomplished. The nature, causes, treatment, and prevention of "Crime" are fairly considered by Sanford M. Green, and "Problems in American Society," by Joseph H. Crooker. "Liberty and a Living" is an arcadian picture of an independent country life on a very limited income. It comes from the pen of Philip G. Hubert, Jr., and seems more delightful than practical.

Fowler's "History of Insurance in Philadelphia for Two Centuries" is a valuable work. Mrs. Stewart's "Memories of the Crusade" and Dr. Chenery's "Alcohol Inside Out from Bottom Principles" add new facts to the temperance question. A work of rare magnitude and wide interest is comprised in "The American Railway," full of facts and statistics of the construction, development, and management of railways in the United States. A handsome edition was begun of "The Writings of George Washington," the 1st, 2d, and 3d volumes being published.

From English sources came Hannis Taylor's "The Origin and Growth of the English Constitution," of which only the 1st volume is published. It claims to be "an historical treatise in which is drawn out, by the light of the most recent researches, the gradual development of the English constitutional system, and the growth out of that system of the federal republic of the United States." "International Law," by Henry Sumner Maine, is a series of lectures delivered before the University of Cambridge in 1887. Sir Lyon Playfair's "Subjects of Social Welfare" is a collection of essays relating to public health, industrial wealth, and national education. The editor of the Pall Mall Gazette (London), Mr. W. T. Stead, tells the "Truth About Russia" in an unusually fresh and unconventional work. "Russia in Central Asia in 1889" is written from a political point of view. Mr. George N. Curzon contributed the larger part of the matter it contains to leading English periodicals. "The Industries of Japan" is a book of authentic facts and figures gathered at the cost of the Prussian Government by J. J. Rein. "Is Marriage a Failure?" a symposium, called forth "Marriage and Divorce," which strongly urges a reform in English marriage and divorce laws. Young men are directed for advice to Dawson's "The Threshold of Manhood" and Platt's "Life" and "Business." "Money," a third book by the latter writer, is eminently sound and practical. Other works to be mentioned here are Booth's "Labor and Life of the People," "Days with Industrials," by Alexander H. Japp, "Cardinal Lavigerie and the African Slave Trade," edited by R. F. Clarke; "The Constitution of Canada," by J. E. C. Munro; "Speeches of the Right Honorable Lord Randolph Churchill, M. P.;" "Lord Melbourne's Papers;" a new edition in five volumes of Walter Bagehot's "Works," and Nicol's "Political Life of Our Time" (2 v.).

From the French came two humorous skits of Max O'Rell's, "Jonathan and His Continent" and "Jacques Bonhomme," both additions to social satire.

LITERARY MISCELLANY.

The American additions to LITERARY HISTORY AND MISCELLANY include a number of essays and works of reference. The musical critic of the New York Evening Post, Mr. Henry T. Finck, is the author of a very attractive volume, "Chopin, and other musical essays." Edgar Fawcett in "Agnosticism, and other essays," shows his usual brilliancy. Browning, Shakespeare, and Tennyson received as usual special attention. William John Alexander wrote "An Introduction to the Poetry of Robert Browning;" Prof. Hiram Corson, "An Introduction to the Study of Shakespeare;" Thomas Davidson, a "Prolegomena to In Memoriam;" and Dr. Henry Van Dyke a number of essays on "The Poetry of Tennyson." All four works are recommended to literary students as unusually thoughtful and appreciative. With these may be mentioned a keenly analytical work, "The True Story of Hamlet and Ophelia," by Fredericka Beardsley Gilchrist, and Ivan Panin's "Lectures on Russian Literature," giving excellent critical estimates of Pushkin, Gogol, Turgenev, and Tolstol. "Stray Leaves of Literature," by Frederick Saunders, the author of "Salad for the Solitary," is a collection of graceful, refined essays. In the same category may be placed David Atwood Wasson's "Essays" and Henry T. King's "Essays." John Burroughs' "Indoor Studies" take up many subjects, but are principally literary. William Cranston Lawton presents in an English dress "Three Dramas of Euripides." "The Jew in English Fiction" comprises a course of lectures delivered by the Rabbi Philipson in the Har Sinai Temple, at Baltimore, during the winter season of 1887-88. The Rabbi aims to show where novelists have correctly delineated the Jew, and where they have misconceived him. "Our English," by a Harvard professor, Adams Sherman Hill, is essentially practical. "French Traits," by W. C. Brownell, is an essay in comparative criticism, and is written evidently from careful observation.

Charming outdoor papers, unusually rich in evidences of the intense love their authors have for nature's many beautiful aspects and its wealth of living creatures, are found in Bradford Torrey's "A Rambler's Lease" and Charles C. Abbott's "Days Out of Doors." Donald G. Mitchell's "English Lands, Letters, and Kings, from Celt to Tudor," tells in a warm, sympathetic way of some English literary people, the way they worked, and the scenes associated with them and their books. Morris' "Half-Hours with the Best Humorous Authors" (4 v.), and "Character and Comment," selected from the novels of W.

D. Howells by Minnie Macoun, belong to a class of books most useful for reference. Reference works more directly practical are embraced in the following group: "A Century of American Literature," by Huntington Smith; "The World's Best Books," by Frank Parsons and others; the 3d part of William Cushing's "Anonyms;" "A Dictionary of Quotations in Prose from American and Foreign Authors," edited by Anna L. Ward; "Fact, Fancy, and Fable," compiled by Henry F. Reddall; "Bibliotheca Washingtoniana," by William Spohn Baker; and the great "Century Dictionary," of which two volumes have been published, and which is without doubt one of the most valuable works for the student or literary man in the English language.

For lack of a better place, we quote here three folk-lore books, which, while they are strongly related to fiction, have also an evident literary character, shown in numerous critical notes, comments, etc. The books we speak of are George Bird Grinnell's "Pawnee Hero Stories and Folk-Tales," Dr. H. N. Allen's "Korean Tales," and "The Legends and Myths of Hawaii," edited by the Hon. R. M. Daggett. As collected works are included in LITERARY MISCELLANY, we desire to point out the desirable new edition issued during the past year of Oliver Wendell Holmes' "Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table," and of Donald Grant Mitchell's "Dream-Life."

From the English were reprinted William M. Rossetti's only work, "Dante Gabriel Rossetti as Designer and Writer," that he has so far written on his famous brother; two volumes by Philip Gilbert Hamerton, "French and English" and "Portfolio Papers"—the contents of the first work was given to readers several years ago through the pages of the Atlantic Monthly. The book is a clever comparison of the French and English people of to-day. The second work embraces many interesting articles on art, which are in a measure biographical. "Rogers and His Contemporaries" (2 v.) continues "The Early Life of Samuel Rogers," published in 1888. The author, Mr. P. W. Clayton, had a fertile subject in this second part of his work, and ample material—the result being a book of special interest. Volume 4, Book I, of Morley's "English Writers" was issued. It deals with the literature of the 14th century. Frances Power Cobbe in "The Scientific Spirit of the Age" is literary and critical as well as scientific. "By Leafy Ways" is one of those fresh and fragrant volumes of sketches redolent of Nature in her brightest, loveliest aspects. Francis A. Knight's name is on the title-page. "The Brotherhood of Letters" is full of charming anecdotes of famous writers and famous men, gathered by J. Rogers Rees. "The Book-worm," second series, is a treasury of old-time literature thrown together without any special method. Richard de Bury's "Philobiblon" and Wheatley's "How to Catalogue a Library" are recommended as full of information. Edmund Gosse's "History of Eighteenth Century Literature" and Jefferies' "Field and Hedgerow" complete the list of notable literary works we have had from English sources. Dr. Brandes' "Impressions of Russia" comes from the Danish, and is half-way between literary and descriptive works. It offers so much information about Russian authors little known that we give it a place in this classification.

POETRY.

The number of works worth mentioning in POETRY are indeed small. Thomas Bailey Aldrich's "Wyndham Towers" is one of the most notable from American authors. It is a tragic tale in blank verse of the time of Elizabeth, whose chief characteristic is the remarkable manner in which Mr. Aldrich has not only reproduced the spirit of the Elizabethan period, but has imitated the methods of its poets. "The Hermitage, and later poems," represents the work of one of our most promising writers, Edward Rowland Sill. His death some years ago ended the career of one who was in every sense a poet. Dr. S. Weir Mitchell collected his most recent effusions in a volume called "The Cup of Youth." Walter Larned's "Between Times" is the substance of his latest offerings to the muse. Susan Coolidge delighted us with "A Few More Verses," and Louise Chandler Moulton produced "In the Garden of Dreams"—sonnets, lyrics, and ballades of exquisite form and of the daintiest imaginings. Anne Reeve Aldrich's "The Rose of Flame," a collection of warm love poems, evoked as much blame as praise. David Gray's "Letters, Poems, and Selected Prose Writings" is named here, as the author was essentially a poet. Though born in Glasgow, Scotland, he came so early to this country as to be considered an American. Howells' "Mouse-Trap, and other farces," is decidedly amusing. Other volumes are "Poems," by Harriet McEwen Kimball; "The Masque of Death," by George Lotin Hildreth, "Rebel Rhymes, and other poems," by Elizabeth J. Hereford; "The Children, and other verses," by Charles M. Dickinson; "Stray Songs of Life," by Davie Bethune Duffield; "Mother Carey's Chickens," by Wilbur Larremore; and "Gems from Walt Whitman." "American War Ballads and Lyrics" (2 v.), compiled by George Cary Eggleston, and Mason's "Songs of Fairy Land," are two desirable additions to the Knickerbocker Nugget Series. A lovely selection of some of Longfellow's best-known "Ballads, Lyrics, and Sonnets" is offered for the holiday season.

Robert Browning's "Asolando" was a remarkable poetical introduction from a pen. Coming so shortly before his death, it is invested with a painful interest. Poems new and old written to the honor of Fanny. Lady Arnold, are gathered together under the title of "In My Lady's Praise." This was the only work Sir Edwin Arnold sent forth last year. A newly collected edition of all his "Poetical Works" was among the events. Swinburne's third series of "Poems and Ballads" was as rich in imagery and as musical as all else we know of his genius. George Meredith, better known with us as a novelist, proved his claim to the title of poet, also, in a notably vigorous volume of poems, called "A Reading of Earth." Worth mentioning, also, are Emily E. Reader's "Echoes of Thought," Alfred Austin's "Love's Widowhood," Laura Alexandrine Smith's "Through Romany Songland," and Bullen's compilation of "Lyrics from the Dramatists of the Elizabethan Age." "Interludes, Lyrics, and Idyls" is a collection of some of the daintiest and most popular of Tennyson's shorter poems. New editions were issued in excellent style of Owen Meredith's "Lucile," of Frances Ridley Havergal's "Poetical Works" (2 v.), of Wordsworth's "Poetical Works" (8 v.), and of Browning's "Poetical Works." The latter, in seven volumes, is one of the finished issues of the Riverside Press. "Poems on Several Occasions" is a binding together in two volumes of several of Austin Dobson's previously published works.

Hendrik Ibsen's "The Doll's House," a play taken from the Norwegian, failed to arouse in American literary circles the general interest it excited among his countrymen. As a drama it belongs under the heading of Poetry, but it possesses little of the poetical quality. From the Middle High German Mary Pickering Nichols translated a mediæval epic, "Gudrun." Alexander Pushkin's "Poems," literally translated from the Russian by Ivan Panin, was somewhat of a curiosity. For the first time was set forth in rhythmic sentences Thomas à Kempis' "Musica Ecclesiastica"—The Imitation of Christ—according to the original intention of the author. The translation was from the Latin version of 1874, published in Hamburg.

ART-BOOKS.

In illustrated works the year 1889 was exceedingly poor, both in numbers and quality. "Fac-Similes of Aquarelles by American Artists" was one of the finest specimens of American work in its whole conception that the year can be credited with. "The Quiet Life," speaking only of the designs of Messrs. Abbey and Parsons, was a notably fine addition to American art; but speaking of the manner in which these designs were reproduced little can be said in praise. Wheatley's "Cathedrals and Abbeys in Great Britain and Ireland" derives its chief interest from the subjects of the pictures. The same may be said of "Venice." The size and elaborateness, however, of these two latter works give them a prominent place in the list. "The Rivals," illustrated by Frank M. Gregory, offered several fine plates in fac-simile of water-colors quite artistically executed. "Selected Etchings," "Famous Etchers," and "Etchings—Places" were excellent collections. Good specimens of photogravure work were displayed in "Goupil's Paris Salon of '89," "Modern American Art," "Salon Celebrities," "Selected Paintings from the Paris Exhibition," and "Recent English Art." Nathaniel Hawthorne's "Marble Faun" had its interest enhanced by a new edition illustrated in photogravure. "Lorna Doone," Blackmore's favorite romance, was also a subject for illustration, several hundred new designs by American artists giving form to its pen-pictures. Mrs. Deland's "Florida Days" in a modest way was a success as an illustrated work, the pictures being mostly reproductions of photographic views. Other claimants for attention were Irene E. Jerome's "In a Fair Country," Wordsworth's "Melodies of Nature," "A Lost Winter," "The Low-Back'd Car" with William Magrath's illustrations, Mrs. Toland's "Legend Laymone," Alice Ward Bailey's "Flower Fancies," Emma Homan Thayer's "Wild Flowers of the Pacific Coast," "National Songs of America," "Shandon Bells," "Little Maids," and "The Wooing of Grandmother Grey." American humor finds expression in "Good Things of Life," sixth series, "Thomas Nast's Christmas Drawings," Taylor's "In the 400 and Out," and in Philip H. Welch's "Said in Fun."

Lovers of the theatre are directed to Seilhamer's "History of the American Theatre," of which the second volume was published. In musical art from American writers also were three very valuable books for musical people, viz.: Henderson's "Story of Music," Elson's "History of German Song," and Goodrich's "Complete Musical Analysis." "Six Portraits," by Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer, is a criticism upon the work of Della Robbia, Correggio, Blake, Corot, George Fuller, and Winslow Homer.

There is little to record from English artists. "The Book of Wedding-Days" and "Flora's Feast" were two pretty, graceful specimens of Walter Crane's art. "Pen Drawing and Pen Draughtsmen," by Joseph Pennell, and Monkhouse's "Earlier English Water-Color Painters," are technical works of great value. Lady Dilke's "Art in the Modern State" belongs to the realm of criticism. A new volume (the 4th and last) appeared of Sir George Grove's comprehensive "Dictionary of Music and Musicians." "Behind the Scenes of the Comédie Française," translated from the French of Arsène Houssaye, is a volume of reminiscences and also an illustrative work in photogravure.

SPORTS AND AMUSEMENTS.

The literature of SPORTS AND AMUSEMENTS was not greatly increased by American writers. The few new books worth mentioning are: "The Garden's Story," embodying the experiences of an amateur gardener, Mr. George H. Ellwanger, of Rochester, N. Y.; "Cruisings in the Cascades," a narrative of travel, exploration, amateur photography, hunting, and fishing, by "Coquina," otherwise known as Mr. George O. Shields; "Hints and Points for Sportsmen," by Seneca, and "Cycling Art, Energy, and Locomotion," by Robert P. Scott, treating more of the mechanical development of bicycles and tricycles than of the art itself. Several useful little manuals are: "The Bowlers' Handbook," Bornstein's "Dumb-Bells, Indian Clubs, and Other Athletic Exercises," and "Draw-Poker without a Master."

The English acquisitions were two additions to the Badminton Library, viz.: "Boxing, Wrestling," by Walter H. Pollock and others, and "Driving," by the Duke of Beaufort and others; Steinitz's "Modern Chess Instructor," which covers the game thoroughly, and Richard A. Proctor's "Strength, How to Get Strong and Keep Strong," containing some interesting chapters on rowing and swimming.

SCIENCE.

There was really no new and exhaustive work issued in 1889 in SCIENCE proper, either from an American author, or through English reprints. From a group of popular works that were deservedly successful we select for special mention the following from American pens: Wright's "Ice Age in North America" and Shaler's "Aspects of the Earth," two attractive contributions to physical science; "Education in the United States," by R. G. Boone, "European Schools," by L. R. Klemm, and pt. 2 of Preyer's, "Development of the Intellect," excellent monographs of facts and figures for educators issued in the International Education Series; and Baldwin's "Handbook of Psychology," and Raue's "Psychology as a Natural Science Applied to the Solution of Occult Psychic Phenomena." The "Scientific Papers of Asa Gray" in two volumes were issued during the year. From English sources several contributions to physical science were favorably received. The International Scientific Series was enriched by Starcke's "Primitive Family in Its Origin and Development," "Mental Evolution in Man," from the English scientist G. J. Romanes, seeks to prove that the lower animals possess many of the mental and moral faculties of man. "Nature and Man" are scientific and philosophical essays by William B. Carpenter. Alfred Russel Wallace's "Darwinism" is a clear exposition of the theory of natural selection. "Stellar Evolution and Its Relations to Geological Time," by James Croll, aims to shed new light on the pre-nebular condition of the universe. The eminent English botanist, T. F. Thiselton Dyer, writes in "The Folk-Lore of Plants" of the fancies and superstitions which have been connected with plants in primitive and savage life. M. M. M.

"In commenting on the analytical table of books published during 1888, which we printed on the last day of that year, we found occasion to remark on the exceptional literary activity to which it bore witness. The figures for 1889 are not quite so large but still they mark a production of between three and four hundred books more than we had to count up and classify in 1887. In other words, the statistics go to show that the past year has produced about one work per diem, Sundays included, more than the output of 1887. Comparing or contrasting the number of publications in 1889 with those of 1888, we find in theology a slight decline, both in new books and in new editions. In educational works, also, 1889 has fewer works to show than its predecessor. Books for young people, on the other hand, show a good increase. Of novels and stories there are noted no less than 1040 new books, besides 364 new editions. This gives the ardent novel-reader as many as three new novels for each week-day, with a balance to spare, and one new edition for every day. We have to note a slight decline in the class of political economy, also in that of arts and sciences; but, after all, many a book published in the new year will be the product of this and preceding years' labors. In 'Voyages and Travels,' 'History and Biography,' and in 'Poetry,' the figures of 1889 are less than those of 1888. Here, again, it may be worth while to reflect that statistics do not convey everything—a Du Chaillu's 'Viking Age' outweighs a whole theatre of others.' And, while the show of books in poetry of 1889 is numerically less than that of 1888, it is greater than that of 1887 by about 50 new books and 10 'new editions'—an excess of just 50 per cent. 'Belles-lettres' may be pointed to as the only division of literature in which the number of new editions exceeds that of bonâ fide new books. It will be readily understood that this exception is due to the numerous and continual reprints of the great classics."

OBITUARY.

FRANCIS BOWEN.—Francis Bowen, one of the oldest professors of Harvard University, died at his home in Cambridge, Massachusetts, on Tuesday, January 21. His health had been gradually failing, and a month ago he had resigned his position as an active worker in the University. His death, however, was sudden. He remained longer than usual in his bath, and his family becoming alarmed forced the door and found him dead in the tub. Professor Bowen was born in 1811. He began business as clerk in a Boston publishing house. After a time he entered Harvard, and graduated in 1833. Since 1835 Professor Bowen has occupied positions at the University, and has in turn taught Greek, mental and moral philosophy, metaphysics and ethics, and literature; and in 1853 he was given the Alford Professorship of Natural Religion, Moral Philosophy, and Civil Polity. His published works are: "Behr's Translation of Weber's Outlines of Universal History, with the Addition of a History of the United States" (1853); "Documents of the Constitutions of England and America, from Magna Charta to the Federal Constitution of 1889" (1854); "The Principles of Metaphysical and Ethical Science Applied to the Evidences of Religion" (1855); "Dugald Stewart's Philosophy of the Human Mind, Revised and Abridged, with Critical and Explanatory Notes" (1854); "The Principles of Political Economy Applied to the Conditions and Institutions of the American People" (1856); "The Metaphysics of Sir William Hamilton, Collected, Arranged, and Abridged" (1862); "De Tocqueville's Democracy in America, Edited with Notes," etc. (1862); "A Treatise on Logic, or the Laws of Pure Thought, Comprising both the Aristotelic and the Hamiltonian Analyses of Logical Forms" (1864); "American Political Economy" (1870); "Modern Philosophy from Descartes to Schopenhauer and Hartmann" (1877); and "Gleanings from a Literary Life" (1880).

JOHN ORVILLE TAYLOR died at his home in New Brunswick, N. J., on Saturday, January 18, aged eighty-two. After devoting fifteen years of his life to educational progress, he engaged in mercantile business in New York City, but, meeting with reverses, retired to New Brunswick, and devoted himself to literary work. He was the author of "The District School, or Popular Education," and other educational works. In 1837, with the assistance of James Wadsworth, he secured the passing of a law establishing school libraries in this State.

PETER HENDERSON, the veteran florist, seedsman, and writer on horticulture, died on Friday, January 17, at his home in Jersey City, from an attack of pneumonia. Peter Henderson was born near Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1823, and came to America at the age of twenty-three. Mr. Henderson was an indefatigable writer on subjects connected with gardening. Hundreds of articles from his pen have appeared in various newspapers and periodicals during the last forty years, many of them in The Tribune. "Gardening for Profit," his principal work, appeared in 1866; "Practical Floriculture," in 1868; and "Gardening for Pleasure," in 1875. Other successful books of his are: "How the Farm Pays," written in coöperation with William Crozier, of Northport, L. I.; "Garden and Farm Topics," and the "Handbook of Plants."

COMMUNICATIONS.

"IS IT HONEST?"

PHILADELPHIA, January 21, 1890.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

SIR: Your correspondent, "Retailer," who complains of publishers fixing nominal retail prices on their books, from which they calculate the rate of discount, and then themselves retailing these books at 25% off, is, too mild by far, when he simply asks, "Is It Right?" The question he should ask is: "Is it honest?" and the reply which I should make is: "No, it is not."

It may be understood how a publisher can undersell other people's publications, but I, for one, after nearly half a century of experience in the book business, cannot understand how he can undersell his own, and then have the cheek to look in the face the retailer to whom he sells, without a feeling of degradation and shame. And he should not be able to do it. Let him make up his mind either to stop slaughtering his own books or to be asked the question, "Are you an honest dealer?"

"The first step necessary in working a reform in the retail book business, is for the publisher to reform himself. When the publisher has ceased to undersell his own books, he may with some show of propriety ask the retailer to demand for them full prices, and not before."

HENRY CAREY BAIRD.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just published the second volume of Justin McCarthy's "History of the Four Georges," covering the important period from Walpole to Pitt, and closing with the death of George II.; a new edition of the "Illustrated History of Ancient Literature, Oriental and Classical," by Dr. John D. Quackenbos, Professor of the English Language and Literature, Columbia College, New York, which has been enlarged by the addition of a carefully selected bibliography; also, library editions of "A Hazard of New Fortunes," by William Dean Howells; "Kit and Kitty," by R. D. Blackmore; and "Prince Fortunatus," by William Black (illustrated). They have in press a story of army life on the plains, by Mrs. Custer, entitled "Following the Guidon."

PORTER & COATES have in preparation for the fall, a finely illustrated edition of George Eliot's "Romola." It will be published in two volumes, crown octavo, and illustrated with fifty photogravure plates of Florentine views made expressly for this work.

NEW BOOKS ISSUED IN 1889.

A. C. McCLURG &amp; CO., CHICAGO.

The Story of Tonty.

An Historical Romance. By Mrs. MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD. With 23 original illustrations by Enoch Ward. 12mo, 227 pages, $1.25.

"Her style is stately but simple, like the chivalrous characters of the new-old world she describes, and a tinge of romantic beauty rests over all and makes this little story a poem and an idyl that our most ambitious writers might well envy and strive to imitate."—The Hartford Courant."A powerful story by a writer newly sprung to fame. . . . All the century we have been waiting for the deft hand that could put flesh upon the dry bones of our early heroes. Here is a recreation indeed. . . . With the meagre material at the author's command it is amazing what skilful use she has made of it. One comes from the reading of the romance with a quickened interest in our early national history, and a profound admiration for the art that can so transport us to the dreamful realms where fancy is monarch of fact."—The Philadelphia Press."The Story of Tonty' is built on broader and grander lines [than 'The Romance of Dollard']. It is a bold and graphic picturing of the character and deeds of two of the great figures of early Western exploration, La Salle and Tonty. While the work is a romance and full of the high flights of the romancer's imagination, it is still singularly close to historic truth. . . . The very form and picture of the time is most carefully and brilliantly reproduced."—The Inter-Ocean, Chicago.

Fact, Fancy, and Fable.

A new Handbook for Ready Reference on Subjects Commonly Omitted from Cyclopedias. Compiled by HENRY F. REDDALL. Large 8vo, 536 pages, half leather, $3.50.

"In the way of a convenient handbook nothing has ever exceeded it in value to the literary worker. It is an invaluable companion for the study, the library, or the editor's sanctum, and could hardly be too highly commended."—The Traveller, Boston."It must take its place for the time being as the best work of its kind in existence, particularly as regards American topics."—The New York Sun."The work is compiled after a distinct plan, and with keen discrimination in regard to what is admitted and what excluded. . . . An empty niche awaits this work in college and school libraries, where it will be constantly consulted; it has an important mission on the study table and writing-desk, and in the counting-room."—The Journal of Education, Boston."This book is far more matter-of-fact than its name, for it contains an immense amount of information on the subjects indicated in its sub-title. The many thousands of titles are handled with a never-failing sense of the necessity of brevity. . . . The compiler has done a great deal, and done it well."—The New York Herald.

The Library List.

*BEING A LIST OF PUBLIC LIBRARIES IN THE UNITED STATES AND
IN CANADA OF OVER 1000 VOLUMES, WITH CLASSIFICATION BY SIZE AND NAME OF LIBRARIAN.*

One volume, half mor., $3.50 net.

THE LIBRARY LIST is a compilation based on the list of libraries compiled by the United States Bureau of Education, and forming part of the Annual Report of the Commissioner of Education, now the Hon. N. H. R. Dawson. It differs from that, however, in eliminating the minor libraries of under a thousand volumes, in adding the names of Librarians, and in classifying, by means of types of different face, libraries of corresponding numbers, as over 50,000, over 10,000, over 5000, and over 1000. There is also added a supplementary list of libraries, made partly by the Bureau of Education and partly from the records of the office of the LIBRARY JOURNAL. In the present shape, with the opportunity given by the printing on alternate pages for correcting and extending the list to any date, it is hoped that this LIBRARY LIST may be of service to all concerned with the library interest.

The LIBRARY LIST includes also the Libraries of Canada and the other British North American Provinces, for which it is indebted to the enterprise and courtesy of James Bain, Jr., Librarian of the Free Public Library, Toronto. This is an addition which we believe will be of great value and interest, as it is, we think, the first careful census of Canadian Libraries.

The distinction by means of type will enable those who have occasion to communicate with libraries to address few or many as they prefer, and many libraries will find it peculiarly useful for exchanging their reports and publications with libraries of corresponding size. The Brooklyn Library, for instance, has used this list, as originally published in the LIBRARY JOURNAL, to send its annual report and its musical bulletin to all libraries of over 10,000 volumes in the country.

The List may also be recommended to the book-trade as a convenient and reliable address list, inasmuch as it comprises only such institutions as are likely to purchase current publications.

THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL

For 1889 (Seventeenth Year).

Large 8vo, about 3000 pages. With Duplex Index. Cloth, net, $2.00.

The Trade List Annual for 1889 contains:

1. The latest CATALOGUES OF AMERICAN PUBLISHERS, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm-names and smaller lists at the end of the volume.
2. A complete list by author, title, and subject of all books recorded in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY from January to June, 1889, supplementing the ANNUAL CATALOGUE, 1888.
3. The "EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE" for 1889, which is used by the entire trade and educational interests as the most representative reference-list of School-books.

The above Lists, all bound in one volume, present in their combination so convenient and time-saving a working-tool as to make it indispensable to every one who has any interest in the purchase or sale of books.

The patent "DUPLEX INDEX" having given such general satisfaction, we are now applying it to all copies of the "Annual." Volumes supplied with the "DUPLEX INDEX" have the alphabet printed on the concave surface as well as on the margin of the page, which enables instantaneous reference, whether the book is open or shut.

 Unless special shipping directions are received, copies will be despatched by express unpaid. Parties so desiring can have their copies sent by mail, or by prepaid book-rate express for 80 cents per copy extra.

The Following are Some of the Opinions of the Trade and Press:

"For the time that we have devoted to its examination, are well pleased with it."—ROBERT CLARKE & CO., Publishers and Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"You deserve well of the world till you die, and after, but the book trade is just as ungrateful as any republic, and although they may sling an occasional laurel wreath out your way, the silver buzzard and the golden eagle 'flieth not so fast nor so far.' There is but one Directory of the Book and Stationery Trade and that is Caspar's."—P. F. VAN EVEREN, New York.

"It is just splendid. The most complete book of the kind we have seen."—J. H. KURZENKNABE & SONS, Harrisburg, Pa.

"I am greatly pleased with your Directory. It is the best work of the kind ever issued and deserves a large sale."—NATURAL SCIENCE PUBLISHING CO., New York.

"It seems more complete than anything of the kind I have seen before."—J. B. MARTINDALE, Chicago.

"We like it very much, and we don't know but what it is the best thing of the kind we have ever seen."—P. R. McCARGO & CO., Boston.

"Am very grateful to you for the conscientious care and painstaking effort in preparing so valuable and so complete a work. Be kind enough to enter my name, and mail me all addenda sheets in future, and do not fail to notify me of any new project in this line you may engage in."—GEO. H. COLBY, Bookseller, Lancaster, N. H.

"We have looked it over with great interest and appreciate the fact that it will be of great value to us."—W. O. DAVIE & CO., Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"I think your book a most valuable one and believe it will be better appreciated as it becomes better known."—WILL H. LYONS, Newport, Ky.

"Even a cursory examination of this important directory will convince any one of the thorough manner in which it has been put together and of the value of the completed work. Mr. Caspar has produced a work which, if properly kept up from year to year, will be the standard."—The American Stationer, New York City.

"The Appendix to 'Caspar's Directory of the American Book, News, and Stationery Trades' is a most valuable compilation, exhaustive and complete. The information it contains is absolutely unique and not to be procured from any other source. Hence it is of the first importance to every one in the trades. It is admirably arranged; the references are simple, and being grouped under special heads, makes consultation a matter of little or no difficulty. Such a work is really a great trade text-book, from which the initiated can feel the pulse of the whole book-publishing world. It is a monument of careful, painstaking and accurate labor, and is as reliable as it is extensive. . . . The preparation of this useful volume must have been a work of immense labor and patience, and Mr. Caspar must be congratulated on the success which he has achieved. It is a manual for publishers, booksellers, newsdealers, stationers, and libraries, indispensable to them all."—The American Bookseller.

READY FEBRUARY 4.

THE BAGPIPERS.

By GEORGE SAND, author of "Mauprat," "The Snow Man," "Monsieur Sylvestre," "Miller of Angibault," "Antonia," etc. 1 vol., 12mo, half russia, uniform with our edition of "Balzac's Novels," $1.50.

"George Sand's novel, "Les Maitres Sonneurs," which has never before been translated into English, will be brought out by Roberts Brothers in February, under the title of "The Bagpipers." The characters are similar to the troubadours of French story, and when it is added that the translator is Miss Katharine Prescott Wormeley, whose translations of Balzac have given her such a high reputation, enough is said to indicate the excellence of the work. George Sand has never been translated by a writer so capable of rendering her spirit and the graces of her style as Miss Wormeley, and a new interest will be awakened in the author of 'Consuelo' by this undertaking."—ALEXANDER YOUNG in Critic.

ALBRECHT.

A Story. By ARLO BATES, author of "A Lad's Love," "Berries of the Brier," etc. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

The scene of this story is laid in the Black Forest in the time of Charlemagne (the ninth century), the age of knights and castles. It is a metaphysical romance in which loves plays a leading part, and abounds in tender sentiment and picturesque description. The story opens with a vivid picture of the Black Forest, which is compared to a vast sea in its external characteristics and in the strange beings that people it.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE WORTHINGTON Co. have recently published Swinburne's excellent "Study of Ben Jonson."

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish on the 4th a translation by Miss Wormeley of George Sand's "The Bagpipers" ("Les Maîtres Sonneurs"), which has never before been translated into English; also "Albrecht," a metaphysical romance, by Arlo Bates.

THE WELCH, FRACKER COMPANY have nearly ready "In Western Levant," also a new edition of "On the Wing Through Europe," two highly interesting volumes of travel sketches by Francis C. Sessions, President of the Ohio Archæological and Historical Society.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish shortly the third and concluding volume of Fyffe's "History of Modern Europe." The new volume, as already noted, treats of the years 1848-1878, and covers the important period of European politics which led up to the Franco-Prussian War.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready in their Town and Country Library "Countess Irene," a romance of Austrian life, by J. Fogerty. The Westminster Review in a notice of the book says it "is a charming story, interesting and mouvementé, with some highly dramatic incidents.

TICKNOR & Co. have just published "Builders' Hardware," by Clarence H. Blackwell, a manual for architects, builders, and house furnishers, written primarily for the architects, who are known to treat the subject of materials rather too superficially. The book is not over-critical, but aims to represent as nearly as possible the conditions and limitations of the builders' hardware market.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY have just published "The Catholic Man," a study of the character that is developed by the many phases of our modern life, by Mrs. Lawrence Turnbull, a sister of the popular authoress, Miss Grace Denio Litchfield; also "Stories of New France," episodes of Canadian history, written up by Miss A. M. Machar and Thomas G. Marquis.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready in the Questions of the Day series "Railway Secrecy and Trusts," by John M. Bonham; also, "Catterel Ratterel," a volume of doggerel having cats and rats as subjects, illustrated by Bessie Alexander Ficklin; and a new edition in paper covers of Edward Bellamy's "Six to One," first published in 1878.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. will publish shortly "Stanley's Emin Pasha Expedition," said to be compiled from Stanley's own letters to the President of the Society which was mainly instrumental in sending him on the journey. The book will contain numerous illustrations and maps. They will also publish soon Captain King's new book, "Starlight Ranch, and other stories."

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. announce that they have added to their popular twenty-five-cent series Mrs. Caroline Lee Hentz's "Eoline, or, Magnolia Vale," "Two Kisses, or, to wed or not to wed," by Hawley Smart, and "Jarl's Daughter," by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett. Fifty-two different books have already been published in this series, and they are proving to be one of the most popular and fast-selling series of books issued in this country.

CASELL & COMPANY will publish early this month the memorial volume to the late Henry W. Grady, compiled by his co-workers on the Atlanta Constitution and edited by Joel Chandler Harris. The volume will contain a complete life of Mr. Grady and such of his writings and speeches as best represent his remarkable gifts as writer and orator. Among the latter will be the speech that he delivered two years ago before the New England Society in New York, and which at a bound made his name famous in every State in the Union, also the last of his public utterances, the equally memorable speech delivered only a few short weeks ago, before the Boston Merchants' Association.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Alexander, Archibald. A theory of conduct. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 3+III p. S. cl., $1.

Discusses concisely some of the more important principles which are the foundation of all moral science; by setting aside much that is false, the author hopes to arrive at conclusions which are beyond doubt. The harmony of moral science and revealed religion is also noticed.

Allen, Grant. Falling in love; with other essays on more exact branches of science. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. 4+356 p. D. cl., $1.25.

These are charming "fairy tales of science." Facts are made delightfully entertaining in a most attractive imaginative garb. The titles of the papers are: Falling in love; Right and left; Evolution; Strictly incog.; Seven-year sleepers; A fossil continent; A very old master; British and foreign; Thunderbolts; Honey-dew; The milk in the cocoa-nut; Food and feeding; De Banana; Go to the ant; Big animals; Fossil food; Ogbury Barrows; Fish out of water; The first potter; The recipe for genius; Desert sands.

Contents: The transportation problem; Existing railway management; Public responsibility for existing evils; The government and the railways; The effects of state inaction.

*Bowen, Sir G: Ferguson. Thirty years of colonial government: a selection from the despatches and letters of the Rt. Hon. Sir G: Ferguson Bowen, Governor successively of Queensland, New Zealand, Victoria, Mauritius, and Hong Kong: ed. by Stanley Lane-Poole. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1890. 2 v., 8+460; 8+467 p. 8°, cl., $10.50.

Brace, C. Loring. The unknown God; or, inspiration among pre Christian races. N. Y.,

A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1890. c. '89. 9+336 p. O. cl., $2.50.

The writer has taken for his special theme the words used by Saint Paul in his sermon on Mars Hill, "The unknown God"—words which the great apostle applied also to the spiritual Zeus of the ancient Greeks. The aim is to show the ancient belief of mankind in the unknown God, and that the great Father of all has granted his inspirations to many of very different countries and tribes and races. The volume is in some respects a search for the footprints of the Divine Being on the shifting sands of remote history.

Bradbury, Mrs. L. A. The light of the world: a Christmas service, arranged by Mrs. L. A. Bradbury. Bost., Unitarian S. S. Soc., 1889. c. 12 p. 1 il. O. pap., 5 c.

*Bridgett, Rev. T. E., and Knox, Rev. T. F. The true story of the Catholic hierarchy deposed by Queen Elizabeth, with fuller memoirs of its last two survivors. N. Y., Catholic Pub. Soc. Co., 1890. 8°, cl., net, $2.

Brooks, Walter R. God in nature and life: selections from the sermons and writings of Walter R. Brooks. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1890.] c. '89. 3-290 p. O. cl., $1.50.

The sermons and other writings collected in this volume are "designed to preserve in affectionate hearts the memory of a great, fresh, powerful mind, that was in love with God and truth." The volume is intended also as one more expression of Dr. Brooks' favorite thoughts. The sermons were all preached between 1858 and 1873, when he was pastor of the Baptist church in Hamilton, N. Y. The two lectures belong to a slightly earlier period.

*Bryce, Ja. The American commonwealth. New rev. ed. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 2 v., 12°, cl., $6.

*Bryden, H. A. Kloof and Kafoo; sport legends and natural history in Cape Colony; with a notice of the game birds and of the present distribution of the antelopes and larger game. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1890. 12+435 p. il. 8°, cl., $3.50.

Burge, Lorenzo. Origin and formation of the Hebrew Scriptures. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1890. c. '89. 5-132 p. D. cl., $1.

By the author of "Pre-glacial man and the Aryan race" and "Aryas, Semites, and Jews." Under Hebrew Scriptures the author classes all the books of the Old Testament except the Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and Song of Solomon, and endeavors to prove that they are all the work of Nehemiah, the Persian nobleman and historian appointed Governor of Palestine, B.C. 445. An appendix gives the fulfilment of prophecies, radical views of the Bible, scientific criticism, etc. The author's standpoint is Christian.

*Carpenter, Rev. W. Boyd, [Esp.] The permanent elements of religion. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 8°, (The Bampton lectures for 1887.) cl., $2.

*Chapin, F: H. Mountaineering in Colorado: the Peaks about Estes Park. Bost., Appalachian Mountain Club, No. 9 Park St., 1889. 168 p. 12°, cl., $2.

*In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

Ochells, Mary Dwinell. The attic tenant. N. Y., The National Temp. Soc. and Pub. House, 1890. c. '89. 306 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Several young people who have been very poor inherit an uncle's large property. In coming to investigate his business and his past life they find that while he was both honest and just, he was not a church-member or a believer in the Bible. The "attic tenant" is a stoker who has long worked for their uncle and been influenced by him. The young people, being good church-members, aim to convert all around them to their way of thinking.

Cobb, Sylvanus, jr. The golden eagle; or, the privateer of 1776: a tale of the Revolution. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1890.] 4-186 p. D. (The sea and shore ser., no. 15.) pap., 25 c.

Cobban, J. MacLaren. Julius Courtney; or, master of his fate. Reprinted from Blackwood's magazine. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. 4-183 p. D. (The Gainsborough ser.) pap., 25 c.

A strange weird story, with a hero who seems to live upon the vital powers he draws from others. Some strange phases of hypnotism are described.

Collins, Wilkie. Blind love. N. Y., Frank F. Lovell & Co., [1890.] 1+312 p. D. (Lovell's household lib., no. 204.) pap., 25 c.

Collins, Wilkie. Blind love. N. Y., J. W. Lovell Co., [1890.] 1+312 p. D. (Lovell's lib., no. 1482.) pap., 20 c.

Collins, Wilkie. Blind love. N. Y., G: Munro, [1890.] 4-313 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1260.) pap., 20 c.

*Dale, J: T. Success and how to reach it; or, finger-posts on the highway of life; introd. by J: V. Farwell. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell, 1890. 416 p. 8°, cl., $1.50.

Dodgson, C: L. ["Lewis Carroll," pseud.] Sylvie and Bruno; il. by Harry Furniss. N. Y., Macmillan, 1890. 19+400 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Somewhat similar to "Alice's adventures in Wonderland." The author, however, takes a new departure in this story, by introducing, along with what will prove to be acceptable nonsense for children, some of the graver thoughts of human life. The same queer characterizations, quaint puns, and funny imaginings of Lewis Carroll's other books will be found here.

Ebers, G: Joshua: a Biblical picture. N. Y., G: Munro, [1890.] 1+267 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1266.) pap., 20 c.

*Ellis, Rev. Jas. J. John Williams, the martyr missionary of Polynesia. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell, 1890. 160 p. 12°, (Missionary biography ser.) cl., 75 c.

Fenn, G: Manville. The Mynns' mystery: a novel. N. Y., Frank F. Lovell & Co., [1890.] 2-205 p. D. (Lovell's international ser., no. 49.) pap., 30 c.

Ficklin, Bessie Alexander. Catterel and rat-terel; doggerel; il. by Bessie Alexander Ficklin. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1890. c. '89. 39 p. obl. S. bds., 75 c.

Tells how a learned rat eschews the works of Josh Billings and Mark Twain, adopts the Darwin and Spencer theories, and arrives at a scheme to free his race from its enemy, the cat. When his scheme is tested the theory explodes, and points an excellent satire at the impracticability of those who institute many reforms. The il. are full-page and very amusing.

Fortier, Alcée. Sept grands auteurs du dix-neuvième siècle; Lamartine, Victor Hugo, Alfred de Vigny, Alfred de Musset, Theophile Gautier, Prosper Mérimée, François Coppee: an introduction to nineteenth century literature. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1889. c. 5+196 p. D. (Heath's modern language ser.) cl., 60 c.

Lectures delivered in French at the Tulane University of Louisiana, New Orleans. They are careful studies of the seven great authors given in the title, with extracts from their works.

Pothergill, Jessie. A march in the ranks. N. Y.,

H: Holt & Co., 1890. 2+508 p. S. (Leisure hour ser., no 230.) cl., $1; pap., 30 c.

France, Anatole. The crime of Sylvestre Bonnard, (Member of the Institute); the tr. and introd. by Lafcadio Hearn. N. Y., Harper, 1890. c. tr. 8+281 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 665.) pap., 50 c.

The story is told autobiographically. The stages of an academician's life are pictured in a quaint philosophical style that is in itself a charm. From early childhood to the time of romance the transit is rapid. A peculiar incident shatters this dream, and the hero passes to a soberer age, in which he has renounced all but his beloved books. At this time he attempts to help a young girl. The consequences of this involve him in what is called "The crime of Sylvestre Bonnard."

*Gibbs, E: J. England and South Africa. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1890. 14+151 p. 8°, cl., $1.75.

*Grannan's (J. C.) warning against fraud and valuable information. Cin., O., Grannan Detective Bureau Co., 1889. 512 p. 16°, full mor., $3.

Taken from Tom Taylor's play of the same name.

Holmes, Oliver Wendell. Elsie Venner: a romance of destiny. 36th ed. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. '61, '89. 596 p. D. (Riverside pap. ser., no. 14.) pap., 50 c.

*Hopkin, Ja. M. Old England, its scenery, art, and people. 10th ed., enl. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. 8°, cl., $1.75.

*Horsford, Eben Norton. The discovery of the ancient city of Norumbega: communicated to the president and council of the American Geographical Soc. at Watertown, Nov. 21, 1889. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. 4°, cl., net, $2.50.

*Howells, W: D. A hazard of new fortunes: a novel. Library ed. N. Y., Harper, 1890. 2 v. 12°, cl., $2.

Howland, G: Practical hints for the teachers of public schools. N. Y., Appleton, 1889. c. 11+198 p. D. (International education ser., no. 13.) cl., $1.50.

The author is Superintendent of the Chicago Public Schools. The volume comprises a series of papers read before the teachers of the public schools of Chicago. The subjects are: Moral training in city schools; The character of the teacher; The place of memory in school instruction; The elements of growth in school-life; The scholarship aimed at in the school; The teacher in the school-room; How the school develops character; The class recitation; The school principal.

*Hunt, H: M. The crime of the century; or, the assassination of Dr. Patrick Henry Cronin. Chic., People's Publishing Co., Lakeside Building, 1889. 576 p. il. 12°, cl., subs., $1.50.

Johnson, Evelyn Kimball. ["Flora McFlimsey," pseud.] Tangles unravelled: a novel. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1890.] 3-263 p. D. (Lovell's lib., no. 1465.) pap., 20 c.

King, C: F. The picturesque geographical readers. V. 1, At home and at school; supplementary and regular reading in the lower classes in grammar schools, public libraries, and the home. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1890. c. '89. 9+226 p. il. D. cl., 50 c.

"The four volumes planned will contain all the essentials of geography in so compact and vivid a form that they can be read by a bright child of ten in a few weeks at home, or in school, as supplementary reading, in a year. Very little more geography will be needed." Copiously illustrated and printed in large, clear type. This first volume is intended for grades immediately following the primary.

McCarthy, Justin. A history of the four Georges. In 4 v. V. 2. N. Y., Harper, 1890. 3+405 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Vol. 1 noticed in P. W., Nov. 1, 1884, [666.] The present volume covers the period from Walpole to Pitt, 1733 to 1760. The author proves that never was a king better served than George the Second, that never had so ignoble a sovereign such men to make his kingdom strong and his reign famous. The literary activity of the period treated is well brought forward.

Milford, Philip. Ned Stafford's experiences in the United States. Chic. and N. Y., Rand, McNally & Co., 1890. 7+254 p. D. (The rialto ser., no. 19.) pap., 50 c.

In the form of a story a realistic picture is given of the experience of a young Englishman, who comes to the United States in 1873, as a steerage passenger. He has but little money and a not very broad education, and goes through many rough episodes.

*Montefiore, Arthur. David Livingstone; his labors and his legacy. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell, 1890. 160 p. 12°, cl., 75 c.

Moorehead, Warren K., comp. Fort Ancient, the great prehistoric earthwork of Warren County, Ohio; compiled from a careful survey, with an account of its mounds and graves; with surveying notes. Cin., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1890. c. 10+129 p. il. and map. O. cl., $2.

Mr. Moorehead (of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington) and a competent staff of assistants spent the entire summer in making an accurate survey and exploration of this ancient work. Remarkable discoveries were made at the enclosure, two distinct races of aborigines having been found; a large village site has also been discovered in the Miami River bottoms five feet below the present surface. The il. are made from photographs taken in the field by A. J. Strong, and exhibit interesting sections of the embankment, gateways, mounds and their contents, graves, relics, skeletons, etc.

Morton, Martha. Hélène Buderoff; or, a strange duel. N. Y., J. W. Lovell Co., [1890.] c. '89. 2-198 p. D. (American authors' ser., no. 5.) pap., 50 c.

*New York state reporter; cont. all the current decisions of the courts of record of New York State, [etc.]; ed. by W. S. Gibbons. V. 26. With index and table of cases. Alb., N. Y., W. C. Little & Co., 1889. c. 10+31+1044 p. O. shp., $3.50.

Palmer, B. M., D.D. Formation of character: twelve lectures delivered in the First Presbyterian church, New Orleans, La. New Orleans, La., E. S. Upton, [1890.] c. '89. 222 p. S. cl., $1.

The subjects are the elements which enter into character; the influence of piety in forming character; obligation arising from a pious ancestry and from the trusts of life; obstacles to piety in the young; choice of amusements; sin of profane swearing, of Sabbath-breaking, of intemperance and sins of the flesh, and of gambling.

*Pennsylvania. The Penna. corporation act of 1874, and supplementary acts, with notes, forms, and index, by Angelo T. Freedley. 2d ed. Phil., T. & J. W. Johnson & Co., 1890. c. 7+5-213 p. O. shp., $3.

Quackenbos, J: D., M.D. Illustrated history of ancient literature, oriental and classical. New ed., rev. and corr. N. Y., Harper, 1890. c. '78, '89. 3-432 p. il. and map, D. cl., $1.50.

First published in 1878. The author is the well-known Adjunct Professor of the English Language and Literature at Columbia College, New York City. He has thoroughly revised the text, diagrams, and maps, according to the progress made in philological study during the last decade. A carefully selected bibliography and a chapter on Egyptian writing and literature enhance the value of the revision, which has been made with the assistance of well-known specialists.

*Rowe, G. Stringer. Alone with the word: devotional notes on the whole of the New Testament. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell, 1890. 424 p. 8°, cl., $2.25.

Schaff, Philip, D.D. Creed revision in the Presbyterian churches. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 5+67 p. O. pap., net, 50 c.

Dr. Schaff is in favor of revision. The world, he says, is moving and the church cannot stand still. This pamphlet, which contains his views in full, consists of two essays, one general in character and the other considering the subject from historical, doctrinal, and practical points of view.

Sickels, Ivin, M.D. Exercises in wood-working; with a short treatise on wood: written for manual training classes in schools and colleges. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. c. '89. 2-158 p. O. cl., $1.25.

The exercises now printed were prepared during 1883 for the College of the City of New York. Subsequent teaching suggested many changes and additions, and the results have been used in other schools. Mr. Bashford Dean has written the part referring to injurious insects specially for the volume in its present shape. Copiously illustrated. Full index.

Stickney, J. H. Word by word: an illustrated primary spelling-book for showing the structure of English words and training the vocal organs to clear enunciation. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1890. c. '89. 112 p. il. D. cl., 22 c.

*Tennyson, Alfred, (Lord.) Demeter and other poems. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 8°, cl., $1.25.

Truth Seekers' (The) annual and freethinkers' almanac, 1890. N. Y., The Truth Seeker Co., [1890.] c. 3-115 p. cl., O. pap., 25 c.

Veitch, Sophie F: F. The dean's daughter. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. 2+291 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 45.) pap., 50 c.

The heroine is introduced in her ninth year, a wild, untamed young creature—"a born Bohemian," as her governess calls her. She grows up in the "Deanery" and is its mistress when but eighteen. She is the centre of a strong plot, full of incidents, her story culminating in a romantic piece of self-sacrifice for a man she loves.

Verne, Jules. A family without a name. Pt. 1. N. Y., G: Munro, [1890.] 4-134 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1263.) pap., 20 c.

Vincent, Frank. Around and about South America; twenty months of quest and query.

N. Y., Appleton, 1890. c. 22+473 p. ll. and por. O. cl., $5.

Mr. Vincent made the entire circuit of South America. He visited every capital, chief city, and important seaport, made several expeditions into the interior of Brazil and the Argentine Republic, and ascended the Paraná, Paraguay, Amazon, Orinoco, and Magdalena Rivers; he inspected the coffee districts of Brazil, descended the gold mines; in brief, left no place of importance unvisited. Several interviews with Dom Pedro are of special interest.

Warren, F. M. A primer of French literature. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1889. c. 6+250 p. D. cl., 75 c.

This outline of French literature is based on lectures given in the Johns Hopkins University, and has therefore certain definite needs of instruction in mind. The original notes have, however, been worked over, enlarged, and separated into paragraphs, and can, by omission or expansion, be made to serve as a statement of facts for any period desired.

Whitby, Beatrice. The awakening of Mary Fenwick. N. Y., G: Munro, [1890.] 4-330 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1264.) pap., 20 c.

*Williams, C. J. B., M.D., and C: T., M.D. Pulmonary consumption; its etiology, pathology, and treatment; with an analysis of 1000 cases to exemplify its duration and modes of arrest. 2d ed. enl. and rewritten by Dr. C: T. Williams. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1890. 20+446 p. 8°, cl., $5.

Yejiro Ono. The industrial transition in Japan. Balt., Md., American Economic Assoc., [J: Murphy & Co.,] 1890. c. '89. 4+121 p. map, O. (Publications of the American Economic Assoc., v. 5, no. 1.) pap., $1.

The subject is treated in the following three divisions: The present industrial status of Japan; Steps necessary to complete the industrial transition; The probable social consequences of the industrial transition.

AUCTION SALES.

[We shall be pleased to insert under this heading, without charge, advance notices of auction sales to be held anywhere in the United States. Word must reach us before Wednesday evening, to be in time for issue of same week.]

FEBRUARY 3, 10 A.M. and 3 P.M.—Private library of theological and miscellaneous literature, a small collection of Americana, also a few law-books. (616 lots.)—Eschel & Bernheim.

FEBRUARY 3-5, 3 P.M.—Miscellaneous collection of books. (1002 lots.)—Bangs.

FEBRUARY 3-8.—S. L. Barlow collection of Rare Books (2784) sold by Am. Art Association, N. Y., under the management of J. O. Wright, of 860 Broadway. Books will be ready for inspection at the rooms of the Am. Art Association, January 24 or 25. (Catalogues now ready.)

FEBRUARY 6-7, 3:30 P.M.—Law-books. (494 lots.)—Bangs.

FEBRUARY 10-12, 3 P.M.—French and English literature. (1035 lots.)—Bangs.

FEBRUARY 11-13, 10 A.M. and 2 P.M.—Fine and rare books from private libraries. (1798 lots.)—C. F. Libbie & Co., Boston.

MARCH —.—Library of the late Hamilton Cole, of New York.—Bangs.

"ONE of the most extraordinary collections of books which has ever been offered for sale in Boston," says the Traveller, "has been placed in the hands of C. F. Libbie & Co., 13 Haywood Place, the well-known book auctioneers, by the owner, Mr. Gerald E. Hart, of Montreal. The catalogue is now in preparation, and the sale will probably occur some time in March. The publication of the catalogue will be awaited with a great deal of interest by book collectors, a few of whom have already had a glimpse of some of the choice rarities of the collection. The collection is rich in illuminated manuscripts, scarce French belles-lettres, and contains some fine specimens of old and historic bindings. That part of the American portion which relates to Canada is, it is no exaggeration to say, unequalled by anything ever before offered for sale in this city. It includes scarce maps, scarce tracts relating to the Montcalm and Wolfe campaign, original editions of Lescarbot, Champlain, Hennepin, and other early explorers, together with a choice and remarkably full collection of Canadian historical works and imprints. Other nuggets in the collection are 'Books of Hours,' printed on vellum, fine examples of Schayffer, Aldus, Pynson, and Parmatz presses, and there are also rare first editions of Milton, Burns, Defoe, and other English authors."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 1, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE undersigned relinquishes, until further notice, the active editorial management of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, and of the cognate publications issued from this office, to the associates who from the days of Mr. Leypoldt have been so helpful in bringing the work of the office to its present status. The limits of the business development of these enterprises, and the editorial improvement justifiable within those limits, seem in the current condition of the trade to have been practically reached for the present, while the editorial endeavors of the WEEKLY to promote a better condition of things have not brought about as full results as was hoped. Our present bibliographical system has received much commendation as the most complete book trade bibliography in the world, and we have had many "good words" from the trade as to the value of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, yet the increase of support has not kept fair pace with the increase of cost as we have developed our bibliographical system, and as other book papers have, on one ground or another, claimed the advertising patronage of publishers, the natural increment in the support of the WEEKLY has been diverted to them, often with explanations from publishers that they took this course against their own desire. There is probably no trade which so requires the service of a well-organized and enterprising trade journal, because information about books is vital in selling them, none in which the cost of preparation is comparatively so great, none in which the advertising returns are proportionately so little, and none, we hope, in which the question is so often raised by houses of intelligence—"Does it do us any good?" THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has done well, under prudent and careful business management, but never adequately to the work put into it, and in determining to concentrate his attention on large interests outside of the book trade, the undersigned offers this frank explanation, in the hope that it may not be without its effect. The associates who have so fully cared for the interests of the trade during the absences of the undersigned abroad will continue in charge, and those interests will be safe in their hands. There will be no immediate change in the business arrangements which will involve any alteration in business methods. The undersigned, who will still remain for the present in ultimate control, will also lend his help in suggestion and counsel to the editorial staff, and trusts, indeed, to be in a position from which to authorize a more full development of the WEEKLY in certain directions than he has hitherto felt justified in venturing. The personal relations formed through his associations with the book trade do not easily permit a final "good-bye."

R. R. BOWKER.

WE regret to learn that the pressure upon Superintendent Porter, of the Eleventh Census, for the enlargement of the decennial investigation by special inquiry in many new directions, is so strong that he finds it necessary, in order to keep the work within reasonable bounds, to curtail investigation except in cases where the demand is backed up by a practically united sentiment of those engaged in the industry and a general concurrence in the advisability and practicability of the special investigation proposed. The letters which the Census Bureau has received from book publishers do not show any such unanimity and general agreement, and a number of houses of importance have not only doubted the practicability of a census of book publishing, but have almost opposed such an inquiry. It is probable, under these circumstances, that the Superintendent will not decide to undertake a special inquiry as to book publication. We can only regret that the public spirit of the trade is at so low an ebb that a census which might be of the utmost value in showing the progress or retrogression of the book trade, and therefore of real business applicability, has so little support as to practically compel the Superintendent to this negative decision.

THE beauties of bankruptcy in the book trade become more and more evident with progress in that fine art. In making inquiry at the end of the year as to a claim upon Messrs. Parham & Co., of Richmond, Va., we received from the lawyers who are their trustees answer to this effect: "We regret to say that there is no earthly chance of there being any dividend to your claim; we have managed to pay the first class in full and 50 per cent. to the second, and hope to pay the latter hereafter a small dividend, of which, however, there is some doubt; but the third class, in which is your claim, cannot, as far as we can see, ever be reached." This was a statement of surprising coolness, especially in view of previous correspondence with the bankrupt house in question, and on further inquiry as to the rationale of this beautiful division into three classes, we learned further from the trustees: "The law of Virginia is well settled that a debtor having a deed of assignment has a right to prefer one or more creditors over others and make one or more classes of creditors. This right of preference Parham & Co. exercised." Virginia has already won reputation as a public repudiationist, but we are sorry to find that the State habit has shown itself among private citizens also.

THE climax of glory has now been reached by literature and the book trade—a soap has been called "Book Soap," and a different book each time is promised with every bar of soap. This is even ahead of putting a nickel in the slot and getting out a book. Truly the world moves—backward or forward. However, the Book Soap scheme has this mitigation, that it deals with really good books instead of the pseudonymous trash connected with the slot system.

THE STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE DINNER.

THE members and guests of the Stationers' Board of Trade, about 150 men in all, discussed the fourteenth annual dinner of that association in the large and handsomely decorated dining-hall at Delmonico's, January 30. After the coffee, the President, Mr. Geo. L. Pease, briefly alluded to the successful working of the Association, and introduced as the first speaker Hon. J. J. O'Donohue, the "coffee king," who favored the company with interesting reminiscences of the old New York merchants. The Rev. Dr. R. A. Simpson responded to the toast, "Paper, and Its Relation to Literature." Joe Howard, Jr., gave his opinion, in his characteristic and not over-delicate manner, on "The Press;" and Mr. Jos. C. Hendrix, Postmaster of Brooklyn, delivered a ringing speech on "The Public Service." Letters of regret were sent by Judge J. R. Brady and Mr. G. W. Childs. The Hon Chauncey M. Depew and the band, who were expected to edify the company each in their own way, failed to put in an appearance. At the table on the dais, beside the President and the speakers already referred to, sat Wm. I. Martin, J. P. Adams, I. M. Longhead, J. L. Bishop, Walter Berlin, and W. H. Borum.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

THE APPLETON MEMORIAL TO THE PAN-AMERICAN CONGRESS.

THE following is the text of the memorandum on international copyright submitted to the Pan-American Congress by D. Appleton & Co., whose connections with Spanish-American countries are very general, because of the considerable number of Spanish books published by them:

The necessity for an international universal copyright union has been for the last few years much discussed by the majority of nations. Since the Berne Convention of 1887 every leading nation of Europe has adopted the regulations there set forth. The lack of similar International Copyright laws between the United States and the Spanish-American countries is a constant injury to all concerned.

At the present time, a book by an American author translated into Spanish and published here can be reprinted in Europe and placed in South American markets in competition with the American edition, and a book by a Spanish-American author, printed here, can be reprinted in Europe and sold in all Spanish-American countries excepting the one of the author. In each case the American publisher, printer, and paper manufacturer are injured, and both the American and Spanish-American authors are deprived of their copyright.

Many examples could be given to illustrate this, but the following will suffice: Some years ago a New York publishing house undertook the publication of an edition in Spanish of Asa Smith's Geography. In addition to the cost of the translation, illustrations, etc., they had to pay copyright to the American author. The book was put on the market, and soon after there appeared two or three reprints made in France. The French publisher had only to reproduce a work ready to his hand without the expense of translation, or making the maps and illustrations, and without paying copyright to the author. Under these circumstances he could afford to undersell the original work; thus, besides injuring the interests of the American publisher, printer, and all concerned, he deprived the American author of his just copyright. What happened in this case is happening every day in others. Among numerous instances may be mentioned 'Krusi's Drawing-Books,' 'Cornell's Geography,' several science primers, 'Smith's Astronomy,' Perkins' and Grand's arithmetics, all of which were printed here in large numbers in former years, and now are almost entirely forced out of the Spanish-American market by European reprints. On the other hand, the works of M. Marroquin, of Colombia, for instance, are printed in this country by the undersigned (who pay copyright to the author, as well as to many other Spanish-American authors, notwithstanding there is no copyright treaty). These were reprinted not long ago by a French publisher, who not only placed the book in all the Spanish-American countries, including even Colombia, the author's country, where he had secured copyright. Here, again, the American publisher was injured, and the Spanish-American author deprived of his copyright. Similar cases happen with works of many other South and Central American authors, whose books are published in this country. Among these are Ortiz, Carreño, Sarmiento, Núñez, Bello, Cáceres, Royo, Márquez, Rosales, Rojas, Ybarra, and Mantilla.

"With the increasing interest taken lately in education in most of the Spanish-American countries the demand for books is growing daily, and with the facilities that this country affords for the printing of books it should be the natural place for them to come, whether for works from American authors translated into Spanish or for those of Spanish-American authors. But in the present state of things, when the interests of both the publisher and author are unprotected, it is impossible for these relations to extend to any great degree. American publishers have so often been disappointed and injured by piratical editions of their publications made abroad that they naturally hesitate about new ventures, whether in translation or in Spanish. Two or three years ago there was advertised in Spanish-American papers a book to teach languages, written by a South American author and published by a Boston house. Recently, while travelling in South and Central America, a representative of our house saw the book almost everywhere, but instead of the Boston edition it was one produced in Paris; so that the South American author and the American publisher were advertising the book for the benefit of the Paris publisher. Many other American publishers have suffered in the same way.

With a copyright treaty between the United States and the Spanish-American countries, not only will the book commerce between these countries increase, but the Spanish-American authors will be able to have their books properly printed here and derive some benefit from their labors.

As to the form of copyright treaty, the provisions of the International Copyright Union signed at the Berne Convention, and now in force between the majority of nations, could be adopted as a basis for the copyright union between the American countries. The copyright treaty, also, between Spain and some of the Spanish-American nations may be worthy of consideration by the International American Congress.

D. APPLETON & Co.

COPYRIGHT AND TELEPHONES.

From the N. Y. Times, Jan. 29, 1890.

A WELL-KNOWN millionaire appeared last week before the House Committee on the Judiciary "in behalf of the public," as he said, to oppose the pending bill for international copyright. The gentleman who so generously devoted his time and labor to the service of the people was Gardiner G. Hubbard, the leading figure in the Bell Telephone Company from the earliest days of that organization and the most favored beneficiary of the very profitable monopoly secured to that company by certain patents.

This self-appointed champion of the people said to the committee that "if the public demanded the works of an American author the demand should be granted." He went even further, and declared that "if the good of the community demanded it, the American author should be refused an American copyright." That is to say, the American author should be deprived of the power to publish the work of his brains through the exclusive agency of publishers chosen by himself, and thus to enjoy the just reward of his labor, and should be compelled to see his writings printed and sold by all persons willing to satisfy the public "demand" for them without paying the real owner of the property for this profitable use of it. Mr. Hubbard appears to desire, above all things, that the writings of authors shall be cheap. He assured the committee that the pending bill would give to a few houses "a monopoly of book publication," and he left an impression that to the service of the people as against monopolies and the high prices exacted by them he intended to consecrate the energies of his declining years.

But why has he never sought to apply to the telephone business the doctrines set forth by him before the committee? It is commonly reported that Mr. Hubbard has accumulated about $10,000,000 out of the profits of the Bell Telephone Company. If an American author should, in the face of a popular "demand" for his writings, be deprived of the power to preserve what he calls his rights in the property created by himself, why should the inventor of a telephone be protected by a patent and thus be enabled to take $100,000,000, more or less, from the American people for the use of his invention? The patent that made Mr. Hubbard a millionaire gave to the Bell Company an absolute monopoly, and the company has shamefully abused the privileges so granted. Did it occur to Mr. Hubbard that his remarks about impending monopoly and high prices in the publishing business might remind some one of the notorious record of the company doing business on the patents of Bell?

Moreover, the monopoly that has brought him millions to him is declared by the law officers of the United States to have been based not on honest patents, but on fraud. The company has for some time been defending a suit in which the government makes this allegation. The company's course has been characterized by almost insatiate greed. It has exacted exorbitant rates from local companies for the use of instruments; it has compelled those companies to water their stock, and, either directly or indirectly, to exact exorbitant charges for service. It has checked the progress of improvement in the art. It has sought by procuring action in collusive proceedings in the Patent Office to prolong its monopoly beyond the term allotted in the original patents. If in any case "the good of the community" may justly "demand" that an American author shall be deprived of the protection afforded by a copyright, is not the overthrow of this monopoly demanded for "the good of the community"? If the people were required to select some one to appear in behalf of their interests in relation to either copyright or patents, they would not choose Mr. Hubbard.

HOUSE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE HEARINGS.

From Associated Press Despatches.

A HEARING before the House Committee on the Judiciary for and against the pending International Copyright Bill was begun on January 24, Mr. Gardiner G. Hubbard making an argument in opposition.

He appeared in behalf of the public, he said, which was largely interested in the pending bill. The works of American authors were to-day published in England as largely as the works of English authors—Longfellow had a greater circulation than Tennyson. The demand for cheap literature in America had reacted on England and produced an enormous demand there for cheap literature. This bill would increase the price of books in this country, and that was its object. The only demand for its passage came from some Eastern publishers and authors and some Philadelphia stereotypers.

There was a large Western, Northwestern, and Southern opposition to the bill, Mr. Hubbard claimed. [This statement was supported by Mr. Rogers, of Arkansas, a member of the committee.] There was more reading-matter published in America than in any country in the world, and it was owing to cheap books. Less than a quarter of the books published in this country last year were works of fiction, and this should be a sufficient answer to the statement that only the worst books were published here. The original Hawley bill was the only measure that fully met the authors' views; but to placate the publishers and typesetters they had been obliged to compromise on the pending bill. The typesetters and founders favored the bill. Only two books out of ten paid the expense of publication.

If the public demanded the works of an American author the demand should be granted. If the good of the community demanded it, the American author should be refused an American copyright; that was also true of patents. [He was largely interested in patents himself.] Any other course would be unconstitutional. He doubted that if the price of foreign books was raised it would increase the demand for American books. The reading public would have what it wanted.

The Chairman suggested that a large element of the public consumed vicious French novels because they were cheap and accessible. Would it not be desirable to keep out this class of literature? he asked.

Mr. Hubbard replied that it would, if American authors did not furnish works of corresponding type. He read statistics to show that the American publications had largely increased in late years and that the American author was not suffering under the existing state of affairs.

On January 25 Mr. Hubbard continued his argument, saying that it was for the good of the people that we should have a domestic copyright law, but its benefits should be confined to American citizens.

Mr. Buchanan asked if we were justified in preying upon foreign authors.

Mr. Hubbard replied that the result of the present system was cheap books, and the interests of the people were therefore best served. The effect of the pending bill would be to throw the entire sale of English copyrighted books into the hands of branches of the English publishing houses located in America. He doubted if the largest publishing houses in this country favored the bill.

In answer to this statement, a gentleman present read a letter from Harper & Bros. endorsing the Chace bill.

Continuing, Mr. Hubbard said that authors were rarely business men, and the publishers usually regulated the terms of publication. The relations existing between authors and publishers were intimate, but not satisfactory to the authors.

Mr. Adams asked if the London Times did not believe that under the terms of the bill the business of book publishing would be transferred to this country, and that New York would be the greatest publishing city in the world.

Mr. Hubbard replied that he did not know. Certainly, if the bill passed, it would not be long before the American publishers opened branch houses in London to publish American books there. He wanted a bill that would secure the author's rights in his own property, and this bill did not, and allow him to publish where he pleased. The pending bill would create a great trust on both sides of the Atlantic, and give to a few houses a monopoly of book publication, with resulting high prices. He had changed his views, and now believed that the original Hawley bill would do more harm than good. He did not believe that the American authors fully understood the case, and was convinced that they would not be benefited by the passage of the Chace bill.

It was an admitted fact that the authors' status in this bill was not satisfactory to them, and they had been forced into it by the publishers and type-setters. The English authors, so far as he was aware, did not favor this bill; and some of their papers gave notice that if the bill passed they would demand of the English Government the adoption of a measure that would give them reciprocal advantages. If the foreign literature was driven out, as proposed, it would result in enhanced prices for all American books; and the interests of the people would not be served.

Mr. R. U. Johnson, Secretary of the Copyright League, explained that the authors' advocacy of the Hawley bill was not because they did not favor the pending bill, but because they did not think it was their business to undertake to care for the other interests affected until they had signified a desire to be included in the provisions of a copyright bill. There was only one American author who did not favor the bill; the authors were practically unanimous in its favor. He denied that American publishing houses had opposed the original bill in 1873.

Mr. Rogers, a member of the committee, said that he knew a dozen who had been opposed to the bill a year ago, and proceeded to name some of them.

Mr. Johnson having objected that one of the firms named was engaged in reprinting English books, Mr. Rogers replied that they stood on as good a footing as the other publishers, for they had all been doing the same thing, and the men who had been pirating should not throw black mud at those who continued the practice.

On January 30 Messrs. J. L. Kennedy, Dewitt C. Chadwick, and H. S. Sutton, a committee representing the International Typographical Union, appeared before the committee. Mr. Kennedy made an able argument, which was listened to with much interest by the members of the committee. He was questioned closely by them. He said that printers favored the bill because they believed that it would greatly stimulate book printing in the United States. The London Times had expressly stated that its passage would transfer the publishing interests of the world from England to America. Mr. Kennedy coincided with this view, and showed why it would do so.

One of the committeemen expressed a fear that it would throw many printers now employed in publishing houses that reprint English fiction and other books out of employment. Mr. Kennedy said that the officers of Typographical Union No. 6 averred that this mine had already petered out. To-day only scores of printers are employed upon such work where formerly hundreds were employed. The works are now put in type by stereotype establishments, known to the craft as "sawmills." A book is really put in type only once. Then the stereotype plates are sold to different publishing houses, who issue separate editions of the work, and put different imprints upon them. Instead of the type being set in a dozen different establishments, it was really set in only one, and the plates distributed to the other dozen.

Another member of the committee thought that the passage of the bill would increase the cost of literature to the people. Mr. Kennedy argued that this could not be so, for the competition would be so great that books would be sold at as low a rate as they are to-day. He gave several instances in support of his statement.

At the conclusion of Mr. Kennedy's argument he was warmly thanked by several members of the committee. One of the members, who has heretofore been on the fence, came out boldly for the bill.

A WORD ABOUT BOOKMEN(?).

THE funny things said by the ignorant bookseller or his ignorant customer have furnished food to scores of scribes, as foils for their more or less funny inventions. As a matter of fact, the exhibitions of conceit, folly, and ignorance seen by an intelligent bookseller are many and tiring. It is a well-known fact that cultured men in the book business are, so to speak, a minus quantity. Like master, like man. The clerks in bookstores, especially outside the great cities, are chiefly remarkable for their absolute ignorance of literature and of matter literary. Not long since I was employed temporarily in a bookstore just outside of New York. One day a customer came in and asked a fellow-clerk for some book the name of which I did not catch. After looking among a lot of Seaside Libraries in a vague, uncertain way, Master clerk came back to the writer and inquired despairingly, "Is there a book published called 'Hamlet'?" This young man, aged about twenty-one, had been three years in the same bookstore. Another day a lady wanted a book for a present to her husband. We suggested a set of Shakespeare's Works. "Oh!" said madam, "he read that when it first came out." She eventually selected half a dozen of E. P. Roe's books as being "nicer." We had in the store a young fellow, for whose ignorance there was some excuse, as his experience in books was only of some six months' duration, but who imagined that in that period he had completely mastered the details and intricacies of a business that is never learned. He was serving a well-known local politician, a man of means and standing in the community, when the latter took down a copy of the "Inferno," illustrated with Doré's designs. After a few minutes' inspection, his curiosity aroused by the wonderful picture, he turned to the young man and asked, "What is it all about anyway—the bad things of life?" Delighted at being able to air his learning, the bookman (?) proceeded to give the funniest description of the "Inferno" that has ever been given. "Well, yes, it's what we see as we go through life, all what we are not to do and what bad people do." "Well, was he an American?" "Oh, no, German, I think—but he's dead now."

Then the pair moved on. It may be thought such examples of gross ignorance are rare. The reverse is a fact—they are only too common. How many book clerks—outside of Boston, of course, and say New York—are there who could sit down and reply to an examination paper dealing with such questions as the date of the publication of Walton's "Angler," the circumstances under which the "Pilgrim's Progress" was written, the date of the first complete edition of Shakespeare's Works and the value of a fine copy? How many could tell us what the "Arcopagitica" is, and by whom written?

Take any other profession and put parallel questions, and I will assert that the answers are 75 per cent. better than the book clerks'. Could not the great clubs of men—lovers of books—such as the Groller, institute competitive examinations at periodical intervals, giving perhaps small prizes, or better still certificates of competency, to educated book clerks who have proved their knowledge.

It would be a useful and beneficial work and one that would be fully appreciated and helpful to all bookbuyers and book-lovers. Such examinations would have a stimulating and educating effect, which should raise in a marvellous way the whole tone of the trade. For, to give the poor clerks their due, they are really anxious to learn.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING COMPANY.

FOR some time rumors more or less definite have been afloat of a change in the American branch of the old house of Cassell & Company. This week affairs have finally taken definite shape, and announcement is made of the separation of the American branch from the parent house. A corporation has been formed under the laws of New York by which the American house will be carried on under the name of The Cassell Publishing Company, of which Mr. O. M. Dunham is President; Mr. W. H. Wagstaff, Treasurer; and Mr. W. T. Belding, Secretary. The organization and working force remain unchanged, and the house will represent Cassell & Company as sole agents in the United States and Canada, as it will be represented by Cassell & Company abroad. The change will be noticeable chiefly in the direction of progress on lines purely American. Heretofore the management in this country was restricted in many ways by considerations which an independent American house would not have been under obligations to observe, so that the future policy of the house will naturally be broader and more comprehensive. With Mr. Dunham (who has just rounded his fourteenth year in the service of the Cassells) at the head, seconded by his able assistants, the house rests on a firm foundation, and success is assured. We have from time to time prophesied the upward movement of this house, which under Mr. Dunham's able care and management now stands in the front rank of the book industry of this country. The firm's English and American history is too well known for us to dwell upon any of its incidents here. We merely offer our warm congratulations at the outset of the new plan, and again confidently prophesy sure and rapid prosperity.

THE AUTHORSHIP OF "THE WRONG BOX" SET RIGHT.

From Bok's "Literary Leaves."

I SEE that some of the papers are again reviving that foolish story of Robert Louis Stevenson not writing the story of "The Wrong Box." I think I can give the full history of this story from the beginning, and for the first time. When Stevenson was spending the winter in the Adirondacks two years ago, his step-son, Lloyd Osborne, suggested the plot of "The Wrong Box." Stevenson, who has a much higher opinion of Osborne's abilities than any one else, took up the idea, and suggested that they write the story together—a compact which was followed out at once

The main portion of the narrative Stevenson wrote with his own hand, he rewrote much of what Osborne contributed to the "skit," and revised and amended the rest. When the family went toward the Pacific Ocean in the spring the manuscript was still incomplete. It was, however, so much corrected and in so poor a condition that it was copied by typewriter in the office of the Messrs. Scribner. This typewriter copy was sent after the roving Stevenson family to the Sandwich Islands, where both of the authors took it up, finished it, and got a small fortune for the "complete rights." When it was published the critics condemned it with one voice, but it sold largely just the same. And this is the true inward history of "The Wrong Box."

A HISTORY OF PRINTING IN NEW YORK CITY.

NOTWITHSTANDING many attempts, the history of printing in this country still remains to be written. From time to time, an antiquary or member of the craft, surprised and mortified that no adequate record is in existence, has endeavored at once and in the space of half a lifetime to make good the deficiency—only to find at the end of his allotted years that the subject has been one of greater magnitude than he had foreseen. The result has been a fragmentary and wholly insufficient account of periods in the history of the "art preservative of arts." Profiting by the experience of his predecessors, Mr. W. W. Pasko, an old New York journalist and printer, who is well known as Secretary and Librarian of the Typothetæ, has for a number of years been collecting material with a view of writing the history of printing only in so far as it relates to New York City.

The work will be the first history of the press in any town of the United States, and the second which has been written upon the progress of the art in America. It will be primarily and chiefly a history of printing, as shown in its development here in methods, appliances, and materials, with biographies of the leading men who have been concerned in its labors, but it will also embrace all subsidiary or related trades or professions. For nearly all of them it will attempt to be fuller than any previously published narrative. The book will begin with the attempt of Governor Lovelace to procure a printer from the neighborhood of Boston, in which he was unsuccessful, and will show why Colonel Fletcher, who after some years succeeded Lovelace in office, desired to obtain the services of Bradford, who had lately fallen into disfavor with the Quakers of Philadelphia. From the arrival of Bradford in 1693 down through the next century his works and those of his successors, Gaine, Parker, Rivington, and others, have been carefully studied, and much additional light is thrown upon the narrative contained in Thomas. From 1793 down to the present time, now nearly another hundred years, the improvements in the art, the division of the printers' calling into more than a hundred allied occupations, and the examples of material growth have been thoroughly examined and will be fully narrated. Many trades have come into existence since that date, such as electrotyping, news-dealing, and lithographing, and others have been introduced here that previously were known in only a few of the wealthier towns of the Old World. By these vocations more than twenty-five thousand persons in New York City now make their livelihood, as compared with a hundred and fifty thus engaged a century ago, and Bradford alone, the forerunner of all of them, two centuries since.

No editor who lived by his pen was known here before Dr. Noah Webster, who died not much more than forty years ago, and no author can be named who was supported by his books until a period much more recent than the beginning of the century. Type was not regularly cast till 1810; publishing began as a separate business not earlier than 1785; iron presses were not built before 1817; the first wood-engraver died within twenty five years of to-day, and the first advertising agent is still living. Yet there are now in New York City twenty-five hundred persons who depend upon writing for the press for their bread; the typefounders send their products all over the globe; single firms of publishers receive and pay out many millions of dollars a year; the greatest press manufactory in the world is located here; hundreds of people live by making illustrations for the press, and our advertising brokers now number more than five hundred. The newspapers and periodicals will soon reach a thousand. In the "History of Printing in New York" the developments of each of these great industries will be shown; how one was evolved from another, what were the conditions which preceded each change, in what way the problem was accomplished, and what manner of men they were through whom these things were done. Nothing will be neglected that diligence could discover; nothing omitted in the narrative that would make it plainer. The story will be technical as well as popular. A full description of processes, tools, and machinery that were and are used will be given, while at the same time this portion will not be so extensive nor so strictly professional as to destroy the value of the work to the general reader. Researches for this History were begun twenty years ago, when there were those living who remembered nearly to the Revolution, and from them and the descendants of those who lived at about the beginning of this century have been derived much valuable material. The researches of Moore, Hildeburn, and others have increased our knowledge of pre-Revolutionary men and books much beyond what is contained in Thomas, while for later years Mr. Pasko has had the assistance of David Bruce, Jr., the inventor of the type-casting machine; Theodore L. DeVinne, the author of "The Invention of Printing," the first President of the United Typothetæ of America; William C. Martin, the President of the Typothetæ of New York, and the late Peter Carpenter Baker, who for over forty years made collections upon this subject.

Great use has been made of the records of the Typographical Society, the Typothetæ, and the Typographical Association, together with those of some other societies. Between them there is a connected account of the art here since 1809. Printers' journals, typefounders' specimen-books, and the catalogues of all trades connected with printing have been examined. Among original unprinted sources are the account-books of Mathew Carey, the eminent publisher of Philadelphia; Jonas Booth, who made the first power press ever in New York, and who was a printer of eminence; Robert Aitken, a printer in Philadelphia at the time of the Revolution, and Roger Prout, the first ink-maker of New York City. The diary of Dr. Alexander Anderson, the engraver, is full of information. Files of New York and Philadelphia newspapers from the beginning have been consulted, and references have been made to all works likely to give assistance. A vast amount of information has been derived from paper-dealers, publishers, printers, and press-makers who are now or have been lately living.

While this book will be in no sense a history of literature or literary work, it will have much that is interesting to all authors, journalists, and publishers. The cost of getting out books in the past will be shown; what the authors received; how much went to the printer; how much to the bookbinder. Histories of booksellers will be included, as well as descriptions of their former methods of trade, and an account of the Typothetæ. There will also be given various scales of prices for labor since 1800, and a history of the several trades unions. It is not generally known that some society of this kind has existed here since 1796.

The History will be in chronological order, the first pages being occupied with a narration of the circumstances which induced Bradford to settle in New York. His trial and that of Zenger will be given in full. The succeeding events down to and through the Revolution will be described, and following this will be a narrative of the changes that slowly began to be made, such as the introduction of typefounding and stereotyping, the beginning of the sale of paper upon commission, the manufacture of ink, the extension of book publishing and bookselling, the multiplication of newspapers, the first attempts at wood-engraving and its subsequent progress, the construction of wooden and iron presses, ending in the building of swift machines, the manufacture of stationery, the cutting of wood type, the discovery of electrotyping and lithography, and the perfecting and elaborating of all the arts which enter into the making of a book, a newspaper, a circular, or a handbill at the present time. This will be illustrated by more than a thousand biographical sketches, and by several hundred maps, diagrams, illustrations of machinery and tools, views, fac-similes, and portraits.

It will be handsomely printed on American hand-made paper, and will be contained in two quarto volumes, of about five hundred pages each. There will be appropriate head and tail pieces, the latter generally being by Anderson, his own blocks being used.

The edition will be strictly limited to five hundred copies at twenty dollars a copy. The work will be delivered in parts as rapidly as possible, it being expected that about two years will be required to complete the impression.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GEORGE S. PLUMMER, known among the medical profession and the book trade in his capacity as manager of the subscription-book department of Messrs. William Wood & Company, died at his house at New Rochelle, Jan. 25, 1890. Mr. Plummer was born in Maine about 1843, and after considerable mercantile experience, interested himself in the sale of some of the more important publications of Messrs. William Wood & Company as their canvasser in the New England States and British provinces. The extraordinary success which marked his efforts was a natural result of his energetic work and his personal popularity. About 1882 he came to New York and assumed entire charge of the sale of William Wood & Company's subscription-books. His capacity for the work to which he had been called was fully demonstrated by the success following his efforts, and the genial disposition which directed his work made for him a host of friends, including those immediately associated with him in business, and the many customers to whom he became personally known.

BUSINESS NOTES.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—We regret to note the failure of A. Setliff (Setliff & Co.), bookseller and stationer. Mr. Setliff wishes to continue the business, and proposes to pay 25 cents on the dollar, cash, or  $33\frac{1}{3}$  cents on the dollar in acceptably endorsed notes, at three, six, and nine months without interest. Mr. Setliff dates his failure back to 1873, the panic of which year caught him with a large indebtedness, which, after an effort of three years to pay, culminated in 1876 in his compromising at 40 cents on the dollar. That amount he borrowed from friends, which left him still in debt several thousand dollars. We think we are safe in endorsing this statement to his creditors that "if close attention, hard work, and constant study of my business could have accomplished what I feel it ought, I would not now be compelled to come before you with this statement."

NEW YORK CITY.—The Welch, Fracker Company have removed to 37 Great Jones Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—Cassell & Co. have transferred their rights in the American house, 104 Fourth Avenue, to the Cassell Publishing Co., incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. For fuller account see elsewhere in this issue.

NEW YORK CITY.—The firm of E. P. Dutton & Co., having been dissolved by the death of Edward C. Swayne, will be continued by Edward P. Dutton and Charles A. Clapp under the same firm-name.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Chicago Sunday Herald for January 12, contains interesting gossip on the patrons of old bookstores made up of interviews with Wells B. Sizer and G. W. Barker, well-known Chicago antiquarians.

WE are sorry to note that Mr. A. E. Benjamin has determined to suspend the publication of his excellent little journal, The Book-Lover. The reason is lack of support and the persistency his accounts have of swelling on the wrong side.

EMIL WALK, Kurze Strasse 13, Leipzig, who has recently opened business for himself as publisher and bookseller, announces a fortnightly Internationale Bibliographie, which is to be devoted to the interests of booksellers and book-buyers.

Chatter is the title of a new weekly paper published in New York under the editorial management of Julian E. Ralph, who is pleasantly remembered as the author of the "Monkey Barber" sketches in the Sun. Chatter is modelled somewhat after the English publication Tid-bits, and sold at the exceedingly low price of three cents. Its special peculiarity is that a current copy is a free railroad accident policy for $250 through the Standard Life and Accident Insurance Company of Detroit.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

FLEMING H. REVELL sailed for London on January 22 by the White Star steamer Britannic.

THE late Henry P. Nichols, publisher, in his will, leaves $16,000 as public bequests, $5000 of which goes to the Salem Public Library.

THE Oneida Historical Society, of Utica, N. Y., has in preparation a new and more complete list of historical societies in the United States.

GEORGE ALLEN (Mr. Ruskin's publisher) has decided upon starting a London house (Bell Yard), to relieve the pressure on his premises at Orpington.

WHITE & ALLEN will publish at once a new edition of Mrs. Champney's already famous book for girls, "Witch Winnie, the Story of a King's Daughter," the first edition of which was exhausted in December.

N. MURRAY, P. O. Drawer 2, Baltimore, Md., invites subscriptions to a limited edition of a proposed volume of the principal literary essays and studies of Prof. Basil L. Gildersleeve, of Johns Hopkins University.

WORTHINGTON Co. will shortly add to their International Library "The Pastor's Daughter," by W. Heimburg, translated by Mr. J. W. Davis, illustrated in photogravure, and gotten up in same attractive style as this author's already published stories.

E. L. BYNNER, the author of "Agnes Surriage" and "The Begum's Daughter," is the librarian of the Law Library of Boston. Arlo Bates says of him in College and School that he is fond of nature and of flowers, a wholesome and sane man, with a certain out-door air about him that is refreshing.

HANS VON WOLZOGEN has just published a small volume, entitled "Richard Wagner, und die Thierwelt," which treats of the great composer in relation to the animal world, and tells many anecdotes of the dogs, parrots, and other pets which he kept about him, and on which he lavished so much fondness.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish immediately "Church and Creed," by Prof. Momerie, the noted London preacher; "The Battle of Life," mission sermons by the Rev. Wilmot Buxton; "Thought Seed for Holy Seasons," by the Rev. Robert S. Barrett; and Prof. Buel's able "Treatise on Dogmatic Theology" in two volumes.

LOUIS NICCOLAI, Florence, has issued the eleventh part of Prof. De Gubernati's "Dictionnaire International des Ecrivains du jour," reaching Jalabert. For the part relating to Italian writers this work is practically invaluable, though ridiculously inadequate and unreliable in the parts treating of non-Italian authors.

SANFRED & Co., whose address is P. O. Box 1796, New York, will publish at once a new book by Mrs. Florence Finch-Kelly, author of "Frances—a story for men and women." Its rather puzzling title, "On the Inside," is partially explained by a remark of the heroine quoted on the title-page, "I wanted to get on the inside of life and see the wheels go round."

OWING to Mr. Ruskin's continued illness, work on his "Præterita" has been indefinitely suspended. It is explained that Mr. Ruskin intended not only to complete three volumes of "Præterita," but also to write thirty-six chapters of supplementary autobiography under the head of "Dilecta," only two chapters of which have as yet seen the light, to say nothing of a further supplementary volume dealing with his work at Oxford.

JEFFERSON DAVIS' autobiography beyond a few chapters remains unwritten. Mr. Davis, however, left the necessary data in such shape that there will be no difficulty in compiling and completing the work. This matter, according to a correspondent of the N. Y. Sun, who interviewed Mrs. Davis on the subject, will be entrusted to two very capable gentlemen, one of whom was a close friend of Mr. Davis, and the other is conspicuous for his literary accomplishments and his practical experience in the art of book-making.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. entered suit in the Federal Court at Indianapolis, on January 19, against J. E. Sherrill, of Danville, and William P. Hart, of Osgood, Ind., for infringement of copyright. The alleged infringement consists in the publication by Sherrill of a book entitled "American Poets," of which Hart is named as the editor. Among the poems alleged to be pirated are Whittier's "Barbara Frietchie," "The Courtin'" of Lowell, Bayard Taylor's "Song of the Camp," and many other equally famous works.

IN connection with the work of the Prison Association, and in order to afford temporary employment to well-intentioned discharged prisoners, the Prison Association, of 135 E. 15th Street, New York, has established a Bureau of Information and Research, and for furnishing press clippings. The work affords a test and a livelihood to many a man who wants to reform. In order to further promote this work, which has an economic as well as a philanthropic value, the Prison Association are asking publishers throughout the State and country to donate subscriptions of their several papers, and for such aid as the public may be able to give.

FUNK & WAGNALLS have in preparation "Wendell Phillips, the Agitator," by Carlos Martyn, who enjoyed a personal acquaintance with America's great orator and philanthropist, and can give his work the anecdotal and personal features so attractive in biography; "The Economics of Prohibition," by Rev. J. C. Fernald; and "A Cyclopædia of Temperance and Prohibition," designed for special workers and family use. Two well-known metropolitan clergymen have also prepared books for this house which will shortly appear, as "The Seven Churches of Asia," by Howard Crosby, and "Calvary Pulpit, or, Christ and Him crucified," a volume of sermons by Dr. R. S. MacArthur.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will have ready next week "Conversations in a Studio," by William W. Story, a two-volume work which will again prove this American sculptor equally at home in art and literature and possessed of a charming unconventional style; "A History of the Old South Church, Boston," by Hamilton Hill, giving numerous illustrations; Part IX. of the third series of W. H. Edwards' "The Butterflies of North America," with three colored plates and descriptive text; and "American Whist Illustrated," by G. W. Pettes, a digest of his former books, "American Whist" and "Whist Universal," with all amendments and revisions required.

by recent inventions and improvements. They will also have ready as volume 3 of American Religious Leaders "William Augustus Muhlenberg," by William W. Newton; in the Riverside Paper Series, Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Agnes of Sorrento;" in the Riverside Literature Series No. 44, containing Maria Edgeworth's "Waste not, Want not," and "Barring Out" from "The Parent's Assistant;" and as an extra number of this series "The Riverside Manual for Teachers," by I. F. Hall, Superintendent of Schools, Leominster, Mass., containing suggestions and illustrative lessons leading up to "Primary Reading." The house also calls attention to "The Riverside Instruction Frame," made of wood, 2 by 3 feet, a new invention to facilitate the teaching of language, reading, and writing in primary schools, equipped with outline language pictures by I. Freeman Hall. They have in preparation "The North Shore Watch, and other poems," by George E. Woodberry, to be gotten out in a novel and artistic binding; also, the "Reminiscences" of Montagu Williams, the eminent criminal lawyer of London, who is believed to have defended more criminals in England than any other man now living.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

HENRY C. SQUIRES, 178 Broadway, N. Y., has succeeded in preparing for sportsmen what that friend of good literature—Sylvestre Bonnard—declared a catalogue of old books should be—"the most delightful of all volumes." This Mr. Squires has accomplished in a sumptuous quarto entitled "Descriptive Catalogue and Price-List of Sportsmen's Supplies," in which the lover of outdoor sports and the seeker after health and pleasure may derive information as to what they need and why they need it. The volume is a veritable édition de luxe, illustrated with original cuts of the goods described, and with illustrations prepared for the volume and borrowed from other works by Hamilton Gibson, Thomas Moran, Frederick Remington, Beard, Smedley, Church, and others. It is printed and bound in the most artistic manner by the Knickerbocker Press (G. P. Putnam's Sons). It is at once a detailed price-list of everything needed by a sportsman on land and water, and a history of the more important features of his outfit. (164 p. 4°.)

JAMES VICK, the seedsman of Rochester, sends out again his "Vick's Floral Guide," which with its handsome illustrations is a delight alike to the practical gardener and to those who have an eye for the beautiful, and who delight in fine flowers and fruit.

Catalogues of New and Second-Hand Books.—F. M. Crouse, Indianapolis, Collection of second-hand books. (4 p. 8°.)—David G. Francis, 17 Astor Pl., N. Y., has issued preparatory to removal a clearance catalogue. (No. 94, 68 p. 8°.)—Francis P. Harper, 17 E. 16th St., N. Y., Scarce and current books relating to the Rebellion and Slavery, (No. 43, 39 p. 16°.)—King's Old Bookstore, 15 4th St., San Francisco, Cal., Catalogue of a Medical Library. (4 p. 32°.)—Albert I. Myers & Co., 12 High St., London, Purchases from the library of the late J. Cotter Morison, etc. (31 p. 16°.)—Thomas Whittaker, 2 and 3 Bible House, N. Y., A Lent List, 1890, selection of books suitable for reading and church work during the season of Lent. (32 p. 16°.)

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

READY FEBRUARY 4.

THE BAGPIPERS.

By GEORGE SAND, author of "Mauprat," "The Snow Man," "Monsieur Sylvestre," "Miller of Angibault," "Antonia," etc. 1 vol., 12mo, half russia, uniform with our edition of "Balzac's Novels," $1.50.

"George Sand's novel, "Les Maitres Sonneurs," which has never before been translated into English, will be brought out by Roberts Brothers in February, under the title of "The Bagpipers." The characters are similar to the troubadours of French story, and when it is added that the translator is Miss Katharine Prescott Wormeley, whose translations of Balzac have given her such a high reputation, enough is said to indicate the excellence of the work. George Sand has never been translated by a writer so capable of rendering her spirit and the graces of her style as Miss Wormeley, and a new interest will be awakened in the author of 'Consuelo' by this undertaking."—ALEXANDER YOUNG in Critic.

ALBRECHT.

A Story. By ARLO BATES, author of "A Lad's Love," "Berries of the Brier," etc. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

The scene of this story is laid in the Black Forest in the time of Charlemagne (the ninth century), the age of knights and castles. It is a metaphysical romance in which loves plays a leading part, and abounds in tender sentiment and picturesque description. The story opens with a vivid picture of the Black Forest, which is compared to a vast sea in its external characteristics and in the strange beings that people it.

JUST PUBLISHED:*BUILDERS' HARDWARE.

A Manual for Architects, Builders and House Furnishers. By CLARENCE H. BLACKWELL, Architect. With over 500 illustrations. 1 vol., 8vo, $6.00.

The subject of Builders' Hardware is one which has a direct bearing upon the work of the architect, and is, at the same time, of vital interest to the builder. This book is, however, written primarily for the architect. Our experience has led us to believe that architects, as a rule, seldom go any deeper into the subject than is necessary to decide whether knobs shall be of one material or another, or whether some particular pattern of sashfast will be satisfactory to the owner. It is needless to say that a more extended acquaintance with the subject would do no one any harm, and might even be conducive to much good, if only in the way of providing more fittingly for the needs of the client. This work is not intended, however, to be overcritical in its nature, nor necessarily so exhaustive as to embrace all the inventions and arrangements comprised in the general term of builders' hardware, though an attempt has been made to discriminate between what is merely novel and what is really suitable, and so far as possible the best of everything is noticed under the various heads, and an effort made to represent as nearly as possible the conditions and limitations of the builders' hardware market, as well as to show what is valuable for the uses of the architect.

*Other Valuable Architectural Books:SAFE BUILDING.

By LOUIS DE COPPET BERG. Vol. I. Illustrated. Square 8vo, $5.00.

This work furnishes to any earnest student the opportunity to acquire, so far as books will teach, the knowledge necessary to erect safely any building.

ANCIENT AND MODERN LIGHT-HOUSES.

By MAJOR D. P. HEAP. Fully illustrated. 1 vol., square 8vo, $5.00.

An interesting scientific historical treatise, considering practically this important theme.

MODERN PERSPECTIVE.

A Treatise upon the Principles and Practice of Plane and Cylindrical Perspective. By WILLIAM R. WARE, Professor of Architecture in the School of Mines, Columbia College. 1 vol., 12mo, 321 pages, with 27 plates in a portfolio, $5.00.

This is by far the most exhaustive of modern works on the subjects relating to perspective, plane and panoramic, and will be of great value to all architects and artists, and others interested in the problems of art. An invaluable book for artists, architects, draughtsmen, and civil engineers.

BUILDING SUPERINTENDENCE.

A MANUAL. For young Architects, Students, and others interested in Building Operations as carried on at the present time. By T. M. CLARK, Fellow of the American Institute of Architects. Illustrated with 194 plans, diagrams, etc. 1 vol., 8vo, 336 pages, $3.00.

There is hardly any practical problem in construction, from the building of a stone town hall or church to that of a wooden cottage, that is not carefully considered and discussed. Every person interested in building should possess this work, which is approved as authoritative by the best American architects.

This volume has been used for years by the United States Government and as a text-book in the chief Architectural Schools of the United States.

Sold by booksellers. Sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, by the publishers,

HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES.

By HENRY ADAMS. Vols. III. and IV. SECOND ADMINISTRATION OF THOMAS JEFFERSON. 12mo, $4.00.

The first two volumes of this work, covering the first administration of Jefferson, were received with great favor both by the public and by the press. The two volumes now issued are equally important and will command equal attention.

"A memorable addition to American historical literature in a work which will take rank with Bancroft's and above Hildreth's, and which is likely to long remain without a rival in the field that the author has marked out for survey. His literary competence, his ripeness of culture and fulness of information, his breadth of sympathy and unswerving impartiality speak for themselves."—New York Sun.

* * Vols. I. and II. THE FIRST ADMINISTRATION OF THOMAS JEFFERSON. 12mo, $4.00.

Religious Aspect of Evolution.

By JAMES MCCOSH, D.D., LL.D., Litt.D. 12mo, $1.00.

Dr. McCosh's belief in evolution is well known, and his purpose in this series of lectures is to show that the theory of evolution is not inconsistent with religion, and that one may follow science and still retain his faith in the Bible.

Creed Revision in the Presbyterian Churches.

By PHILIP SCHAFF, D.D. 8vo, paper, 50 cents, net.

Dr. Schaff is in favor of revision. His pamphlet, which contains his views in full, has two divisions, one general in character and the other considering the subject from historical, doctrinal, and practical points of view.

DOWN THE ISLANDS.

A Voyage to the Caribbees. By WILLIAM AGNEW PATON. Beautifully illustrated. New and cheaper edition. Square 8vo, $2.50.

"The book is remarkably entertaining and is crammed with information which will be new even to travelled readers."—Boston Transcript.

Music in America.

By Dr. FRÉDÉRIC LOUIS RITTER, Professor of Music in Vassar College. New edition, revised and enlarged. 12mo, $2.00.

In this new edition of his popular book, Dr. Ritter has incorporated about one hundred pages of fresh matter, bringing the history of the opera and concert stage in all the leading American cities down to the present time.

The Mexican Guide.

New edition for 1890. By THOMAS A. JANVIER. 16mo, with maps, $2.50, net.

"In accuracy, in experienced suggestions, in genial and shrewd appreciation of the people and the country, 'The Mexican Guide,' within the limits noted, seems to us to be almost beyond criticism."—The Nation.

A THEORY OF CONDUCT.

By ARCHIBALD ALEXANDER. 12mo, $1.00.

Professor Alexander's work contains a very complete and searching examination of the various ethical theories and systems, together with the positive statement of the author's own doctrine, which finds the ethical impulse essentially religious.

NOTES IN SEASON.

RAND, MCNALLY & Co. announce for next week an unabridged edition of the journal of Marie Baskhirtseff.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. will publish on the 25th an abridged edition of Edersheim's "Life and Times of Jesus the Messiah."

THE volume of addresses and after-dinner speeches by Chauncey M. Depew, which The Cassell Publishing Company have just ready, has been delayed to include the recent speech in Washington in favor of New York as the site of the World's Fair.

D. LOTHROP Co. have just ready "Eggs: facts and fancies about them," a book brimful of information about eggs, though not a cook-book, compiled by Miss Anna Barrows; "The Dalzells of Daisy-down," a story of village life for boys and girls, by E. Vinton Blake; and "A Chronicle of Conquest," by Miss Frances C. Sparhawk, a plea for Indian education given in the form of a story.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish next week a helpful little book by Dr. F. H. Rankin, on "Hygiene for Childhood," giving valuable suggestions for the care of children after the period of infancy to completion of puberty; a volume entitled "Evolution of Man and Christianity," by the Rev. Howard McQueary; "The Dominant Seventh," a musical story, by Kate Elizabeth Clark; and in their Town and Country Library a selection of Robert Browning's principal shorter poems.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have just published "The Conquest of Mexico," in the new library edition of Prescott's works; a revised edition of Dr. Agnew's work on "The Principles and Practice of Surgery;" an elementary work on plane and spherical trigonometry by Prof. E. S. Crawley, of the University of Pennsylvania; "The Third Reading-Book" in Lippincott's New Series of Readers; "A Last Love," by Georges Ohnet; and a guide to "Philadelphia and its Surroundings."

MACMILLAN & Co. have nearly ready Sir Charles Dilke's "Problems of Greater Britain," which English critics rank in importance with Bryce's "American Commonwealth." It is one of the most exhaustive accounts yet attempted of the British Empire and written by a statesman of the first rank. It gives but passing attention to the United States, and chiefly for purposes of comparison with Canada, but about one-half of the first volume deals with North America, and the whole subject has great interest for every American.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD announce that the death of Mr. Frank Marshall will cause no delay in the publication of "Hamlet," the eighth and final volume in their Henry Irving Shakespeare. It is said that Mr. Marshall's arduous labors on this monumental edition of Shakespeare were the indirect cause of his death. The same house also announces its appointment as sole agents in the United States for the world-renowned "Baedeker Guide-Books." A new book shortly to be issued is "Laugh and Learn," a book of nursery lessons and nursery games, by Jennett Humphreys, with many illustrations.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just issued the third and fourth volumes of Henry Adams' "History of the United States," which will contain considerable new material bearing upon the Aaron Burr conspiracy, and other events of Jefferson's second term of office, 1805 to 1809; a book by Richard M. Smith on "Emigration and Immigration;" Dr. Philip Schaff's "Literature and Poetry;" "The Religious Aspect of Evolution," by Dr. James McCosh, a series of lectures delivered in 1887 in the Theological Seminary of the Diocese of Ohio and at Kenyon College. The publication of Mrs. Burnett's "Little Saint Elizabeth" will be delayed till March, waiting for illustrations by Reginald Birch, who did such beautiful work for "Little Lord Fauntleroy." The Scribners have succeeded in making arrangements to publish Stanley's account of his recent expedition to the interior of Africa. They have secured the entire American rights to the book, and will publish it as soon as possible after the manuscript is received. The book will be in two volumes with many illustrations, and will probably be sold by subscription. In addition to the book, Mr. Stanley has agreed to write an article for Scribner's Magazine, which will be published at as early a day as possible.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl. nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights

Æschines. Æschines against Ctesiphon (on the crown); ed., on the basis of Weidner's edition, by Rufus B. Richardson. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1889. c. tr. 4+279 p. D. (College ser. of Greek authors.) cl., $1.50.

Affery, C: Misled: a story of to-day. N. Y., The Minerva Pub. Co., [1890.] 163 p. D. (Minerva ser., no. 15.) pap., 25 c.

*Arden, H: I. Aunt Bell; the good fairy of the family. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1890. 176 p. 12°, cl., 60 c.

Barton, W. E. Life in the hills of Kentucky Oberlin, O., E. J. Goodrich, 1890. c '87. 3+295 p. il. O. cl., $1.

The three stories, "The wind-up of the big meetin' on No Bus'nness," "Old man Kline," and "The poet of Fodderstack Mountain," are photographic sketches of the religious life of people of the Cumberland Mountains. They are not distinctively religious stories, neither are they caricatures, but are often exceedingly amusing in their scenes and characters.

*Beach, C: Fisk, jr. The American probate reports: cont. recent cases of general value decided in the courts of the several states on points of probate law; with notes and references. V. 6. N. Y., Baker, Voorhis & Co., 1890. 25+631 p. O. shp., $5.50.

Benneville, G: de. Some remarkable passages in the life of Dr. George de Benneville, late of Germantown, Pa., who died March, 1793; from the French, with a preface, by Rev. Elhanan Winchester. Germantown, Pa., Converse Cleaves, [Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co.,] 1890. 2-55 p. D. cl., 50 c.

"Including what he saw and heard in a trance of forty-two hours' duration, both in the regions of happiness and misery; with a brief account of his cruel persecution in France for preaching the gospel."

Bentley, M. L. Practical hints on the art of wood-carving. Cin., S: C. Cox & Co., [1890.] c. 2-43 p. O. pap., $1.

Bible. New Testament. The one gospel; or, the combination of the narratives of the four Evangelists in one complete record; ed. by Arthur T. Pierson. N. Y., Baker & Taylor Co., [1890.] c. '89. 2+203 p. D. cl., 75 c.; limp mor., $2.

Each Evangelist furnishes some matter, found, if at all, not so fully in the other records. It has been sought to blend all the various features of the four narratives into one, without losing whatever is distinctive in each. Where words or phrases are retained which seem almost equivalent, the risk of repetition has been preferred to that of losing even a slight shade of meaning needed to complete the inspired picture of the life, words, and works of the Son of God, and it has been sought to secure a full rather than a smooth rendering.

*Bingham, D. The marriages of the Bourbons. N. Y., Scribner & Welford, 1890. 2 v. O. cl., $7.50.

Blackmore, R: D. Kit and Kitty. N. Y., G: Munro, [1890.] 2 pts., 4-213; 213-416 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1267.) pap., ca., 20 c.

*Blackwell, Clarence H. Builders' hardware:

Bonar, Horatius, D.D. Horatius Bonar, D.D.: a memorial. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., 1889. 2-116 p. por. D. cl., $1.

Horatius Bonar, minister of the Church of Scotland, was b. Dec. 19, 1808; died July 31, '89. This volume contains several memorial sermons preached upon his death, several of Dr. Bonar's own sermons, one of his poems, etc. Also a list of Dr. Bonar's writings.

Bowlers' (The) handbook; containing the laws of bowling as adopted by the National Bowling Association; with instructions in scoring, curving, etc.; also the playing rules of shuffle-board. N. Y., Excelsior Pub. House, [1890.] c. '89. 2-74 p. il. T. pap., 25 c.

*Boyer, Jos. A. Boyer's legal directory of the United States and Canadas; cont. a carefully prepared digest of collection laws of each state and territory, Ontario and Quebec, [etc.] Jan., 1890. Phil., Joseph A. Boyer, [1889.] c. 15+598+302-331 p. O. shp., net, $3.

*Bryden, H. A. Kloof and Karroo; sport legends and natural history in Cape Colony; with a notice of the game birds and of the present distribution of the antelopes and larger game. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1890. 12+435 p. il. 8°, cl., $3.50. [Corr. title.]

Buck, J. D. The nature and aim of theosophy: an essay. 2d enl. ed. Cin., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1889. c. 4-55 p. 1 il. sq. D. cl., 75 c.

This is not an elaborate treatise on this much-mooted subject, but a clear and comprehensive outline of the various phases of thought and philosophy known as theosophy, and which in the past few years have been brought to public attention through the agency of the Theosophical Society and the writings of Madame Blavatsky.

*Bunyon, C: J: Memoirs of Francis Thomas McDougall, some time Bishop of Labuan and Sarawak, and of Harriette, his wife. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1890. 368 p. por. 8°, cl., $4.50.

Burgess, Neil. The county fair; from the play of the same name, by C: Barnard. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1890.] 4-228 p. D. (The select ser., no. 33.) pap., 25 c.

Cameron, Mrs. H: Lovett. Wild George's daughter. N. Y., G: Munro, [1890.] 4-176 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1261.) pap., 20 c.

*Caylor, O. P. A fated promise: a story. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1890. 12°, cl., 50 c.

N. Y., The Truth Seeker Co., [1890.] c. '82. 23+589 p. il. O. cl., $2.50.
First published by J. W. Bouton in 1882. The author, whose name appears with this edition, endeavors to prove that Christianity introduced no new or original doctrines, sacraments, or ceremonies, and that the Bible itself is a conglomeration of myths, rites, and ceremonies parallel in records of people with other beliefs centuries older than these Hebrew and Christian writings. A vast amount of out-of-the-way information is brought together in the book and rendered accessible by a full index, a valuable list of authorities quoted is also given.

The eight very beautiful illustrations offer specimens of eight different styles of binding—the Aldine, the Maioli, the Grolier, the Ene, the Gascon, the Roger Payne style, a modern design, American (1853), and a modern design, American (1865). The text minutely describes these specimens besides giving other valuable information. The volume is handsomely printed on linen paper, with wide margins.

The school drill herein set forth has been adopted to a very considerable extent in the English schools, where it has been found of great utility, not only as a purely physical exercise, but as one promoting cheerfulness, erectness of carriage, and general alertness and promptitude in the school work.

Merriman, Mansfield, and Jacoby, H. S. A textbook on roofs and bridges. Pt. 2. Graphic statics. N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1890. 7+124 p. il. O. cl., $2.50.

The course of instruction in roofs and bridges given to students of civil engineering in the Lehigh University, in which university the two authors are professor and instructor in civil engineering, consists of four parts: first, the computation of stresses in roof trusses and in all the common styles of simple bridge trusses; second, the analysis of stresses by graphic methods; third, the design of a bridge, which includes the proportioning of details and the preparation of working drawings; and fourth, the discussion of cantilever, suspension, continuous, and arched bridges. In this work the second part of this course is presented, together with additional matter, so as to form a tolerably complete treatise on graphic statics as applied to the discussion of common roofs and bridges.

Ohnet, Georges. A last love. Authorized ed. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1890. 1+347 p. D. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 106.) pap., 50 c.

The scene is laid in Paris among the aristocracy of the Faubourg Saint-Germain. The story opens with a brilliantly described fete, followed by private theatricals in the house of the Count and Countess de Fontenay. A telegram and the abrupt disappearance for several hours of the Count excites his wife's suspicions, and destroys her confidence in his love. This is the beginning of a story of unfaithful love—very French in sentiment, and morbid and artificial in its ending.

Paddock, Mrs. A. G. In the tolls; or, martyrs of the latter days. N. Y., J. W. Lovell Co., [1890.] c. 301 p. D. (American novelists' ser., no. 20.) pap., 50 c.

The first part of this autobiography, noticed in "Weekly Record," P. W., Sept. 28, '89, [922,] was received with so much favor by the English and American press that Dr. Paton has at the earnest solicitation of friends continued it. Dr. Pierson, who furnishes an introductory note, says, "We have no hesitation in pronouncing this second part the most fascinating narrative of missionary adventure and heroism and success that we have ever met."

Raffensperger, Mrs. A. F. Those Raeburn girls. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1890.] c. '89. 2-328 p. D. cl., $1.25.

In the "Raeburn girls" the author illustrates some of the methods open to women in the way of securing a livelihood. The girls are seven in all, daughters of a college professor, a Virginian, who entertained the old-fashioned Southern idea that a woman should do no labor. Dying, he leaves them little besides the home in which they live. Though apparently helpless, the family are willing to work, and soon look about for ways in which they may turn their various accomplishments to account. They cultivate flowers to sell; they raise silk-worms; one of the girls starts a kindergarten; another bakes cakes and pies, and two others do dressmaking. Among them all they manage to turn a very nice penny.

Turnbull, Mrs. Lawrence. The Catholic man: a study. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1890.] c. 4+311 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The author of "The Catholic man" claims that she deals with the same questions discussed in a book which appeared some ten years ago called "Is life worth living?" but her story gives a different answer to the question. The novel is scarcely one of incident, the chief object being the development of the characters and the expression of their various views. There is, however, a love-story and the usual suspense and surprise.

The present volume is a new work, and not a mere abridgment of the "General astronomy" recently published by the author. Much of the material of the larger book has naturally been incorporated in this, and many of its illustrations are used; but everything has been worked over, with reference to the high school course. A brief uranography is presented, covering the constellations visible in the United States, with maps on a scale sufficient for the easy identification of all the principal stars.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 8, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

COPYRIGHT AND PATENTS AGAIN.

THE opposition to international copyright has again materialized in Washington in the person of Mr. Gardiner G. Hubbard, who is well known as one of the chief beneficiaries of the Bell telephone patent, which is commonly reported as yielding him a fortune of many million dollars. It is not quite clear whether Mr. Hubbard appears as a lawyer retained by some unknown clients to oppose international copyright, or whether he supposes himself to represent the public at large, or whether he presents an argument arising from his individual prejudice against copyright. But it is not easy to see on what ground he can uphold patents and decry copyrights, whether international or national.

Indeed, as has been many times pointed out, there is one fundamental distinction between patents and copyrights which frees copyright protection from one great argument brought against patent protection. Patents are prohibitory against any use by any party of the idea or form of the patent, whereas copyrights cannot and do not prevent any one from an independent use of ideas or forms. To put this concretely, nobody else can manufacture and sell a telephone so long as Mr. Bell's exclusive patent holds, and it has been publicly stated by Mr. Edison that many improvements on the telephone are withheld from the public essentially for this reason. The patent necessarily makes a monopoly. But nobody is prevented from writing a tragedy about Hamlet because Shakespeare has written "Hamlet;" nor is any author restricted from any expression of his own thought or formulating of his own words because of any one who has written before him. It is perfectly evident that patents prevent while copyrights encourage the development of the ideas of persons coming later in time.

Copyrights share with patents, however, the advantage which makes the latter a concomitant of civilization. They both hold out an inducement to an inventor to invent, whether he works without or with words. The laborer is worthy of his hire. It is questionable whether Professor Bell or Mr. Hubbard, or other persons interested, ought to be able to get millions of dollars for an idea conceived almost simultaneously or soon after, in the progress of the world, by other persons, but it is not questionable whether an author ought to get the few hundreds of thousands of dollars which he obtains from his book which does benefit to the world without preventing any fellow-author from doing his own work in his own way.

THE STATUS OF THE COPYRIGHT BILL BEFORE CONGRESS.

H. R. Elliot to the Boston Advertiser.

R. U. JOHNSON, Secretary of the Copyright League, tells me that the status of the measure before Congress is excellent, in fact, could scarcely be improved. In the Senate, it was reported from the Patents Committee by Senator Platt on the 21st of January, and now occupies a very favorable place on the Senate calendar. The present bill does not differ in any material respect from that which Senator Chace carried through the Senate in the last Congress; the only changes are verbal alterations due to suggestions from Senator Chace and other friends of the bill in the light of larger experience. Senator Platt cannot predict when the bill will come up for discussion in the Senate, but it probably will get a day before very long, possibly in a few weeks. No hostility has been developed, and as the bill has already passed the Senate with only ten negative votes, it will probably not detain the Senate long when it is called up.

In the House, the conditions are almost as favorable. At the beginning of the session two bills were introduced practically identical in their contents; one by Mr. Breckinridge, who introduced the bill in the last Congress, and subsequently one by Gen. Butterworth, who is a strong friend of the measure. The Breckinridge bill was referred to the Judiciary Committee by a vote of the House, following the precedents of the last two Congresses. But the Patents Committee, being desirous to consider and report a bill which was so directly in their sphere of work, introduced through Chairman Butterworth the same bill and had it referred to them. The Judiciary Committee immediately on organization took up the bill and have given it most earnest and friendly consideration. About a fortnight ago a deputation which included Dr. Eggleston, Mr. H. O. Houghton, Mr. W. W. Appleton, Mr. Theodore L. De Vinne, Mr. J. L. Kennedy, and Mr. R. U. Johnson appeared before the committee and through Dr. Eggleston briefly explained its provisions. On Friday last, the committee gave Mr. Gardiner G. Hubbard a hearing in opposition to the bill, and as his remarks were so much interrupted on Wednesday by the sharp cross-examination to which he was subjected by members of the committee, he was allowed another hour on Saturday morning to finish his argument, if his rambling statement could be dignified by such a name.

During these hearings, and particularly during the latter one, the friendly feelings of the committee towards the bill became apparent. Mr. Rogers, of Arkansas, said that he understood the committee were unanimous in favor of the principle of international copyright, but that he and two or three others of the committee felt disposed to oppose it on account of the manufacturing and printing clauses. He promised, however, that so far as he was concerned there would be no attempt to obstruct a vote in the House, provided a reasonable time were given for debate, and he said that he was convinced the bill would pass the House. One interesting feature in Mr. Hubbard's talk was his admission that he believed international copyright would be of benefit, though he opposed the measure in the shape it now took.

In the Patents Committee, one of the most active friends of the measure is Mr. Simonds, of Connecticut. This gentleman, though a new member, is likely to take an important part in any discussions of the bill, as he is a recognized authority on patent and copyright law. As a lecturer in the Yale Law School on this subject, and the author of a treatise on patents, his views will undoubtedly have much weight. He is the chairman of the sub-committee in the Patents Committee, which has a bill under consideration, and as such, he is giving the bill his personal attention. He has expressed his desire to coöperate most cordially with the Judiciary Committee, and says that all the friends of the measure in the House will join hands in promoting its chances.

While there has been no opportunity as yet to gauge the feeling of the House, the inquiries that have been made bring out the fact that no opposition of consequence has appeared, and that the chief resistance will come from Congressional inertia. I need not say that the Massachusetts members are entirely friendly. Gen. Banks, Mr. Lodge, Mr. Andrews, Mr. Candler, and others have given assurances of their zeal in the cause and desire to do what they can to promote its interests. Assuming that there will soon be a bill on the calendar of the House with one, if not two, favorable reports behind it, we are justified in the expectation that the measure will finally get its day in court and the real feeling of the House be taken. In that event the friends of the measure, both in Congress and out of it, believe, with good reason, that it will pass the House by a thumping majority and become a law. President Harrison has already recommended the measure, and would, no doubt, sign the pending bill if it ever reaches his table.

In view of this bright outlook, the officers and active friends of the Copyright League call upon the advocates of the measure for a last spurt in its behalf. As I have said, the chief obstacle lies in the indifference of Congress to any measure not distinctly political. This indifference can very largely be removed by representations from outside quarters which show a deep and widespread popular interest. Hence, if the community would resolve itself into a committee of the whole, and in that capacity notify Congress by letters, editorials, personal utterances, and other expressions of its feeling that the bill is one in which it takes an active concern, it is fair to conclude that the measure would finally, after half a century of exasperating delays, reach victory at last.

MUNRO VS. BEADLE.

ADOPTION OF ARBITRARY NAMES BY PUBLISHERS AS TITLES OF THEIR PUBLICATIONS VALID AS TRADE-MARKS.

AT the January session of General Term of the Supreme Court, the case of George Munro, appellant, vs. Erastus F. Beadle et al., respondents,* came up for a hearing before Judges C. H. Van Brunt, Willard Bartlett, and Francis A. Macomber. Argument was made that where a publisher adopts a fanciful and arbitrary name for the purpose of distinguishing his works from those of all others, he acquires a certain property right in that name, which is entirely independent of the statute laws pertaining to copyright, and which satisfies all of the requirements made by the law governing trade-marks; and any imitation of the name of his publication, which tends to mislead the reading public, is an infringement of his trade-mark.

The plaintiff publishes a series of works of fiction, known as the Old Sleuth Library. The first publication was called "Old Sleuth, the Detective, or, the Bay Ridge mystery," by Old Sleuth. This was first published in 1872, and again in 1880, and still again in 1885. Another work is entitled "Old Sleuth's Triumph," by Old Sleuth, first half. Another is "Old Sleuth's Triumph," second half. Another, which was published, was copyrighted in 1875, and republished in 1885, and is called "Old Sleuth in the Harness Again, or, four noted detectives unveiling the mystery," by Old Sleuth.

The defendants are publishers of Beadle's Dime Library. In the years 1885, 1887, and 1888, they published as a part of such library, stories entitled as follows: "Captain Goldgrip, the City Sleuth, or, the coolest woman in New York," "The California Sleuth, or, the trail of the gold grandee," "The Silent Sleuth, or, the bogus nephew," "Old Buckeye, the Sierra Sleuth, or, against desperate odds," "Kelley, Hickey and Co., the Sleuths of Philadelphia," consisting of four detectives by the names of Kelly, Hickey, Wheeler, and Sewer Sam. Another entitled "Deep Duke, the Silent Sleuth, or, the man of two lives," "The Young Sleuths, or, Rollicking Mike's hot trail," "Crowningshield, the Sleuth, or, pitiless as death," and "Broadway Billy's Death Racket, or, the silent street sleuth's wake."

Judge Macomber (Judges Van Brunt and Bartlett concurring) handed down the following decision: "The Old Sleuth Library, which is a serial, contains stories first published in the Fire-side Companion, mainly devoted to the description of the feats of a detective known as 'Old Sleuth,' of all of which one Harlan P. Halsey is the author.

"Up to the time of the adoption by the plaintiff of the name Sleuth, or Old Sleuth, as applied to a character in any of the works of fiction, or as indicative of the name of the publication issued by him, that word was not in common use, even if it existed as an established substantive. The word Sleuth, or Sleuth-hound, does not appear in the first edition of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, or in any edition of Worcester until after 1880, and then only in the supplement thereto. Its derivation is probably Islandic, or at least Northern, and comes from the word slot, which was used in Scotland and the northern countries to indicate, primarily, a track in the snow, and afterwards a track in the earth as well. It did not find its way into the English dictionaries until very recently, and there is said to be pronounced as though spelled s-l-o-t-h. When detached from the word hound, to which it is commonly prefixed, it means the track of an animal as the same may be known by the scent.

"The adoption of this word by the plaintiff seems to satisfy all of the requirements made by the law governing common law trade-marks, as determined by the case of Selchow v. Baker (93 N. Y. 59), which, among the numerous and varied cases upon the subject generally, is perhaps the most instructive for determining the question immediately before us. Even if the word sleuth was not new, that is to say, coined by the plaintiff, it certainly was not in common use at the time of its adoption by him as the name of his publication or library. The plaintiff was the first one to use it as applied to his own publications. Of this there is no dispute. It answers the purpose of distinguishing the plaintiff's works from those of all others. It is not descriptive of the subject matter of the manufacture or publication. It has no relation to the grade or quality of the novel. It was originally a fanciful and arbitrary word, to indicate the publications of the plaintiff alone. By its adoption and use the plaintiff acquired in it a certain property right, which is entirely independent of the statute laws pertaining to copyright and should be protected.

"It is plain that the defendant has infringed the trade-mark of the plaintiff by the dexterous use which he has made of the word Sleuth in the publications, the names of which are above recited. Any imitation of the name of the plaintiff's publication, which tends to mislead the reading public, would be an infringement, although the imitation was inexact. The circumstances that the defendants do not say that their serial publications are composed of numbers of the Old Sleuth Library and fail to call it Old Sleuth, or The Sleuth Library, is unimportant, provided they have used the word Sleuth, or Old Sleuth, in such a relation as would be apt to mislead and deceive the class of people for whom such publications were written. That such is the effect of their acts is quite clearly established by their evidence.

"Happily, no point is made by considerate counsel, which requires us to look into the matter of these several publications.

"The judgment should be reversed and new trial granted, with costs to the appellant to abide the event."

— Roger Foster for the appellant; Rowland Cox, for the respondent.

READING MAKES A FULL MAN.—Mrs. Literary—Do you believe with the poet that reading makes a full man? Mrs. Practical (sighing)—I don't know that reading makes a full man, but I am convinced that a club reading-room does.—Texas Siftings.

TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF ROBERT CARTER.

BY A. D. F. RANDOLPH.*

THIS is the end of but a single human life amid the surges of a city of nearly two millions of souls. The great tide of life flows on undisturbed; the waves still beat the shores with a resonant roar; and yet, as the world was bettered by this one life, so it must be the poorer for its close.

It is possible that the departure of our friend touches me more closely than any one else here. For more than fifty years I knew him. I see him now as when I saw him first; I see him now as when I met him last. Time, with its many changes, wrought no change in his affection for me—brought no loss in mine for him. And yet for nearly two score of years our business life ran along somewhat parallel lines—rival lines, as some might say—but without a single controversy or contention of any kind.

Here, if anywhere, I may emphasize his eminent service to the church and the world as a Christian publisher. I recall the first book that bore his honored imprint. It was a treatise on the doctrine of the atonement of Christ. Cradled in a theology as rugged as the hills under whose shadows he was born, our friend loved the meat of strong doctrine, and this first publication, on a central and fundamental doctrine of the gospel, was the keystone of the broad arch which he subsequently built. There was not a stone in it that was not a stone of truth; yet all were not purely theological or controversial; while over them was trailed many a vine of parable and story bearing the blossom and the fruit of Scripture truth. And so if his own theology was as rugged as his native hills, it was neither cold nor sterile. To it there ever came, as there always comes to them, the gentle rains of the spring, the fresh and beautiful verdure, the quickening suns of summer, and the full bloom of the heather.

Those who have watched the literary movements of the past thirty years, alone can comprehend the changes and temptations that have come with this development. The printed page, more largely than ever before, has been made an insidious and potential agent of evil. No article of the Christian faith, no formula of Christian science, no principle of Christian philosophy, that has not been vigorously and skilfully attacked from a thousand different angles. In song and story, in essay and homily, an emasculated gospel, or the still balder gospel of humanity, has been continually preached, with all the varied and consummate arts of human genius. To deny that the wide consumption of such a literature does not increase with what it feeds on would be but a denial of the natural cravings of the human heart; while to claim that this wild and popular clamor for it brought no temptation to publishers, would indeed be idle. But if to our friend such a temptation ever came, it came but to be resisted. Here, as in many another case,

"He stood
Four-square to all the winds that blow."

And so no book which he himself had not read ever bore the imprint of his name, and no book ever issued from his press that did not contain some seeds of divine truth.

* At the meeting of the Managers of the American Bible Society, New York, Jan. 2, 1890.

I know that it has been said of him in this connection that he was narrow. But he only desired, as has been said by another, to be as broad and as narrow as the Book of God. I doubt if in all the annals of that trade of which I am so proud, there can be found an example of loftier devotion to a high calling, with such singleness of purpose, and so deep a sense of personal responsibility, as is shown in his history. He was indeed, conspicuous for his "plain living and high thinking;" and he walked "as seeing Him who is invisible." So wherever he sent his printed page he became a teacher of other teachers, a comforter of sorrowing hearts, a minister of strength to enfeebled or doubting souls, a wise educator of little children, a promoter of love and faith in them that believe, an instructor in truth and righteousness to them that believed not.

Surely there can be no higher mission than this; and this was the mission of our honored friend.

WORK BY THE HOSPITAL BOOK AND NEWSPAPER SOCIETY.

THE object of this society is to collect reading-matter from the public and distribute it among inmates of hospitals, institutions, and asylums. During the year ended Nov. 1, 1889, the Society distributed 8034 books, 20,701 magazines, 37,696 illustrated and weekly papers, and 6171 Christmas and Easter cards—all exclusive of the work of the Newspaper Committee, which gave out during the year 133,611 newspapers alone. In addition to this work fifty-two institutions were visited by members of the Society.

Mrs. E. H. Hoppin, Secretary of the Society, in her report at the fifteenth annual meeting makes an earnest appeal for funds with which to carry on the Society's good work. She sets forth the fact that the Society receives letters from all over the country asking for reading-matter, and the Society is unable in many cases to grant the requests. The Society maintains a club-room at Charity Hospital in New York for the male nurses employed there, where a pleasant room has been prepared, and the Society is anxious to do as much for the female nurses. It is desired to establish permanent libraries in this and other institutions.

Donations of reading-matter should be sent to the Secretary's office, 21 University Place; of money, to the Treasurer, Mrs. Fordham Morris, 20 Fifth Avenue.

MRS. BURNETT'S REPLY TO MISS WINTHROP'S CHARGE OF PLAGIARISM.

MRS. BURNETT has finally replied through the St. James's Gazette, London, to the statement published in that paper by Miss Winthrop concerning her story entitled "Wilfred," from which she claims Mrs. Burnett's "Little Lord Fauntleroy" was plagiarized. Mrs. Burnett's friends have told her that such reply will only serve to bring "Wilfred" before the public and advertise it, but she decides that she wishes the public to read "Wilfred" as the surest way of refuting the statements of its author. Mrs. Burnett claims that she never read "Wilfred," that she has not any recollection of its having been sent her, nor of its author having written her. She again reiterates the well-circulated story that "Little Lord Fauntleroy" was modelled after a little boy of seven, the son of an English mother accustomed to call his mother "Dearest," who was distinguished by the guileless, frank freedom of manner, entire friendliness with every human being, and the delightful, excited, little political interests that made the "Little Lord" so charming. The St. James's Gazette regrets that Mrs. Burnett has let three months go by without making this statement, but the accident so nearly fatal to her is probably sufficient reason for the delay. It hints that Mrs. Burnett may unconsciously have been influenced by reading "Wilfred," even though the fact of reading it has escaped her memory, but says: "No one could complain of such an unconscious plagiarism, if plagiarism it can be called; nor, indeed, could any one greatly object to a much more serious appropriation of literary matter if the effect of it was to take something from so poor and feeble a story as 'Wilfred,' in order to set off and embellish so admirable and artistic a piece of work as 'Little Lord Fauntleroy.'"

SOME LESSER-KNOWN PSEUDONYMS AND THEIR OWNERS.

DOES every one know that "Marie Gaston" is the nom de plume of Alphonse Daudet; "Holme Lee" of Miss Harriet Parr, and "Sarah Tytler" of Miss Henrietta Kidder? Here are a few more of the names which occur most frequently in one's reading: "Country Parson" and "A. K. H. B." stand for Rev. Dr. Boyd, St. Andrews; "Christopher Crayon," J. Ewing Ritchie; "Edward Garrett," Isabella Fyvie Mayo; "Girl of the Period," Mrs. Lynn Linton; "Professor Hoffmann," Angelo J. Lewis; "Ascot R. Hope," Robert Hope Moncrieff; "Henry Irving," J. H. Brodribb; "Johnny Ludlow," the late Mrs. Henry Wood; "Helen Mathers," Mr. Reeve; "L. T. Meade," Mrs. Toulmin Smith; "New Writer," Lewis Morris; "Cornelius O'Dowd," Charles Lever; "O. K.," Olga Kireet, now Madame Novikoff; "Pen Oliver," Sir Henry Thomson; "Rob Roy," John MacGregor; "S. G. O.," the late Rev. Lord Sydney Godolphin Osborne; "Annie Thomas," Mrs. Cudlip; "Toby, M.P.," Henry Lucy; "Verax," Henry Duncley.

Most of our poets, both great and small, have at some time appeared under the disguise of a nom de plume, but the list of those who make a regular practice of doing this is a short one; Lady Wilde, a society poetess, is known to be the authoress of poems signed "Speranza," and "Mary Berwick" stands for Adelaide Anne Procter. One would hardly have credited Longfellow with having signed himself "Joshua Coffin."

To works of a practical and instructive nature authors usually sign their real names, but there are exceptions. "Cavendish" (on Whist) is the nom de plume of Henry Jones; "The Battle of Dorking" is by Colonel Chesney; and "Religion and Her Name" by Archbishop Whately, and not by "John Search." "J. Arbuthnot Wilson" stands for Mr. Grant Allen; and "Stonehenge" (on Dogs) for the late J. Walsh. Charles H. Ross sketched himself in the character of "Ally Sloper."

A PLEA FOR HANDY EDITIONS.

W. D. Howells, in Harper's Magazine.

No book too heavy to hold in one hand has any right to exist, to the exclusion of the same work in the ideal form; and we would have that form the original shape of publication; those who want books to furnish their libraries, not their minds, might wait. As it is now, half a dozen vested interests conspire to give the lover of literature his love first in a guise that makes it a burden. Certain works of science and of art, whose primary appeal is not literary, might take the shape their authors judged fittest, but there is no reason, except the commercial reason, why fiction, poetry, travel, biography, history, should not always be offered us first as we have suggested. Most duodecimo books, even, are too thick and too heavy, though generally the weight is from the quality, not the quantity, of the paper used; so that the royal octavos of this new edition of "Boswell's Johnson" are no more fatiguing to the wrist than half the duodecimo novels that issue from the press. A new book of the kinds we have mentioned should be heavier than a metropolitan Sunday newspaper, which it hardly exceeds in the number of its words, only by the weight of a very thin, flexible cloth binding.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THOMAS W. HARTLEY, for many years with the house of J. B. Lippincott & Co., and later with Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, and E. Claxton & Co., died at his residence, 420 Franklin St., in Philadelphia, on the 3d inst., in the 69th year of his age. He leaves a wife and daughter.

MR. THOMAS NAPIER HIBBEN, of the firm of T. N. Hibben & Co., Victoria, N. B., died January 12, aged 63 years. His business will be continued by his partners, C. W. Kammerer and W. H. Bone, and his eldest son, Jas. Parker Hibben.

CHARLES JENKINS, of New Brighton, S. I., President of the Manhattan News Company, at 35 Murray Street, died February 1.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE editor of the Literary World has been awarded the $300 prize offered by "The American Humane Education Society" to American editors for the best essay on the effect of humane education on the prevention of crime.

LOUIS KLOPSCH, of New York, who has just returned from his travels with Dr. Talmage, while in London bought the control of the American edition of the Christian Herald, which he has put under the editorial charge of Dr. Talmage.

The Book Fiend, published by C. D. Raymer, Minneapolis, with January, 1890, enters upon its third volume. It has changed its form to an octavo, has dropped its harrowing cover design, and is improved generally typographically. Inside the periodical bears the title, "The Literary Light."

THE Centralblatt für Bibliothekswesen, edited by Dr. O. Hartwig, and published by Otto Harrassowitz, of Leipzig, gives in its double part for January and February of this year the second chapter of Dr. C. Häberlin's "Contributions to a Knowledge of Ancient Libraries and Books." This chapter discusses the difficult question as to the number of books or parchment rolls contained in the celebrated libraries of Alexandria and Pergamos, without, however, arriving at a definite conclusion on the subject.

The Newsdealer and Stationer is a new monthly journal published by John R. Suter, 188 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Its aim is to furnish a convenient means of communication between the publishers and newsdealers of New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Hoboken, and adjacent cities, and its object is to organize all the local unions on the plan of the Brooklyn Associations, which provide benefits for their members when sick and furnish means for their burial, with other beneficial advantages.

Scribner's Magazine for February contains the first of two articles on John Ericsson, contributed to that magazine by Wm. C. Church. This article and the one to follow in March will show how large a place Ericsson filled in the engineering history of the present century, and how lofty were the purposes that impelled him to action. The two articles are introductory to the biography now in preparation for publication by Messrs. Scribner's Sons. Ericsson's life furnishes much more interesting material for biography than has usually been supposed, and it only requires skilful use of the material at hand to make a most interesting and instructive volume.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BELLAIRE, O.—Parks & Dickens, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

BOWLING GREEN, KY.—Eubanks & Carpenter, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

CORSICANA, TEX.—R. Everard has opened a new bookstore at 124 N. Beaton St.

GREENVILLE, MICH.—Nelson & Crittenden, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

GRUNDY CENTER, IA.—The firm of W. W. Light, bookseller, has been succeeded by Light & Dodge.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—J. B. Hoeger, of the firm of J. B. Hoeger & Son, booksellers and stationers, is dead.

MOOREHEAD, MINN.—J. Nings, bookseller, will move to Fargo.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—J. A. & R. A. Reid, publishers, are said to be embarrassed. The trouble has come about chiefly from a heavy loss by the fire that destroyed a large part of their plant last year.

ROCK RAPIDS, IA.—Willis H. Smith, bookseller, has sold out.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Sidney Strickland, bookseller and stationer, who recently made an assignment, is offering to compromise at thirty cents on the dollar—twenty cents cash and ten cents in three months' notes. His liabilities are $12,500, and his assets $7863, consisting of $7000 stock and $863 book accounts. His chief creditors are his wife, mother, and former partner, A. P. Pierson.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Coleman & Gruninger, booksellers, have failed.

SUMTER, S. C.—J. A. Schwerin, bookseller, has called a meeting of his creditors.

WINDSOR, MO.—Mitchell & Mitchell, booksellers, have sold out.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

CASSELL & Co. will publish shortly "Star Land," a series of talks on astronomy with young people, by Robert S. Ball.

W. HEINEMANN, London, will publish at once four stories by Vernon Lee, under the title of "Hauntings: fantastic stories," and a new novel by Mr. F. W. Robinson, "A Very Strange Family."

It is the Writer Publishing Co. of Boston that publishes Luce's "Writing for the Press." In our list in the Annual Summary number the publisher was given as the Writer's Pub. Co., which is a different concern.

RESULT of Prang's National Flower campaign: 70 per cent. of all votes for Golden-Rod; 16 per cent. of all votes for Mayflower; 14 per cent. scattering for Daisy, Mountain Laurel, Dandelion, Sunflower, and others.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will issue shortly "The Papers of Sir George Bowen," edited by Stanley Lane-Poole; and "The Captain of the Polestar," a new story by the author of the successful historical novel, "Micah Clarke."

THE RED LINE PUBLISHING Co., of Canaseraga, N. Y., have begun the publication of a new series of books, called The Red Line Series. The first number, now ready, is "Principles of Pronunciation of the Modern Languages of Europe."

HUBBARD BROTHERS, Philadelphia, have published a volume on the great Pennsylvania disaster of a year ago, entitled "Through the Johnstown Flood, by a Survivor," the author being the Rev. David J. Beale. The story is told with great power, though not in any way sensational.

MR. PAUL LEICESTER FORD, in a privately printed pamphlet, "Who Was the Mother of Franklin's Son?" goes over the ground of what he calls this "historical conundrum," and makes a small contribution to its solution, not as decisive, but only as suggestive.

FLEMING H. REVELL, during the month of December, issued a new book every day. With this great increase of quantity this publisher has maintained his average of quality—most of his publications being works of religious tendency by authors well known in their special field. A few of the books specially suitable for Christmas presentation were very neatly brought out.

HARPER & BROTHERS have in preparation "God and His World: an interpretation." The book is said to be written by a well-known American man of letters, whose name is withheld. His views are said to be neither denunciatory nor pessimistic, and his work is described as "covering the entire field of the development of human faith, pagan and Christian."

As has already been stated, Mr. George Allen, of Orpington, has established a branch at 18 Bell Yard, Temple Bar, London, and succeeds Hazell, Watson & Viney, who formerly supplied the trade with Mr. Ruskin's editions of his own works. The Ruskin Reading Guild journal will in future also be published by Mr. Allen, under the title of Igdrasil, a magazine of art, literature, and social philosophy. Mr. Allen has also become the publisher of Augustus Hare's books.

MRS. JOHN B. SHIPLEY (née Marie A. Brown) in a circular letter dated from 15 Sunnyside Road, Ealing, London, W., Eng., announces that she will publish through Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner & Co., of London, and John B. Alden, of New York, her translations from the Swedish of "The Surgeon's Stories," by Prof. Topelius; "Nadeschda," the romantic poem by Runeberg; and an original work on "The Icelandic Discoverers of America." These announcements are accompanied by a lengthy statement of her grievances against American publishers in general and Jansen, McClurg & Co. in particular.

GINN & Co. will publish in April a selection of "The Best Elizabethan Plays," edited with an introduction by William R. Thayer. The selection comprises "The Jew of Malta," by Marlowe; "The Alchemist," by Ben Jonson; "Philaster," by Beaumont and Fletcher; "The Two Noble Kinsmen," by Fletcher and Shakespeare; and "The Duchess of Malfy," by Webster. It thus furnishes not only the best specimen of the dramatic works of each of the five Elizabethan poets who rank next to Shakespeare, but also a general view of the development of the English drama from its rise in Marlowe to its last strong expression in Webster. This volume appeals to the general reader who wishes to get, in small compass, the best products of the Elizabethan drama (exclusive of Shakespeare), and also to the students in academies or colleges who are studying this most important period of English literature. It is a work equally well adapted to the library and to the class-room.

THE prize offered by Mrs. John Armstrong Chanler (Amélie Rives), through the American Economic Association, for the best essay on the subject of Child Labor, has been awarded to Mr. William F. Willoughby and Miss M. C. de Graffenreid, both of Washington, D. C. The prize was equally divided between the two contestants, their essays being of equal merit. Mr. Willoughby is a native of Alexandria, Va.; he graduated at the Washington High School, received the degree of A.B., in June, 1888, at the Johns Hopkins University, where he was awarded an "Honorary Scholarship" for three successive years, and is now a resident of Washington, D. C. Miss M. C. de Graffenreid comes of an old Southern family, she herself being a native of Georgia. She holds a position in the Department of Labor, and had a large share in the compilation of the Fourth Annual Report of the Commissioner of Labor, on the subject of Working Women, having interviewed personally 18,000 workmen in different parts of the country. A paper written by her on "The Needs of Self-Supporting Women" has recently been published as a Supplemental Note to Johns Hopkins University Studies in Historical and Political Science.

It is not a Chinaman of whom this story is told. He is a bookbinder, and being given an encyclopædia in twenty-seven volumes to bind, with the first volume as a pattern, went ahead and stamped the whole lot on the back—

THE LIBRARY REFERENCE ATLAS OF THE WORLD.

By JOHN BARTHOLOMEW, F.R.G.S. A complete series of 84 modern maps. With geographical index to 100,000 places. Folio, bound in half morocco, gilt edges, $18.00.

This work has been designed with the object of supplying the public with a thoroughly complete and accurate atlas of modern geography in a convenient reference form, and at a moderate rate. Special prominence has been given to the United States and the American continent. In the preparation of the maps no pains have been spared to insure accuracy of geographical data by reference to the original and most authentic sources. New railways, changes of political boundaries, new towns, the results of recent exploration and geographical research, have all been added before going to press. Special maps have been included in order to illustrate the leading features of physical and commercial geography. The extensive general reference index at the end of the atlas comprises the names of 100,000 places contained in the maps.

"They Bristle With Thought and Sparkle With Wit."

Orations and After-Dinner Speeches of Chauncey M. Depew.

One octavo volume, extra cloth, new style, with portrait, $2.50; édition de luxe, limited to one hundred (100) numbered copies, with portraits and bound in half leather, $6.00.

There is no more pleasantly familiar name in this country than that of Mr. DEPEW, and it is by his speeches that he is best known. Very few of these have ever been printed in their entirety, and many of them have only been dealt out in fragments by the daily papers, and yet he has won a world-wide reputation by them. Taken in their complete form, as they are given in this volume, they are models of what such speeches should be. Nothing could seem dryer than some of the subjects of Mr. DEPEW's speeches, but there is not a dry line in any one of them. They bristle with thought and sparkle with wit. As a story-teller he has few equals, and he has the art of telling an old story so that it strikes the hearer with all the freshness of a brand-new one, while of new stories he seems to have an inexhaustible supply.

Hygiene for Childhood.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE CARE OF CHILDREN AFTER THE PERIOD OF INFANCY TO COMPLETION OF PUBERTY. By FRANCIS H. RANKIN, M.D., President of the Newport Medical Society. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents.

"The physician in his round of visits is made aware of a woful lack of knowledge of the laws of health. It is hoped that the suggestions contained in this little manual will afford practical aid in the care of children, and enable mothers to avoid numerous hygienic sins of omission and commission."—From the Preface.

Evolution of Man and Christianity.

By the Rev. HOWARD MACQUEARY. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

"There can be little doubt," says Prof. Le Conte, "that we are now on the eve of the greatest change in traditional views that has taken place since the birth of Christianity. This change means not a readjustment of details only, but a reconstruction of Christian theology." It is because I am firmly convinced of the truth of these profound words that I have written this book. Evolution is 'in the air,' and its fundamental tenets are being accepted (perhaps unconsciously) by all classes of minds. It behooves us, then, as religious teachers to recognize this fact, and adjust our theology accordingly."—From the Preface.

NOTES IN SEASON.

T. B. PETERSON & BROTHERS announce "The Millionaire's Wife," a story of New England life, by Prudence Lovell, who is said to be at home in describing fashionable life.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING Co. announce new and cheaper editions of the Journal of Marie Bashkirtseff—an "author's edition," octavo, reduced from $2 to $1.50; a "paper edition" in their Sunshine Series at 50 cents; and a "cloth edition" at $1.

THOMAS WHITTAKER, New York, will publish next week a second series of Canon Liddon's latest sermons. Among others the volume will contain four on the "Magnificat." He also announces a cheaper edition (two volumes in one) of Canon Luckock's "Footprints of the Son of Man."

P. BLAKISTON, SON & Co., Philadelphia, will publish next week a new "German-English-American Dictionary," by Frederick Treeves and Mr. Hugo Lang; "A Manual of the Practice of Medicine," by Frederick Taylor, M.D.; and a "Text-Book on Obstetrics," by Dr. F. Winckel (Munich), translated by Prof. Edgar F. Smith, of the University of New York.

JAMES J. CHAPMAN, Washington, will publish March 25 the second volume of Gen. V. Derré-cagaix's important work on "Modern War," translated by Lieut. C. W. Foster, U. S. A. This volume will treat of the grand tactics, illustrating tactics of the march, manoeuvre marches, combats, battles (important modern combats and battles given in illustration), pursuits, and retreats.

W. J. GAGE & Co., 3 East 14th Street, N. Y., announce "Elizabethan England, from 'A Description of England' by W. Harrison," edited by Lothrop Withington, and the "Prose Writings of Thomas Davis," edited by T. W. Rolleston, both in the Camelot Classics; also, "The Life of John Milton," by Richard Garnett, and "The Life of Honoré De Balzac," by Frederick Wedmore, in the Great Writers' Series. They have also issued a new edition of Henrik Ibsen's popular "Pillars of Society."

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have in preparation "Myths and Folk-Lore," by Jeremiah Curtin; the fifth and final volume of Palfrey's "History of New England," from the author's ms. by his son, with full index to the complete work; "The Way Out of Agnosticism, or, the philosophy of free religion," by Frances Ellingwood Abbot, author of "Scientific Theism;" "The Influence of Sea Power in History," by Capt. A. T. Mahan, U. S. N., an important historical work, showing the great power and influence developed by naval forces; also a second edition, at a reduced price, of "Five Hundred Dollars, and other stories," by H. W. Chaplin, in cloth and paper bindings.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 19th inst., in the American Men of Letters Series, a biography of William Cullen Bryant, by John Bigelow, who was for years associated with Mr. Bryant in the editorship of the New York Evening Post, knew him intimately, and appreciated fully the sterling qualities of his character and of his literary renown; "Alexander," a history of the origin and growth of the art of war from the earliest times to the battle of Ipsus, B.C. 301, with a detailed account of the campaigns of the great Macedonian, by Theodore Ayrault Dodge, the first volume in a series in which Colonel Dodge proposes to treat the art of war in successive eras, as illustrated by the great military chieftains of the world, illustrated with charts, maps, cuts of armor, uniforms, etc.; also, a new edition of Jones on Corporate Bonds and Mortgages.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fs. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar. designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights

Adams, H: History of the United States of America during the second administration of Thomas Jefferson. V. 3 and 4. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 4+471; 4+499 p. D. cl., $4.

The first two volumes of this work, covering the first administration of Jefferson, were published last year. See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., Oct. 26, '89, [926,] covering the scope of the whole work.

American state reports, cont. the cases of general value and authority, subsequent to those contained in the "American decisions" and the "American reports," decided in the courts of last resort of the several states; selected, rep., and annot. by A. C. Freeman [and others.] V. 10. San Francisco, Bancroft-Whitney Co., 1890. c. 980 p. O. shp., $4.

The original volume of reports in which the cases selected and re-reported in this volume may be found are: Indiana reports, v. 117, 118; Kansas, v. 40; Maine, v. 81; Missouri, v. 97; New Hampshire, v. 64; New York, v. 113; Pennsylvania, v. 123, 124; Tennessee, v. 87; Texas, v. 71; Virginia, v. 84.

Aplin, O. V. The birds of Oxfordshire. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 7+217 p. map, 8°, cl., $2.75.

Baas, Jos. Hermann, M.D. Outlines of the history of medicine and the medical profession; tr. and rev. and enl. by H. E. Handerson, M.D. N. Y., J. H. Vail & Co., 1890. 1175 p. 8°, cl., $6.

Bartholomew, J: The library reference atlas of the world; with general index to 100,000 places. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 4°, full mor., $18.

Bates, Arlo. Albrecht. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1890. 4-265 p. D. cl., $1.

The Black Forest in the 9th century is the scene. Its imaginary inhabitants—the dwarfs and gnomes and kobolds—play a part. A "kobold"—that is, a human being in appearance but not possessed of a soul and so without any sense of right or wrong—is the hero. As the Baron Albrecht he comes in radiant guise to the Castle Rittenberg to woo the Countess Erna. The Baron has been taught that if he wins a pure and disinterested love, he will gain a soul. A charming love drama—not without its moral—is developed from these conditions.

Best, Susie M. The fallen pillar saint, and other poems. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1890. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Bible. The smaller Cambridge Bible for schools: The first book of Samuel, with map, introd., and notes by the Rev. A. F. Kirkpatrick, D.D. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 128 p. 16°, cl., 30 c.

Bible. The smaller Cambridge Bible for schools: The second book of Samuel; with map, introd., and notes by the Rev. A. F. Kirkpatrick. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 128 p. 16°, cl., 30 c.

Bible. The smaller Cambridge Bible for schools: The gospel according to St. Matthew; with map, introd., and notes by the Rev. A.

Carr. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 128 p. 16°, cl., 30 c.

Blackall, Clarence H. Builders' hardware: a manual for architects, builders, and house furnishers. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1890. c. '88, '89. 9+322 p. il. O. cl., $6.

Written primarily for the architect,—Mr. Blackall, who is himself an architect, believing that architects as a rule, are not very well posted upon the subject of the hardware used in the construction of a house. The work does not aim to be over-critical or exhaustive. It simply offers under various heads, such as nails, screws, bolts, etc., the very best that is in the market, and shows which are the most valuable for the uses of the architect.

*Buel, S.; D.D. A treatise of dogmatic theology. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1890. 2 v., 1227 p. 8°, cl., $6.

Chapin, H: Dwight, M.D. Diphtheria. N. Y., Babyhood Pub. Co., [1890.] c. 20 p. Tl. (Nursery health tracts, no. 3.) pap., 5 c.

Conklin, Mrs Nathl., [Jennie M. Drinkwater.] Other folk. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., 1890. c. 3-431 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The story deals with the life of Olive Vanema, who in the first chapter has just finished her seventeenth year and who complains that "some people seem to have a choice in their lives," but that she has none. All her life till nearly forty she works for others, finally getting to love her work and wishing for nothing more. Then her health breaks down, and she goes away for a vacation and her love-story begins.

*Craven, Mrs. Dacre. A guide to district nurses. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 20+137 p. 12°, cl., 75 c.

- Fogarty, J. Countess Irene: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. 3+398 p. il. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 46.) cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.
The Countess Irene, gifted with a magnificent voice and great dramatic talent, is forbidden by her father to go on the stage. She takes under her protection Olga Lavinsky, whom she meets by accident in the Prater during a Vienna festival. One short year is covered in this novel, which introduces incidents of life among the various social circles of Vienna, and gives a telling picture of artistic hopes, fears, triumphs, and disappointments.

Divided into seven parts treating separately of the uses of the air-ocean, and of the gases, vapors, movements, disturbances, forces, and life in the air-ocean.
- Gilmore, Ja. R., ["Edmund Kirke," pseud.] A mountain-white heroine. N. Y., Belford Co., 1889. c. '89. 240 p. D. (The Belford American novel ser., no. 8.) pap., 30 c.
At the opening of the late war in the secluded region among the mountains of western North Carolina, there was a large class of hardy whites who were non-slaveholders, and who were opposed to the institution of slavery. Though poor and ignorant, they were brave and loyal citizens. The Southern Confederacy tried fair means and then force to enlist them in the rebel army. The mountaineers took refuge in their strongholds and fought to the bitter end for their liberty. Many made their way over to the Northern lines and enlisted in the Federal army. This is the theme of this story, the heroine being a lady of education whose lot had been cast among the mountains, and who becomes the leader and counsellor to all around her.

Moon, G. Washington. With all my worldly goods I thee endow: a novel. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1890. 10+290 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Mr. Moon, an English writer, takes exception to the clause in the marriage service of the Established Church of England which makes the husband say, "With all my worldly goods I thee endow," etc. As the husband does not endow his wife with all his worldly goods he characterizes these words as "a blasphemous lie," and argues that as the law does not consider this clause binding, the marriage service as a whole is not valid. To illustrate his standpoint he has written this novel, in which there is a lawsuit in which the question is tested.

The first edition was noticed in "Weekly Record," P. W., July 14, '88, [859.] The present edition is enlarged by some 100 pages, the new papers treating of "Aunt Nabby's visit to an editor's office," "Aunt Nabby's views of divorcements," "Aunt Nabby's experience with the mind cure," and "Aunt Nabby's unceremonious caller."

Newton, W: Wilberforce, D.D. Dr. Muhlenberg. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. '90. 10+272 p. D. (American religious leaders.) cl., $1.25.

"It is called a study rather than a life, for it has been the purpose of the writer to bring out the relationship of Dr. Muhlenberg's personality and work to the subsequent development of Christianity in America resulting from his life, rather than to describe again those facts in his life which have been already given to the public in his published memoir. What has been here attempted has been the perspective view of his life and influence, the background and the foreground of the picture, with this striking personality standing as the central figure of the church's present-day liberalized life."—Preface.

The work is divided into two parts and an introduction. The introduction treats of the revenge of the Moors after their expulsion from Spain, and describes the Barbary Peninsula—the land of the Corsairs. Pt. 1, "The Corsair admirals," gives the biographies of a dozen or more noted pirates of the 15th, 16th, and 17th centuries. Pt. 2 is devoted to "The petty pirates" of the 16th, 17th, and 18th centuries. Index.

In the 17th century, on a shop window in Hungerford town, were graven the verses of one Ephraim Tucker, who besought Wayfaringers to seek "The splendid spur," as

"Only the heel of splendid steel Shall stand secure on sliding fate."

Jack Marvel reads and digests these lines, and at the same time meets the heroine. Their joint application of them makes a stirring story, which has historical surroundings.

A translation of George Sand's Les maitres Sonneurs, first published in 1853. It is a tale of French peasant life of the year 1828; it is a pretty, poetical story with a strong local coloring, and with a simple unsensational plot. The bagpipers are similar to the troubadours of French story. Miss Wormeley, the translator of Balzac, has rendered the text into delightful English. The volume is bound in uniform style with Balzac's works.

Thurston, R. H. A handbook of engine and boiler trials, and of the indicator and Prony brake; for engineers and technical schools. N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1890. c. 514 p. il. O. cl., $5.

A treatise upon the latest and best methods of test of both engines and boilers; on the apparatus used by the most expert and experienced members of the engineering profession in making such tests; and on the methods of securing and of working up, of computing, the data so obtained. Includes accounts of recent and, until now, unpublished methods and apparatus for accessory determinations, and very complete descriptions of the indicator and the brake, of the forms customarily used in such work. The standard method of testing steam-boilers, as reported to the American Society of Mechanical Engineers is given in full; complete descriptions are given of the "Prony brake," and of other forms of dynamometer used in determination of power usefully applied. The work is concluded by a set of sample reports, made by distinguished engineers, which illustrate the best methods of presentation of the results of investigations relating to various classes of engines and boilers. The appendix contains a valuable set of steam-tables, logarithms, common and hyperbolic, evaporation-factors, compositions of fuels, and other useful information.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 15, 1890.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

COPYRIGHT AND A BOOK TRUST.

THE argument presented by Mr. Bovee, of the firm of Arnoux, Rich & Woodford, against international copyright at the House Judiciary Committee hearing on Saturday, was a very clever summarization of the various objections, however contradictory to each other, which may be raised against an international copyright law. The mystery as to the clientage which this law firm represents is still unsolved; it appears vaguely as representing "a large publisher," although every large publisher of books known to the book trade has expressed himself definitely in favor of international copyright. The partner in this firm who last year had charge of this opposition to the copyright measure, is Mr. W. C. Wallace, who in this Congress represents a Brooklyn district. It is to be hoped that in any vote on copyright he will represent his district and not his firm, the district being one of the best in Brooklyn, of cultivated people who, if they could be fairly polled, would show an overwhelming preponderance in favor of justice to authors.

One of the chief objections raised heretofore against the international copyright measure has been that it would promote a book trust. We give elsewhere a report outlining the formation of such a trust. The organization of such a combination as this has been in the air for some time, but we have reason to believe that it will finally be consummated. We have often ridiculed the idea that a trust among the large publishers was within the practical possibilities. The present talk of a "trust" shows that we were right. There is no adequate motive for the Harpers, the Appletons, the Scribners, the Lippincotts, the Houghtons, and such houses to form a combination of any such sort; the present combination is made up solely of reprinters, who are contemplating pooling their plates, under the inspiration of the Trow Printing Co., backed by Mr. H. K. Thurber and managed by Mr. Lange. All or nearly all the concerns mentioned, including the Trow Printing Co. itself, have passed through bankruptcy and have since done business on the capital of their creditors who have had to take anywhere from 25 cents on the dollar up. The Trow Printing Co. has for a long time, it is understood, practically held possession of the plates of many of these reprinters, and it is also understood to have had the chief say in the arrangements with the creditors of Belford, Clarke & Co. In the meantime, the Trow Printing Co. is upheld by the legitimate business (paying a hundred cents on the dollar), of other publishers in the regular trade. This is not a happy state of things.

This trust has resulted, not from ordinary competition carried on under the due protection of law, but from over-competition carried out on non-copyright books and beyond the pale of law. Its existence at the moment is an excellent argument in favor of an international copyright bill. We have often pointed out that any raise of price which might be made by a copyright bill would be chiefly on the cheap foreign reprints. This result is now to be accomplished by a "combine," so that even on this cheapest class of books this objection to international copyright falls utterly to the ground. We trust that this will not escape the attention of Congress.

As we go to press we learn that the House Committee on Patents, by a unanimous vote, instructed Mr. Simonds, of Connecticut, the chairman of the sub-committee, to make a favorable report on House bill No. 3914 (the International Copyright bill). This bill has been amended in some unimportant particulars, so as to make it conform to the Copyright bill now pending in the Senate.

THE Swayne case seems to be a "family failing"—and chronic. On the other hand, Mr. Setliff's misfortune seems to be that of an honest man struggling against difficulties.

THE "LIBRARY" PUBLISHERS' "COMBINE."

FOR a week or more, the publishers of the cheap libraries have been agitated over a proposed combination of their interests; but up to the time of our going to press, notwithstanding the reports of the daily press to the contrary, no definite settlement has been made. The movement, in so far as we have been able to learn by diligent investigation, has its origin in the general dissatisfaction of all the parties concerned with the returns—or rather the lack of returns—the business now affords. From year to year competition has become fiercer and more malignant, so that the descent has been gradual from fair profit to small margin; from small profit as manufacturer, to no profit—and finally to absolute and irredeemable loss. As an example of this, there are lines of cloth-bound twelvemos, averaging 300 pages each, printed fairly well, some with illustrations, with black and gilt cover designs, the volumes averaging in weight a pound avoirdupois, selling in lots of one hundred copies or more, assorted if desired, at fifteen cents the volume, less a discount for cash; selling in lots of thousands, according to quantity, for anything the party chose to offer; selling so low that the manufacturer even admitted it would make him blush to say how little he received. The more the matter is looked into, especially in regard to the paper-bound stuff, the more discouraged one becomes with the figures and the way in which the business was being done—and now we presume the parties engaged in it have reached the same stage.

The movement originates with the Trow Printing Company, headed by Messrs. Thurber and Lange, who own the bulk of the reprinter's plate stock, and who, we believe, were the only ones who ever made any money out of the business. The J. W. Lovell Company, however, appear nominally as the prime movers. As a start, they have secured the plates of the Franklin Edition and World Library, formerly issued by the Worthington Company. They have also, it is reported, made arrangements with George Munro for a three years' lease of his plates, with the option of purchasing them at a stated sum, at the expiration of the lease. Overtures have been made to induce Hurst & Co., J. S. Ogilvie and M. J. Ivers to join, but at this writing they are still considering the offer.

The Pollard & Moss plates have not yet been disposed of; the latest word concerning them being that the "assignee is now receiving sealed bids for all the assets."

The report that the "combine" has secured the plates of Henry Holt & Co.'s Leisure Hour series is unfounded. Offers have been made to Holt & Co. at various times in the last three years, but no arrangement has as yet been consummated.

The object of the movement is, of course, to concentrate the whole business, to raise prices, and to pool profits. In so far as the movement effects the reestablishment of anything like a fair price for their wares, the trade may congratulate itself at the awakening, otherwise the movement has no significance.

Independent of the foregoing combination the head and front of the "Literary Revolution," the "pioneer in the business of reprinting works of real literary value," etc., has with "characteristic enterprise" started an opposition boom. He has, in fact, been getting up a little combine all his own. Whoever takes enough interest in the organization of what its creator pompously calls "The American Publishers' Union" may inform himself by addressing "The Committee" of the "Scheme," box 1227, N. Y.

NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS ENDORSE THE COPYRIGHT BILL.

At the meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, on the 13th inst., Mr. R. U. Johnson was tendered the privileges of the floor in defence of the proposed International Copyright law now before Congress. He explained that the bill had been drawn up so as to inflict no hardship on any one. An exception had been made for the express benefit of newspaper editors and librarians, allowing the importation of two copies of any English or foreign work for examination or as additions to libraries. The discussion ended with the adoption of the following resolution, presented by the Committee on Business:

Resolved, That the American Newspaper Publishers' Association is in hearty sympathy with the efforts now being made by American authors to obtain from Congress a fuller security for literary property, and we believe the proposed International Copyright Bill to be in the interest of the national honor and welfare.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

HOUSE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE HEARINGS.

A SPECIAL meeting was held on the 8th inst. by the House Committee on the Judiciary to continue hearing arguments on the International Copyright bill.

Mr. C. Bovee, of New York, who first addressed the committee, said he appeared in behalf of a large publisher, but not in a spirit of unqualified opposition to the Chace-Breckinbridge bill. He had examined the petitions bearing on the subject. The remonstrances numbered 280 papers, including 129 from newspaper editors. The petitions in favor of a bill numbered 66; but they were generally in favor of an International Copyright bill, not the Chace bill. Small dealers and publishers were entitled to the consideration of the committee because the bill favored the great publishers and promised to crush out the smaller ones. He did not deny that there was some basis in the appeal for relief by the publishers and authors. But there was another and more numerous class, and the committee should remember the interests of the people in legislating, and secure the minimum rather than the maximum price of books.

The Chace bill was not an International Copyright bill, inasmuch as it contained no reciprocal features. It had been wrongly assumed that when the bill was passed, England, in a spirit of generosity, would throw open her doors to American authors.

Under the system of free publication the United States had become the greatest book-reading country in the world, and there was no man so poor that he could not buy for his family the best literature of the world. The cost of books in England was unquestionably higher than in this country. Holding up an English book, he said that its price was $1.50; the American reprint cost 20 cents. Another was a paper-covered German publication which cost $2.40; the American reprint, on fine paper and handsomely bound, cost $1.50. The American reprint of the Nineteenth Century cost 40 cents; the original English magazine cost 75 cents. Roger Sherman, formerly one of the largest publishers in Philadelphia, had testified that the outcry for the passage of the bill was simply the clamor of 200 authors against the interests of 50,000,000 people. As to the effect of the passage of the bill upon literary taste, Mr. Bovee cited the case of Littell's Living Age, which could no longer lay before its readers the choicest literature of the world. The Westminster Magazine would also be seized and destroyed by the customs officers as soon as it reached New York.

As to the printers' interests, Mr. Bovee admitted that the typographical unions had petitioned in favor of the bill. It seemed to him that the printers' interest would be injured. They assumed that all of the book printing was to be on the Atlantic seaboard. Now books were published all over the United States. That must stop, and all the Western printers would have to go to the East. They assumed that they would set the type. They forgot the advance of science, and the work was going to be done by machines, especially as the business would be concentrated in a few hands. What was to prevent English publishers coming over here and inaugurating the English system of high-priced books? There was a demand for the international copyright, but this bill would not meet it. The American author could be protected and the foreign author as well, without monopoly, by the adoption of the royalty system. By this any American publisher could print a foreign work by paying the author a royalty, and competition would keep down prices. The publishers would object, of course, and claim that they were not protected; but they would certainly receive all of the consideration they were entitled to, with due regard to the interests of the people.

Mr. George Haven Putnam was the next speaker and stated that he appeared on behalf of the Associated Copyright League, a body representing the authors, publishers, printers, booksellers, librarians, and the bookbuying public. He could speak with some personal knowledge of the views of the booksellers of the country, and from that knowledge he was assured that the book trade was in favor of the bill. He contended that the pending Copyright bill had been framed with the fullest consideration of the requirements of all these classes, and of the interests of the American people. The main purpose, he said, of the clause providing that foreign books securing an American copyright shall be printed from type made in this country, was to secure cheaper books to the American public. It would be as reasonable to expect a builder to put up an expensive building on a lot to which his community would give him no title as to expect a publisher to give years of editorial labor and outlay to the preparation and publication of a work that he could not afterward control.

There were a number of valuable foreign books that would be largely sold here in inexpensive American editions if the publishers were not afraid to undertake their publication here for lack of protection. Many of these books were now imported, and cost large prices to those Americans who were obliged to have copies.

Mr. Rogers wished to know if that same argument would not apply to the republication of all foreign books.

Mr. Putnam replied that it applied only to a certain class of works, of decided importance for the community, but for which there was a limited demand; of course, the American publisher would not be afraid to republish "Robert Elsmere," or a book of that reputation for which the demand was sure to be large. It was only the lowest grade of fiction that would be increased in price if the bill became a law. The royalty idea had been long argued out and exploded. The author had a right to know that his books reached readers in complete and correct texts, but from a "royalty system" could result only a number of defective editions, unsatisfactory alike to author and reader. People would rather pay a little more and secure a neat and accurate volume than to take the slovenly, imperfect, and faulty work that would result from this royalty system. The author's business rights would be no better cared for. Under the royalty plan the author could not control his texts or select his business agent. If we admit at all that there is such a thing as literary property, we must give to the producer the right to select his own agents. We do not do this in simply giving him the privilege of suing for his royalties a number of more or less irresponsible dealers not selected by himself.

English authors did not question that reciprocity would follow the passage of the bill, and that the English Government would accept the plan. Mr. Bryce was one of the authorities for that statement and Mr. Besant another. The objections to the bill presented last session by certain of the rural newspapers, had been in great part withdrawn since it had been made clear that the measure would not interfere with the business of supplying in the form of "patent insides" the stories and sketches reprinted from abroad. These stories were mainly taken from English magazines, and as it would not be practicable to print these magazines in this country and copyright them the country papers could still avail themselves of their contents. One result of this bill would be not to hamper (as Mr. Bovee contended) but to facilitate the development of publishing centres in the West and throughout the country. Under the present "scramble" system Western publishers were at a peculiar disadvantage in competing with the East, a disadvantage that would be removed when they could arrange at their leisure for foreign works. The American magazines gave now more matter in proportion to cost than the English magazines or than was given by Littell's Living Age, but the business of the latter would be in no way interfered with, and its publishers were not opposing the bill. There was an erroneous impression current respecting book monopolies. The author's copyright gave him only control of his work so far as the language was concerned. Any other person could utilize his ideas and facts by expressing them in different language. International Copyright was required in justice to American authors; in justice to foreign authors; for the wholesome development of American literature; and for the interests of the trade engaged in the manufacturing of books. It was especially important for the purpose of giving to the American reader the best literature at the lowest prices, a result that could be brought about in no other way.

Judge W. H. Arnoux, President of the New York Bar Association, and who supported Mr. Bovee, followed Mr. Putnam by saying that the prosperity of the United States was founded on the Bible and the printer. Mr. Putnam spoke of an international copyright bill. It was rather a bill to crush out small publishers and create monopolies. The rich were to be made richer and the poor poorer. The English authors about whom we were so solicitous knew only the great publishers here, and would go to them to publish their works. The small publisher here could get none of their work. The publisher would try for every dollar he thought he could get for his work. The less the competition the greater the monopoly. The representatives of the people should guard the people against injurious trusts. There would be no competition under this bill. The English author, having absolute control, would not sell his work in America for less than the English prices, and might demand even more. It was proposed to protect the printers, but not the engravers and etchers. The printers had been brought in to stifle their opposition to the bill. England did not protect foreign authors from piracy, notwithstanding their virtuous indignation. Thirteen English publishers were reprinting "Mr. Barnes of New York." Judge Arnoux referred to a case where excellent publications were made by a German publisher, Tauchnitz, who paid royalty voluntarily to foreign authors as a justification of the principles of authors' royalty.

Mr. Putnam was here permitted to say that in these cases the publisher had the author's consent to control the publication in German territory, and therefore appears to have (what the opponents of this bill are so much troubled about) a "monopoly" of these books for a wide extent of territory. The result of this "monopoly" was to supply such territory with the books in the cheapest possible form, and the success of Mr. Tauchnitz was a justification of the application of the principle of International Copyright. A similar so-called "monopoly," given to American publishers for English works copyrighted in this country, would result in a similar manner, in supplying for the American public reprints of these books at the lowest possible prices. The prices depended, therefore, not upon the fact of copyright, but upon the requirements and the extent of the market.

Chairman Taylor also thought that the success of Mr. Tauchnitz was owing to the fact that the large demand for his works, coupled with the copyright control of them, enabled him to supply them at these low prices.

Mr. Putnam added that it was believed that such a result would follow in this country if a publisher could be sure of the entire market.

Judge W. H. Arnoux, however, insisted that the effect here would be to create a monopoly, and a monopoly never failed to increase prices. He concluded by criticising as impracticable the provisions of the bill allowing importations of foreign works only after the written consent of the owner of the copyright has been procured, holding that it would operate to prevent importations almost altogether, and that altogether the bill was a vicious bill and not in the interest of the people of the United States.

Mr. Kennedy, representing the typographical unions, was given permission to incorporate in the report of the proceedings answers to certain statements made during this hearing.

CANADIAN COPYRIGHT.

A TELEGRAPHIC despatch from Ottawa, dated February 12, reports that Sir John Thompson has submitted to Parliament the correspondence between the Canadian and Imperial Governments in reference to the copyright question. The papers include a memorial from the English Copyright Association. This memorial says that the Canadian act is not only ultra vires, but highly injurious to all British copyright owners except those resident in the Dominion, and asks the Imperial authorities to withhold the royal assent to the act. The opinion is quoted of Lords Selbourne and Herschell, given in 1871, in which they state that "the Imperial Copyright Act of 1842 is still in force in its integrity throughout the British dominions, including Canada, in so far as it prohibits the printing in any part of such dominions of a book copyrighted under the act without the consent of the proprietor."

The petitioners contend that the proposed royalty provided for in the Canadian act is illusory, because it will be unworkable. They say "it is not intended to encourage cheap literature, and is not required in the interests of the publishers."

"The copyright law in Canada, of which the act of last session was an amendment, irrespective of the International Copyright Act of 1886, which gives effect to the Berne Convention, consists, as has been intimated," says a correspondent of the New York Times, "partly of Imperial and partly of Canadian legislation. Sir John Thompson says under it every work copyrighted in Great Britain had copyright protection without the requirement of publication in Canada. Under the protection of this system the United States authors secure copyrights in Great Britain and her possessions by publishing in England, sometimes by publishing a limited edition not intended to supply the market and not sufficient therefor, and thus secure control of the Canadian market, while a Canadian cannot obtain such copyright privileges in the United States.

"The rights which British authors and publishers have in British possessions under this condition of the law have been greatly abused by the sale of their copyright privileges to American publishers and their refusal to sell to Canadian publishers on like terms. By this means United States publishers have been enabled to command the Canadian market under the provisions of legislation which were not intended for their benefit, but for the benefit of the British author and publisher.

"The prices of American reprints are so low that British publications have no chance of competing with them in Canada, and Canadian reprints being prohibited by the copyright law, the business of reprinting for Canadian readers is thus to a great extent thrown into the hands of American publishing houses, to the very great detriment of the publishing interests of Canada.

"By the legislation of last session it is proposed that the person having copyright under Imperial legislation or under any treaty arrangement with Great Britain may preserve the exclusive right as to Canada by publishing or republishing in this country within a certain time, and that if he does not so publish or republish, his copyrights shall still avail him to the extent of enabling him to collect a royalty on all republications made in Canada by any other person.

"The business of publishing in Canada will be represented as to works published in all these countries, and the United States publishers will be free from any restrictions of that kind, not only to the vast markets of their own country, but as to Canada as well. Parliament considered that the peculiar position in which Canada is placed on account of her proximity to the United States and the copyright policy of the United States demands peculiar treatment in legislation on this subject and treatment different from both the Berne Convention and from the Imperial and Canadian Copyright Acts heretofore in force.

"The Canadian Parliament has on more than one occasion expressed this opinion, and did so emphatically at its last session by unanimously passing the act now under consideration."

THE ALDINE CLUB-HOUSE OPENED.

THE formal opening of the club-house of the Aldine Club, at 20 Lafayette Place, New York, took place on the evening of the 12th. For several hours the rooms were crowded with visitors, for whom an interesting loan exhibition had been provided, consisting of portraits and photographs of men who have played important parts in the literary history of America and of precious manuscripts and autograph letters. This was supplemented later in the evening with a collation in the dining-room, during which the President, Mr. W. W. Appleton, delivered a brief address.

The exhibition included a most interesting collection of portraits in oil of American publishers and authors. In this group were represented Charles L. Elliott's portrait of Daniel Appleton, the founder of the publishing house, that of John A. Appleton by Thomas Hicks, Gilbert Stuart's James Rivington, and portraits of Herbert Spencer and Fitz-Greene Halleck, loaned by the Messrs. Appleton; Mr. David B. Iverson loaned a portrait of Henry Iverson; The Chamber of Commerce kindly sent a portrait of Alfred S. Barnes; the Harpers contributed C. L. Elliott's portrait of Fletcher Harper, one of the four original members of the firm; Mr. Charles A. Dana sent a portrait of N. P. Willis, and one of himself by Jules Emile Saintain; Mr. G. P. Brett loaned a portrait of Alexander Macmillan; John W. Alexander his painting of W. D. Howells; Dora Wheeler the artist, portraits of Charles Dudley Warner, T. B. Aldrich, and Mark Twain. The New York Typothetæ sent a curious portrait of Benjamin Franklin, painted by a French artist, and an oil portrait of George Jones was loaned by the artist, Arthur Jule Goodwin, while Mr. Jones himself contributed one of the late Henry J. Raymond. Other portraits were the Horace Greeley loaned by Louis Windmüller, Butler's picture of Richard H. Stoddard, and Benoni Erwin's capital portrait of Joaquin Miller.

There was also exhibited a fine collection of drawings in crayon and prints, contributed by the Century Company, J. W. Alexander, and W. A. Baker; an interesting group of daguerreotypes and photographs of Poe, Burns, Longfellow, Marie Bashkirtseff, and Walt Whitman; and a valuable lot of mss., letters, books, and bric-à-brac and curios. The collection as a whole is probably the best of its kind ever exhibited.

The club-house itself is one of the most cheerful and social-looking establishments in the city. The interior is after the style of the old London inns or chop-houses on Fleet Street. The floors of some of the lower rooms, where the members may have chops and ale, are sanded. The furnishings are of light wood. The tables are square and heavy, and the chairs are comfortably old-fashioned. One looks instinctively for pewter mugs and "tobies." All around on the walls are cheering and welcoming inscriptions, quaintly worded, such as "Thou art a scholar. Let us therefore eat and drink." "Dost thou think because thou art virtuous there shall be no more cakes and ale?" and "Sublime tobacco, which from East to West cheers the tar's labor or the Turkman's rest." Some of the members make the club their home. They live in inviting rooms on the upper floors. Unlike the other down-town clubs, the Aldine keeps its latch up until midnight.

The officers of the Aldine Club are: President, William W. Appleton; Vice-President, Henry C. Bunner; Treasurer, Frank H. Scott; Secretary, John S. Wood. The House Committee is composed of Henry T. Thomas, George R. Cathcart, and Charles E. Merrill; Auditing Committee, Effingham Maynard, George T. Stevens, and Gilman H. Tucker; the Committee on Literature and Art, William A. Coffin, Alexander W. Drake, William D. Howells, James F. Ruggles, and Frank R. Stockton; the Committee on Admissions, Edward L. Burlingame, Louis H. Blakeman, Joseph L. Blamire, Hamilton W. Mabie, Bleecker Van Wagenen, Daniel Appleton, Theodore L. De Vinne, Richard W. Gilder, Clarence C. Rice, John D. Champlin, Jr., Alexander Clapp, Oscar M. Dunham, Orlando Leach, and Joseph J. Little.

DEDICATION OF THE METHODIST BOOK CONCERN'S NEW HOME.

ON the evening of the 11th inst. the million-dollar structure of the Methodist Book Concern was formally dedicated to its uses. The services took place in the chapel on the third floor of the new building. Mr. William Hoyt, chairman of the Building Committee, presided. After a prefatory religious service General Clinton B. Fisk read the report of the Building Committee, and closed his comments by saying that the ground on which the building stood cost $450,000; that the structure itself has cost in round numbers $550,000, perhaps a little more, as all the adjustments of accounts have not been made. But there is money enough in the bank to pay the last dollar, so that the building was dedicated free of debt. General Fisk referred pleasantly to the quicksand encountered in sinking the foundations, which cost $17,000 extra, in order to place the foundation where the foundation of Methodism should be—on solid rock.

At the close of General Fisk's remarks a large and handsome American flag was presented to the Book Concern by Miss Kate Van Dusen, of the Board of Education, with a neat little address. The banner was accepted by General Fisk on behalf of the Methodist Book Concern, and the audience joined in singing the hymn, "My Country, 'tis of Thee."

After brief addresses by Bishop Andrews, Dr. Cranston, and others, the building was formally presented to Bishop Andrews for dedication by Amos Shinkle, chairman of the Book Committee, and Dr. Hunt, representing the Missionary Society. The Doxology and the benediction closed the exercises.

THE BARLOW SALE.

From the New York Evening Post, Feb. 10.

IT is said of the late Samuel L. M. Barlow that at no time was it his object either to accumulate a large library in many branches of literature, or to collect books with no other merit than their rarity. The former work he properly left to the public institutions; as to the latter, his aim was more serious. Limiting himself to the history of America, and, within that wide field, chiefly to original authorities and editions, he sought out and preserved the rare works which form regular series, comprehending separate epochs and distinct sections of the Western continent. His collection thus came to include the earliest documents narrating the Spanish discoveries, among which are the invaluable first printed letters of Columbus, Vespuccius, and Cortes; a remarkably complete series of pamphlets describing the work of the English, French, and Dutch in colonizing North America; and the largest set of the "Relations of the Jesuit Missionaries" which has yet been offered for sale.

The dispersion of Mr. Barlow's library, in the sales which continued throughout the last week, was certainly a source of regret to many lovers of books, who would gladly have seen this noteworthy collection preserved in one place. Could this have been done, the Barlow library would have remained a monument to the intelligence and rare judgment of its collector. It may safely be said, however, that better uses have been found for it. In the reinforcement of libraries already existing, to which the majority of his treasures have gone, the work of Mr. Barlow reaches its highest utility.

The questions naturally asked concerning this sale are: What institutions and collectors have been fortunate in securing a share of the books; and how has the sale affected the market value of Americana? Through Mr. Barlow's industry and discrimination, his library included a large proportion of unique or nearly unique books; and as the Lenox and Carter-Brown collections are intact under the roofs of public libraries, and the Brinley library has been put upon the market, the removal of the Barlow books to the shelter of established libraries renders it improbable that an equal number of the rarest works on the sources of American history will ever again fall under the auctioneer's hammer. The prices secured last week were, therefore, the result of eager competition, and for really scarce books seldom fell below those of former sales; in many cases they doubled previous figures. As usual, however, in sales of rare and special books, a great number of standard works, not yet hard to find in the old bookshops, sold at great bargains. The total receipts for 2780 lots were $85,048.20.

The following items, selected impartially for the purposes of comparison, will show the increasing value of this class of literature:

George Alsop's "Maryland," London, 1666, brought $410 in the Barlow sale; at the sale of the late H. C. Murphy's Americana, the work sold for $360.

Maj. John André's "Cow-Chace," New York, 1790, in both the Murphy and Menzies sales, fetched $23; Mr. Barlow's copy, $85.

Anne Bradstreet's stupid verses, "The Tenth Muse Lately Sprung up in America," London, 1650, with a damaged title-page, brought $130; Menzies' fine copy was valued at $77.50.

John Brereton's "Brief and True Relation of Virginia," London, 1602, went to the Lenox Library for $1125; the late Mr. Brinley's copy sold for $800.

Denton's "Brief Description of New York," London, 1670, sold for $525, as against $220 at the Menzies sale.

The first edition of John Eliot's "New Testament," in the Indian language, was bought by Charles R. Hildeburn, of Philadelphia, for $610; the Murphy copy sold for $340.

Daniel Horsmanden's "Conspiracy for Burning the City of New York in America," New York, 1744, was sold to Dodd, Mead & Co. for $310; the Menzies copy brought $70 less.

Lescarbot's "Histoire de la Nouvelle-France," two volumes in one, Paris, 1618, went to the same purchasers for $220, a gain of $90 on the Murphy sale.

"The General Laws and Liberties of the Massachusetts Colony," Cambridge, 1672, brought $270 from Brayton Ives. The Murphy copy of the same work sold for $27.

The German John Lederer's "Discoveries in Three Several Marches from Virginia to the West of Carolina," London, 1672, was bought by Mr. Woodward for $265; the same work in the Murphy sale was worth $180.

The great collection of English voyages known as "Hakluytus Posthumus, or Purchas, his Pilgrimes," published in London in 1625 and 1626, went to the Chicago Public Library for $325. A large and elegant copy from the Murphy library brought $265, and the one in Menzies' collection only $85.

The leading buyers at the Barlow sale were libraries and the private collectors. The booksellers were present chiefly as agents for these purchasers only, as the prices were too high to permit profitable investments in the best books for purposes of resale. Ex-Judge Mellen, Chamberlain of the Boston Public Library, to whom the Boston City Council had given $25,000 to be spent in this sale, Mr. Moore, of the Lenox Library, and Brayton Ives bought the largest number of the books which are catalogued as "excessively rare." Mr. Poole, of the Newberry Library of Chicago, obtained a very large number of desirable volumes, but seldom ventured into the regions of the highest prices. Other buyers were the Harvard Library, the State Libraries of New York and Virginia, the Toronto Public Library, the Carter-Brown Library of Providence, R. I.; the Connecticut and New Jersey Historical Societies, and Mr. Hildeburn, of Philadelphia, and C. H. Kalbfleisch, of Brooklyn.

In the disposition of Mr. Barlow's best books, New York shared about equally with New England. The Lenox Library already had duplicates of by far the greater part of this collection. For the books still lacking Mr. Moore bid liberally, and generally with success. Among his wise investments are Brereton's "Brief and True Relation," already noticed, and its companion work, James Rosier's "True Relation of the Most Prosperous Voyage made this Present Yeere, 1605, by Captaine George Waymouth, in the Discovery of the Land of Virginia," London, 1605, which sold in London in 1883 for £301, and for which the Lenox now pays $1825. "Portolano" of Pietro Coppo da Isola, printed in Venice in 1528, and bound by Hardy, cost Mr. Moore $320. The British Museum owns the only other copy that is known to exist. This little book contains six early maps and tells the story of Columbus. One of the most desirable additions to the Lenox Library's present collection of French-Canadian records is the "Les Veritables Motifs de Messieurs et Dames de la Société de Nostre Dame de Montreal" [Paris], 1643. For this $310 was paid; while the absolutely unique "Lettre Circulaire de la Mort de la Reverende Mere Catherine de S. Augustin, Religieuse Hospitaliere de Quebec" [1668], cost the Lenox $265. Several numbers from Mr. Barlow's collection of the Jesuit Relations were bought by Mr. Moore, thus giving the Lenox Library a more complete set of the Relations than can be found elsewhere, even in France. William Pynchon's "Meritorious Price of our Redemption," London, 1650, the scarce book which the General Court of Massachusetts ordered to be burned by the executioner in the marketplace of Boston town, the author having maintained the "damnable heresy" that "Christ did not suffer for us Hell torments," fetched $480; the Boston Public Library being Mr. Moore's most active competitor. Edward Winslow's "Good Newes from New England; or, A True Relation of Things very Remarkable at the Plantation of Plimoth," London, 1624, bought for $350, also deserves notice. Mr. Moore's last purchase is a piece of good fortune for the Lenox Library. This was the famous Livingston correspondence, a collection of more than 1000 letters, petitions, etc., chiefly addressed to William Livingston, while he was Governor of New Jersey. The letters cover the period from 1775 to 1782, and are among the most valuable of Revolutionary memorabilia. The eight volumes in which they were carefully collected brought the Barlow estate the sum of $1920.

BOOKSELLERS AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

At the last regular meeting of the Booksellers and Stationers' Provident Association the following new members were elected: David J. O'Connell, 326 East 37th St., New York, N. Y.; Otto G. Manss, 518 East 82d St., New York, N. Y.; Lewis H. Greve, 831 Herkimer St., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Albert A. Manchester, 819 Broadway, New York, N. Y.; Christopher E. Norcott, 445 East 10th St., New York, N. Y.; Charles H. Squier, 86 Reade St., New York, N. Y.; George McCarroll, 714 Broadway, New York, N. Y.; Rudolph Middecke, 35 Union Sq., New York, N. Y.; Henry C. Holten, 428 Bloomfield St., Hoboken, N. J. We are glad to note that the growth of this Society has become steady, that the members generally are taking more interest in it, and that the 1500 limit will be reached before long.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ATLANTA, GA.—Lewis Brothers, booksellers, have sold out.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—The Swayne family, to "keep up the motion," are again in trouble. It will be remembered that when George J. Swayne failed his stock and fixtures were covered by a bill of sale under which they had been sold to a relation in Albany, who transferred to Mr. Geo. J. Swayne's mother, the present nominal head of "Swayne's Bookstore." Mrs. E. M. Swayne invited her creditors to meet her attorney, Mr. G. V. Brower, at 44 Court St., Brooklyn, who presented a statement showing liabilities of $7971.69, of which $4025 was due to the youngest son of Mrs. Swayne, and assets of $3430.75, consisting of stock at cost, $2530.75; book accounts, $500; fixtures, $300, and cash, $100. It was offered to settle with the creditors at 33½ cents on the dollar in endorsed notes at four, eight, and twelve months. Another meeting is to be held. No settlement of the first indebtedness has yet been made, so far as we are aware, and yet some of the houses who figured as creditors in the Geo. J. Swayne failure are represented also on the list of his successor, and that, too, notwithstanding the fact that the management of the business remained practically unchanged.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—G. N. Tillman, assignee of A. Setliff, calls a meeting of the creditors for February 27. Mr. Setliff writes us in answer to the charges made from several quarters that he bought "rather heavily during the fall and not long before the announcement of failure": "I will say this, that I have always been compelled to buy with the view of having the longest possible time, hence my purchases were as close to the season as possible, so that I might pay the bills from sales of the goods. This is why I bought late in the season, as I always do, excepting only where goods were delivered in advance and bills dated January 1 to 15. The other point, that I bought rather heavily, is correct. I did buy heavier than usual. However, it was not altogether intentional. I accept all the fault, although some little fault lies on the other side. Misled by the cry here of 'boom,' 'big trade this fall,' having it confirmed by drummers, I allowed myself to become over-sanguine, thinking to take the tide at the flood, and if trade was not quite so good I would borrow to make up the difference. Well, the flood came from the wrong direction. First, the total indebtedness was much larger than usual or intentional. Second, trade was behind in place of ahead. Third, I could not borrow. The end was at hand. I had only to protect all my creditors alike, making no discriminations."

NEW YORK CITY.—At a meeting of the creditors of Daniel Slote & Co., on January 24, a resolution was adopted empowering the assignee "to take the business, manufacture such goods as are in progress of manufacture, or as are needed to fulfil the contracts, employ the requisite help to carry out such purpose, selling on the usual trade terms, and to report his action in this respect to the committee at the next meeting of the creditors," which is to be "subject to the call of the chair and the committee." The prospects are that a fair settlement will be made.

NEW YORK CITY.—John Wiley & Sons have removed from Astor Place to 53 East 10th St.

TOLEDO, O.—Nicholas & Buchanan have succeeded to the stationery and book business of E. P. Leland. Fred C. Nicholas was fourteen years with Brown, Eager & Hull, of this city, and Robert Buchanan was for a number of years with Robert Clarke & Co., of Cincinnati. The stand which they occupy has been a book and stationery store for over thirty years, and is one of the oldest stationery establishments in northwestern Ohio. The members of the firm are wide-awake, enterprising young men, have a beautiful store, and carry a fine line of society stationery. We wish them success in their new enterprise.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

We are authorized to say that the report that a new school-book trust is being formed is entirely without foundation.

MR. A. H. SCRIBNER sails to-day (the 15th) for Europe, to complete arrangements with Mr. Stanley for the publication of the latter's books in this country.

MR. H. B. BURROWS, Vice-President and General Manager of the Burrows Brothers Co., of Cleveland, O., is in the city and will stop at the Hotel Brunswick for four or five weeks.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish early in March an édition de luxe (limited to 500 copies) of "The House of the Wolfings," an epic in prose and poetry by William Morris.

THE title of Talmage's forthcoming book will be "From Manger to Throne." The first chapters are already in the printer's hands, and the book may be expected in a short time.

BERNARD QUARITCH affords the lovers of rare books an opportunity to inspect what may be considered the most remarkable collection of literary treasures ever exhibited in this country. We advise those of our readers in or near New York not to miss the opportunity of paying Mr. Quaritch, Jr., a call at the Albemarle Hotel, New York, before the 17th inst.

PRICE, LEE & Co., New Haven, Conn., call attention to the fourth edition of their "Metal Trades Directory." It covers the New England States and New York City, and gives complete lists of hardware manufacturers and dealers, machinery manufacturers, engine-builders, boiler-makers, founders, plumbers, etc., etc., arranged alphabetically under firm-names and also under classified business.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION.

Nuttall's Standard Dictionary OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

Based on the labors of the most eminent Lexicographers. Comprising many thousands of new words which modern literature, science, and art have called into existence and common usage; with Pronunciations, Etymologies, Definitions, Appendices of Proper Names, and Valuable Illustrations in the text. Revised, extended, and improved throughout, by the Rev. JAMES WOOD. Strongly bound in cloth, $1.00; with Denison's Patent Index, $1.50, or, in half French morocco, cloth sides, indexed, $2.50.

Two Hundred and Fiftieth Thousand.

PREFATORY NOTE TO THE REVISED EDITION OF 1890.

Since the first issue of the new edition of this Dictionary in 1886, the work has naturally been subjected to a good deal of criticism, and a number of friendly suggestions have been offered in the way of correction and improvement. To these criticisms and suggestions the publishers have felt bound to pay the most respectful attention, and they have taken the earliest opportunity of having the book revised in the light of them. The work has, in consequence, once more undergone a thorough revision, the editor sparing no pains, and the publishers no expense, to have all errors removed, and to secure final correctness and completeness. In this revision the editor has gone over the whole Dictionary again, syllable by syllable, and word by word, and been especially careful to test the accuracy in each case of the pronunciation, the definitions, and the derivation. The definitions of the scientific terms have been specially overhauled, and some additions have been made to the list of these. In short, the whole revision has been done in such a way as will, it is hoped, further enhance the favor with which the public have already received this Dictionary, which stands to-day as the most modern Lexicon extant, and the model of a well-printed, trustworthy, and handy companion for brainworkers, professional and business men of all classes, as well as for home and school use.

NOTES IN SEASON.

JOHN IRELAND, 1197 Broadway, N. Y., has just issued a revised edition of that useful little volume, "What One Can Do with a Chafing-Dish."

GINN & Co. will publish in April a text-book on the "Elements of Structural and Systematic Botany," by Prof. D. H. Campbell, of the Indiana University.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. will publish immediately Prof. Wm. M. Hetherington's "History of the Westminster Divines," edited by Dr. Robert Williamson. The volume will be illustrated with notes and fac-similes of title-pages of the original editions of the Confession of Faith, the Catechisms, larger and shorter, and the Directory of Church Government and Ordination of Ministers.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish at once "To Europe on a Stretcher," an interesting account of an invalid's travels by Mrs. Clarkson Potter; "The Historical Christ the Moral Power of History," by the Rev. David H. Greer, D.D., the Rector of St. Bartholomew's Church, New York; and "Five Sermons" by Bishop Whipple of Minnesota.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. announce "Recollections of a Private," by Warren Lee Goss, the author of "Jed." Part of these recollections have already appeared in the Century Magazine, and like the author's book mentioned above, attracted considerable attention and interest. Mr. Goss has added much new material, making it a valuable record of the war as seen from the ranks.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON will publish shortly a new book by Prof. T. W. Hunt, of Princeton College, entitled "Studies in Literature and Style." It is the aim of these studies to state and illustrate the fundamental types of style, with primary reference to the needs of English literary students. The discussion is both philosophical and practical, developed in scholarly and yet popular form, and always in obedience to the high demands of literary art and taste.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish probably before the end of the month another volume by A. P. Russell, of Wilmington, O., the author of "A Club of One," to be entitled "In a Club Corner." It is expected to be fully as entertaining as its predecessor. Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin & Co. have also in preparation for Easter a new volume of poems by Lucy Larcom, entitled "Easter Gleams." The volume will contain twenty or more poems none of which have appeared in her other volumes.

HARPER & BROS. have in press "Two Years in the French West Indies," containing the literary results of a voyage by Lafcadio Hearn, the author of "Chita." The introductory chapter, entitled "A Midsummer Trip to the Tropics," consists of notes taken on a voyage of nearly three thousand miles, and the remainder of the book is devoted to sketches of life on the island of Martinique, describing the manners, customs, and characteristic types of the island. An appendix to the volume gives some Creole melodies. The book is copiously illustrated.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING CO. have just ready "Australian Poets, 1788-1888," being a selection of poems upon all subjects written in Australia and New Zealand during the first century of the British colonization, with brief notes on their authors and an introduction by Patchett Martin, edited by Douglas B. W. Sladen, of Melbourne, Australia; "Jack Gordon, Knight Errant, Gotham, 1883," by W. C. Hudson, author of "The Diamond Button" and "Whose Was It?" who has again written an intricate detective story; and "Star-Land," by Sir Robert S. Ball, based on notes and recollections of the lectures delivered to children at the Royal Institution of Great Britain in 1881 and 1887, which makes a readable book on astronomy for young people. They announce a new story by Judge Tourgee entitled "Pactolus Prime." The author deals with a new phase of the race problem, and incidentally strikes right and left at the pet follies of the time, and with the skill of the trained satirist touches a good many people's self-complacency, who perhaps have little thought of being hit.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Clark, Kate Elizabeth. The dominant seventh: a musical story. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. c. 2-164 p. D. hf. cl., 50 c.

The hero is an Italian and a great violinist. He makes the acquaintance of the McChesney family—wealthy, cultured people, passionately fond of music—through the accidental illness of the first violin, who is to take part in a quartet that is expected to be the gem of a concert the McChesneys are giving for charitable purposes. Signor Ferranti and Flora McChesney play together, the Italian exercising a weird power over the young girl—their duet being brought to a sudden and tragical ending. There is a love-story in which the Italian's true story is brought out; there are also many discussions of music, and an appreciation and knowledge of the best music shown by the author. The scene and characters are American.

Two stories. The New York Tribune says: "The first story is supposed to be told by a man who has been sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of his friend—the friend having really committed suicide, but under conditions which inevitably cast the strongest suspicion upon the witness. The second story is that of a vagabond who, dying in a hospital, leaves some autobiographic notes in which he argues that though in the world's eyes he has been a worthless scoundrel all his life, in reality he is blameless, inasmuch as Heredity and Environment are wholly accountable both for what he has been and what he has done."
- Hartmann, Franz, M.D. Magic white and black; or, the science of finite and infinite life; containing practical hints for students of occultism. 4th (Amer.) ed. rev. N. Y., J. W. Lovell Co., [1890.] 280+10 p. por. D. (Lovell's occult ser., no. 4.) pap., 50 c.

Machar, Agnes Maule, and Marquis, T: G. Stories of New France: being tales of adventure and heroism from the early history of Canada; in two series. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1890.] c. 12+313 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A collection of thrilling and romantic tales of adventure, endurance, and consecration in what may be called the "heroic age" of Canadian history. The roll of the heroes who lived in this "heroic age" includes such names as Champlain, Daulac, La Salle, Le Jeune, Brébeuf, Madeleine Verchère, and Marguerite de Roberval. Admirers of "Evangeline" will be especially interested to learn the true story of the "Acadian exiles" and are likely to be somewhat surprised at what they learn. Besides the text there is a chronology and list of Canadian governors, and Dr. George M. Grant, of Queen's University, furnishes a preface.

MacQueary, Rev. Howard. The evolution of man and Christianity. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. c. 3-410 p. D. cl., $1.75.

The author dates his book from Canton, O. He is a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church. He believes we are on the eve of a theological and ecclesiastical revolution, brought about by the three great forces, "physical science, biblical criticism, and the social movement." This means, he thinks, "a reconstruction of Christian theology." His book is written to help those who, like the writer, have already begun to reject the "miraculous features of popular Christianity." For the old truths he claims to have substituted in their place views that are "more rational, credible, and Scriptural."

Magennis, Margaret J. The foe of the household; or, scenes in temperance work. Bost., McDonald, Gill & Co., 1889. c. '88. 4-126 p. por. S. cl., 60 c.

Narratives and incidents gathered by the writer in a long experience as a reporter for the daily press. They all relate to the evils of intemperance, as do the sketches by J. B. Gough, Dr. Phillips Brooks, E. E. Hale, Alice Stone Blackwell, and others, which are interspersed. Mrs. Mary A. Livermore and Rev. Bishop Mallalieu each furnish an introduction.

Miss Breckenridge: a daughter of Dixie; by a Nashville pen. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1890. 203 p. D. pap., 50 c.

A love-story of the South told in unusually fervid language. "Miss Breckenridge" is an exquisitely beautiful creature with many accomplishments. She is loved by two men, and is finally won after many thrilling incidents by the least desirable of the two.

Montague, C: Howard. The Countess Muta: a novel. N. Y., Belford Co., [1890.] c. '89. 244 p. D. (The Belford American novel ser., no. 13.) pap., 50 c.

Lemuel Baxter, an American who has just drawn a fortune in a lottery, slips in the streets of London and injures his head. He is carried into an Eastside tavern, and upon partially recovering is placed in an upper room for the night. He is awakened by conversation, and discovers that two men are talking in the next room. He overhears a plot they concoct to steal a young dumb girl—the Countess Muta—and have her sent to Siberia. Baxter makes it his business to save her, calls on her guardian, who is an American and a mind-reader giving exhibitions in London, and tells him the story he has overheard. Muta's story is gradually unfolded and the mystery which surrounds her cleared away. Many exciting incidents are evolved in the course of the narrative.

Murphy, T., D.D. The Presbytery of the Log College; or, the cradle of the Presbyterian church in America. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1890.] c. '89. 2-526 p. por. and il. Q. cl., net, $2.

A book of special interest and value to every Presbyterian minister, and one that will find its way to the libraries of very many laymen. Beginning with William Tennent, Dr. Murphy gives a concise sketch of the founder of the Log College and his four sons, following this up with brief biographies of the other noted men of the time, and histories of their important work. The plan of the book is comprehensive yet concise, and covers the whole period of Presbyterian history for more than 200 years throughout the section of which the infant theological institution has always been the centre of interest. An appendix also gives a full account of the notable celebration in September last, including the addresses made on that historic occasion.

A fire in a hotel during the night and the ensuing excitement and confusion cause a strange misunderstanding in the identity of two men who are rescued insensibly and badly burnt. The one, George Heywood, a vagabond and a gambler, becomes rehabilitated in name and character—as he is supposed to be Jack Henley, who has been absent in Australia for five years, and has returned to New York to visit a cousin and aunt, his only relatives. As Jack Henley, the vagabond is nursed by the beautiful Sylvia Dene, who fails to discover in his disfigured face that he is not Jack Henley. Of course they love each other, and the vagabond George Heywood is given a chance to make a display of his so-called "honor" just as the real Jack Henley turns up as George Heywood.

"A cipher-book suitable for the use of anybody and everybody has long been demanded, but up to this time little effort has been made by the compilers to produce one which will meet the requirements of the business public. The design of the present work is to supply this want. . . . The cipher can be used in many ways and the manner of its use can be so changed from time to time that absolute secrecy can be secured."—Preface.

The Public School Music Course consists of a series of music readers in seven books, forming a complete course of instruction from primary to high-school grades. Six of the readers are here recorded; the seventh "Part song and chorus book—a high-school music reader," will be issued shortly. Each book, except the seventh, introduces appropriate studies in rudiments and reviews all that precedes. Each of the first four books contains a large number of carefully graded, interesting exercises, illustrative of the principles as they are introduced; each makes use of the time-names, breathing marks, music ladder, and all devices which tend to assist the teacher. The fifth and sixth books contain a great variety of solfeggios, part songs, anthems, hymn tunes, etc.

Whiting, C: E. The second music reader. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1890. c. '89. 112 p. il. D. (Public school music course.) bds., 25 c.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 22, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so 'ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL'S DILEMMA.

THE Post-Office Department at Washington is not yet clear in its mind whether or not to grant the new weekly journal, Chatter, the right to the use of the mails at second-class rates. At first, the Post-Office authorities ruled that as each issue of Chatter is an accident insurance policy for the current week, the journal was nothing but an advertisement sheet for the insurance company in question. When it was proved that the journal was in every sense a newspaper, with a bona fide subscription list, and that the insurance policy was but a feature, and of secondary importance, the authorities made the amusing discovery that the publisher, when filling out the blank attached to his application for second-class privileges, frankly stated that the paper, not having yet been issued, had no paid subscribers. It is hardly possible that the postal authorities were ignorant of the fact that the law specially authorizes a local postmaster, in cases where he is satisfied that all requirements have been met, to issue a temporary permit, which is afterwards confirmed or annulled by order of the Department at Washington after the papers have been examined. Such a permit was duly granted by Postmaster Van Cott, and directly Chatter was issued and circulated, subscriptions to the paper began to come in, and made good the publishers' claim. But the Post-Office authorities, it would appear from all reports, having made a mistake in the first instance, seem bound to stick to the second and purely technical point. The ruling is so obviously unjust, and if permitted to stand by default, would form so pernicious a precedent, that it is to be hoped that the publisher of Chatter will carry his appeal through to the last instance.

It seems to us that the publisher and proprietor of Book News, one of the most palpable violations of the "second-class" privileges on record, should be the last person to raise the question, "What constitutes a publication designed primarily to advertise the wares of a certain house?" with the publisher of a journal which in every line gives evidence of the fact that it is a "purveyor of news and literature," pure and simple. Or does Mr. John Wanamaker, the merchant, think he can convince an unprejudiced public that he, as the publisher of Book News, is not "in any way interested pecuniarily in any business or trade represented by the publication, either in the reading-matter or in the advertisements"? or that his magazine is not "considered as representing the business interest of a special house"?

THE HON. PHILETUS SAWYER, of Oshkosh, Wis., Chairman of the Senate Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads, on the 19th inst. offered a bill which provides that all mail matter now circulating as second-class matter under the name of "libraries," in the shape of paper-bound books or parts of books, shall hereafter, whether they be issued regularly or not, be charged for at third-class rates, or one cent for every two ounces.

THE "LIBRARY" PUBLISHERS' "COMBINE."

THE mountain has labored and brought forth not exactly the proverbial mouse, but certainly a very small materialization of its hopes. In other words, the rumored "Combine" of the "Library" publishers, contrary to expectation, has ended in talk without accomplishing more than a coalition of interests between the Lovells and George Munro. By this arrangement, the nature of which is "quite confidential," the Lovell's Library ceases to exist, being replaced by the Seaside Library, which is hereafter to be supplied only through the American News Company. The discount to the trade will be 30 per cent., making the prices for 10-cent numbers, 7 cents; for 20-cent numbers, 14 cents, and for 30-cent numbers, 21 cents. The new issues of the Seaside Library will be returnable from dealers, so that they may place standing orders for all numbers as published without risk or loss to themselves.

Further than this the movers in the proposed "Combine" have not been able to accomplish anything—not even an agreement as to uniform prices; so that as much cutting of prices, and as sharp competition in the "twelvemo" business may be looked for this year as ever. Indeed the prospects are that the struggle will be a lively one, with decided odds in favor of the Lovells, who have been able to reënforce their lines with the two libraries of the Worthington Company and some desirable additions from the lists of Estes & Lauriat and De Wolfe, Fiske & Co.; who are further strengthened by a wonderfully efficient distributing machinery, the good-will of George Munro to ease them in the competition with the cheap paper libraries; and lastly, who have the "first call" on the Pollard & Moss plates—that is, if these are not sold to the Lovells, it will be because they will be tied up in a lawsuit, and so be kept out of the market for a year or longer.

Quite a number in the trade seem to regret this turn in the affair. They had hoped that the plan proposed might be adopted, viz.: that all the publishers of the twelvemos should determine on a uniform price to every large buyer, be he bookseller or dry-goods man, the rate to be governed only by quantities; that jobbers were to receive the extra inducement of a three-cent rebate on quantities of 5000 or more, and were to be encouraged to handle all the local trade, including the dry-goods concerns. As matters stand now it will be "Greek meeting Greek."

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

PROGRESS OF THE COPYRIGHT BILL.

ON the 14th inst., the House Judiciary Committee took favorable action upon the International Copyright bill, and on the 15th, a substitute measure was reported to the House by Mr. Adams, of Illinois. This so-called substitute is in reality the bill as introduced into the House by Mr. W. C. P. Breckinridge and by Mr. Platt in the Senate, with certain modifications in form. As introduced, the bill simply specified the changes to be made in the existing statutes. The substitute gives in full the sections of the Revised Statutes as it is proposed to have them read. This change was made by the House Committee after consultation with Senator Platt, and it is believed the Senate Committee will agree to it. The committee's report, which has been drawn up by Mr. Adams, quotes the Henry Clay report, and the report in favor of International Copyright made by the Judiciary Committee of the last Congress, both in full, and also quotes largely from Washington Irving and from the memorials presented to the present Congress by American authors.

On the 18th, Representative Simonds, of Connecticut, from the Committee on Patents, reported a bill identical in text with the one introduced by Mr. Adams, with a brief report in which the committee favors this bill because: first, there is a strong presumption that authors, citizens, and aliens have a natural exclusive right to their intellectual productions; second, the present American practice represses American authorship; third, the works of fiction which a people read are a powerful means of education, and the present American practice tends to force the American people to read works of fiction which are un-American, weak, and often grossly immoral; fourth, the present American practice tends to the repression of the practical art of book-making in America.

The threatened antagonism between the Patents and Judiciary Committees in the House seems to have wholly died away, according to a despatch to the New York Post, and the two committees are acting now in entire harmony. The Judiciary Committee's bill and report will be printed at once, and the Patents Committee have adopted theirs so as to make it correspond therewith. There will be no minority report from either committee, though a few members have objections to urge which they will present on the floor in debate. The bill will be given a place high up on the calendar, and an effort made to set an early day for its consideration. This, it is believed, will not be difficult, as under the new rules a date may be set by a majority vote, whereas the old rules required two-thirds—a proportion very difficult to obtain in furtherance of such a measure.

During the past week two noteworthy reinforcements to the ranks of the supporters of the copyright cause are to be recorded in the American Newspaper Publishers' Association (already noted), and the Department of Superintendence of the National Educational Association. Each of these bodies passed unanimously a resolution in favor of the present efforts of the friends of copyright reform, and in each instance this action was taken after a detailed explanation of the provisions of the bill of Mr. R. U. Johnson, Secretary of the American Copyright League.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS ENDORSE INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

AT the meeting of the Department of Superintendence of the National Educational Association held in New York on the 19th inst., Mr. R. U. Johnson, of the American Copyright League, was invited to explain the present status of the copyright movement and the details of the pending bill. At the conclusion of his remarks the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That the members of the Department of Superintendence of the National Educational Association hereby record their cordial sympathy with American authors in the effort they are now making to obtain from Congress an international copyright law; and we cannot too strongly express our sense of the necessity of such a measure both as an obligation of justice and as a stimulus to American literature and to the spread of American ideas at home and abroad."

CARDINAL GIBBONS ON COPYRIGHT.

IN response to an inquiry whether he is in sympathy with the present efforts of his fellow-authors to obtain an international copyright law, Cardinal Gibbons has written the following letter:

Robert U. Johnson, Esq., Secretary American Copyright League:

MY DEAR SIR: I desire to say that I am in entire sympathy with those distinguished authors in the earnest efforts they are making to secure from Congress an international copyright law.

Intellectual labor is the highest and noblest occupation of man, and there is no work to the fruit of which a man has a higher claim than to the fruit of mental labor. Many authors have reason to complain in almost the words of the Gospel, "We have labored and others have entered into our labors."

It seems to me eminently just that adequate protection should be afforded to authors, so as to secure them against what is conceived to be a manifest violation of their rights.

I am, my dear sir, yours faithfully,

FEB. 15, 1890.

JAMES CARD. GIBBONS.

A COMING LITERARY FEAST.—Clerk—Going to remain long in this country? Guest (just arrived from steamer)—Ah, about a fortnight, I fancy. I just ran over to gather materials for a book I'm going to write on "America and the Americans."—Puck.

PROTECTION TO AUTHORS IN THE INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT UNION.

A CORRESPONDENT having called the attention of the London Athenæum to what appeared to him an enormous sale of pirated editions of the works of English authors, F. R. Daldy, the Secretary of the British Copyright Association, points out "to British authors and owners of copyright, that it rests with them to protect their own interests against the sale of pirated editions of their works in Italy, or in any other country that has become a party to the International Copyright Union. Under Article 2 of the Berne Convention they are entitled to the same rights which the law of any of the countries in the Union grants to natives. In Italy piracy is punishable by fine, not exceeding 5000 fr., and confiscation of all pirated copies or editions, together with the plates, if any, connected therewith; and the court also has the power of awarding damages to the author or his representatives. The steps necessary to insure this protection are to make good their title to the work by registering it at Stationers' Hall, and then to instruct their lawyer, Italian or English, to move the Italian courts to seize the copies and fine the vendors. Registration in any other country than the country of origin is now unnecessary."

PROFITABLE BOOKBUYING.

UNDER the above heading, the Evening Post on the 8th inst. gave as an instance that book-buying had by no means been exhausted as a means of reaping large profits, instances from the Johnson sale, in which some ten or twelve poems by Shelley were said to have been sold at prices ranging from $100 to $200 apiece. "All or nearly all of them," the writer goes on to say, "were bought by the agent of N. Q. Pope, a Brooklyn millionaire who came from Chicago. The prices he paid were not considered in any sense extravagant, for the books were first editions, and in London, first editions of Shelley command a high price. Mr. Pope paid some $5000 for the Daniell copy of Shakespeare in Lady Burdett-Coutts' library, and $16,000 for a single missal. The money-making part of his latest purchase is shown by the prior history of the Shelleys. Only a few years ago, the entire book, now divided into a dozen volumes, lay in a bookstore on Broadway, where E. F. Bonaventure saw it, and bought it for $4. He carried it to his own store, and offered it to a customer for $50, but the customer, seeing the four-dollar price marked on the volume, refused to give Bonaventure so large a profit. The latter then sent the book to Paris, and had it rebound in its present form, after which he sold the lot to a regular customer for $150. He explained at the time that he knew it was worth more, but was willing to let it go as a part of a large purchase."

In conclusion, the writer cites another remarkable adventure, calling attention to the sagacity and shrewdness (?) of the Broadway bookseller.

On the 15th, H. C. W., apparently an authority on the subject, writes to the Evening Post to correct a few inaccuracies in the article referred to. Referring to the story of the Daniell first folio of Shakespeare, H. C. W. says:

"The writer of that story said therein that the Daniell copy of the first folio of Shakespeare had come from the library of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts to that of a discriminating Brooklyn collector, N. Q. Pope, who paid $5000 for it. The truth is that Mr. Pope never bought the Daniell copy of the first folio, but he did buy Mr. Ellis' copy. There is excellent reason for believing that Lady Burdett-Coutts is still the owner of the famous first folio which once belonged to George Daniell.

"Again, it was said by the writer on 'Profitable Bookbuying,' that, at the Johnson library sale a fortnight ago, 'some ten or twelve Shelleys were sold at prices ranging from $100 to $200 apiece;' that these books once were parts of a single volume, which had been picked up for $4 by a New York bookseller, who sent it to Paris, where it was rebound in its present form; that the dealer had then sold the lot for $150; that these books finally came into the hands of Mr. Johnson, the Boston collector, and at the sale of his library 'all, or nearly all of them were sold to the agent of N. Q. Pope.' Mr. Pope did not buy the Shelleys. Furthermore, instead of 'ten or twelve poems' selling at $100 and upwards, there were only three that fetched so much. These were 'Queen Mab,' 'Laon and Cythna,' and 'Adonais;' and the statement that they were ever included in the collected volume which has been named is also fictitious. The 'Queen Mab' (1813) in the Johnson sale was among the earliest copies of the first edition, for it contained the title-page bearing the words 'Printed by P. B. Shelley,' which was a short time after publication cut out of the copies remaining unsold, because Shelley's friends feared he would be prosecuted. The book in this form is never found in the volume of collected poems. Moreover, the history of Mr. Johnson's copy of the poem has been traced to the day when it was sold separately and in the original boards to a customer of a well-known Broadway firm. 'Laon and Cythna' (1818) is also never found in this collection in its first form and with this the original title. Such was Mr. Johnson's copy, which fetched $110. Furthermore, the Johnson copy was bound, not in Paris, but by Zaehnesdorf, of London. Of the copies of 'Adonais' in the Johnson sale, a gentleman who is versed in the intricacies of first editions of Shelley says: 'The editions of Shelley's works were originally small, and had a very limited sale; and his publishers finally bunched together in one volume a number of the octavos, which had been published separately. In a few cases the first edition of "Adonais," with the margin cut down from quarto size, so as to bind in octavo, together with "Epipsychidion," a much rarer book, will be found included in the volumes. Such a copy of "Adonais" sold at the Johnson sale for $35, while the uncut copy in the original paper wrappers brought $215 at the same sale. Mr. Johnson did not have the "Epipsychidion" in his collection.' Equally valid reasons might be given for saying that the Johnson copy of 'Alastor,' which fetched $65, and the 'Cenci,' $32, were not in the made-up volume. There is also the authority of a reputable bookseller for the statement that the octavo 'Adonais' was recently sent to Paris in quarto, with the original paper covers, and was cut down to octavo by the binder through a misunderstanding of the owner's instructions. It is therefore necessary to say that all of Mr. Johnson's first Shelleys which might once have been 'bunched together' in the single volume that was sent by the New York dealer to Paris to be cut apart and rebound, were sold at very low prices indeed.

"The falsity of the statements concerning the Daniell Shakespeare and the Shelleys would seem to leave little room for faith in the story of the other bibliographical adventures of this book-seller."

GERMAN BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1889.

THE following table from the Börsenblatt, prepared by the Leipzig firm of J. C. Hinrichs, presents a view of the book production in Germany. It is well to remember, however, that these statistics present not only the output of books in the German Empire, but of Austria and Switzerland as well. In fact, all countries whose publishers are members of the Börsenverein are represented:

	1888.	1889.
Collected Works, History of Literature, Bibliography.....	430	482
Theology.....	1,623	1,582
Law, Politics, Statistics, etc.....	1,490	1,549
Medicine, Veterinary.....	1,108	1,248
Natural History, Chemistry, Pharmacy.	876	852
Philosophy.....	156	188
Education, German School-Books, etc..	1,973	2,111
Juvenile Works.....	494	591
Classical and Oriental Archæology, Mythology.....	588	644
Modern Languages, Old German Literature.....	543	591
History, Biography, Memoirs.....	842	892
Geography, Travel.....	505	534
Mathematics, Astronomy.....	195	228
Military, Hippology.....	427	525
Commerce and Manufactures.....	749	840
Building, Machines, Railways, Mining, etc.....	448	383
Forestry and Sport.....	117	109
Domestic Economy, Farming, Horticulture.....	429	430
Belles-Lettres.....	1,423	1,715
Fine Art, Shorthand.....	670	768
Folk-lore Almanacs.....	780	723
Freemasonry.....	23	22
Miscellaneous.....	753	558
Maps.....	374	421
Total.....	17,000	17,986

It is significant to notice that the book production in Germany has been steadily increasing, while that of America and England has been vacillating. Also that the increase is largely in the direction of the more solid branches of literature, as theology, law, medicine, and natural history.

THE BEAUTIES OF THE DISCOUNT SYSTEM.

THE Critic's "lounger" wanted to get an account book last week. The manufacturer's catalogue gave the price as $28 per dozen. "I didn't want," he says, "a dozen, but only one, and I supposed the price would be one-twelfth of $28, which is, approximately (I say it under correction), $2.33. If the price had been $2.50, I should not have been surprised, as a single article is usually charged for at a higher rate than when a number are bought. But instead of $2.50, or even $2.33, I found that all I had to pay was $2.33 less sixty per cent. = 94 cents, less 10 per cent. = 85 cents, less four per cent. = 82 cents. The sixty per cent. and ten per cent. were the 'discount to the trade,' and the four per cent. was a 'discount for cash.' So, instead of a receipted bill or memorandum saying simply, 'To 1 account-book, 82 cents,' a receipt was handed me for '1/12 dz. 844 @ 2800,' with all the discounts following—something calculated to puzzle a decipherer of cuneiform inscriptions. In figuring up the discounts, the dealer (as any one with a taste for vulgar fractions will see) had managed to 'shave' about one cent—probably to cover the time spent in computation; but as he had saved me at least $1.50, I did not call his attention to it. The general effect of the memorandum he handed me was that of a plumber's bill turned upside down—the figures growing fine by degrees and beautifully less, instead of dollar being heaped on penny's head."

[Now, if the "Lounger" had only mentioned that he was the son of a clergyman, who knows but what the generous shopkeeper might not have knocked off another "sixty and ten"?—ED. P. W.]

COMMUNICATIONS.

HOW STANLEY SECURES AMERICAN COPYRIGHT.

TORONTO, Feb. 6, 1890.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

SIR: Will you inform me, if possible, how H. W. Stanley secured copyright in the U. S. for his books "Through the Dark Continent" and "The Free Congo State"? Yours, etc.,

COPYRIGHT.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

PRINCE JEROME NAPOLEON is busily engaged in preparing his memoirs of the Second Empire.

HENRY HARLAND's new novel is entitled "Two Women or One? From the manuscripts of Doctor Benary."

JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS, of "Uncle Remus" fame, is to succeed the late Henry W. Grady as editor of the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution.

COL. J. ARMOY KNOX, of Texas Siftings, is writing a book to be entitled "The North Pole, and how I painted it."

"ALBERT ROSS" is the pseudonym of Linn Boyd Porter, of Cambridge, Mass., whose "Albatross" novels are published by G. W. Dillingham.—The Writer.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD's new novel, dealing with the experiences of a successful mechanic who tries many kinds of life and phases of thought, and who finally joins the Elsmere brotherhood, is ready for the publisher.

CHARLOTTE ADAMS is in Bloomingdale Asylum. She was a brilliant girl—was artist's model, actress, author, editor, and art critic. Some may recall her strangely confidential and vitriolic papers in Lippincott's.—[Philadelphia] Society.

AT the time of his death, a few weeks ago, Peter Henderson, the well-known seedsman, had just completed a new edition of his valuable "Handbook of Plants and General Horticulture." The preface which he wrote is dated in January last. This edition contains a great deal of new information, and will make still more useful a work which has already become a standard.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Rural New Yorker has passed into the hands of Messrs. Lawson Valentine and E. H. Libby.

Belford's Magazine for February contains an article entitled "A Tardy Recognition," which attacks the house of Harper & Brothers, and in giving an account of the origin of Harper's New Monthly Magazine prints on facing pages its cover and that of Bentley's Miscellany, drawn by Cruikshank, calling attention to their resemblances and differences.

La Revue Française, which was brought out last March, and suspended after the first number, has resumed publication. No. 2, dated February, 1890, is just out. It makes a beautiful appearance and offers an interesting table of contents. The Revue is published at 39 W. 14th Street, New York, at $4.00 a year; single numbers 35 cents. The publishers announce that the next and all future numbers will be illustrated.

A MOST praiseworthy movement is about to be set on foot by The Ladies' Home Journal, of Philadelphia. It proposes to give to any young girl of 16 years or over who will send to it, between now and January 1, 1891, the largest number of yearly subscribers to the Journal, a complete education at Vassar College or any other American college she may select. The education offered includes every branch of study, with every expense paid, the Journal agreeing to educate the girl irrespective of the time required or the expense involved. To this is also pinned a second offer which guarantees to any girl of 16 or over who will secure 1000 yearly subscribers before January 1, a full term of one year at Vassar or any other preferred college, with all expenses paid, thus making it possible for any number of young girls to receive free educations at the best colleges. Any girl can enter into the competition, and any such can be thoroughly posted by simply writing to The Ladies' Home Journal at 435 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

D. APPLETON & Co. have under way the second volume of Mme. Carette's memoirs of the Louis Napoleon period.

The Writer, P. O. box 1905, Bost., Mass., has in preparation a "Directory of American Writers, Editors, and Publishers."

WILBUR B. KETCHAM will publish in May a second edition of "Probation and Punishment, or, the future state of the wicked and the doctrine of a second probation," by S. M. Vernon.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION will exhibit in their library at Twenty-third Street and Fourth Avenue, New York, on Washington's Birthday, a collection of about 3000 books relating to the fine arts.

AN exhibition of Lalanne's etchings and drawings will be open daily until 6 P.M. at the gallery of Frederick Keppel & Co., 20 East 16th St. (Union Square), from the 15th of February till the 15th of March.

CHATTO & WINDUS have in press the first two volumes of Justin Huntly McCarthy's "History of the French Revolution." It is to be in four volumes, and will be published uniform with his father's "History of the Four Georges."

THE BELFORD COMPANY have purchased the manuscript of the novel "Broken Barriers," by Ardennes Jones-Foster, author of "Electric Bound." Mr. Foster is now engaged upon another novel entitled "David the Jew." It is for early publication.

BELLAMY'S "Looking Backward" passed 301,000 copies last month, and the demand is reported to have been over 1000 a day. It is estimated that of the foreign pirated editions, about 50,000 copies have been sold in England. France comes next, followed by Germany and Denmark.

THE CATHOLIC PUBLICATION SOCIETY CO. will soon publish in pamphlet form, "Who Was Bruno? a direct answer to a plain question, from the latest published documents," by Mr. John A. Mooney. It is the first book published in this country giving the Catholic side of the Bruno affair.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish at once "The Skipper in Arctic Seas," by Walter J. Clutterbuck, one of the authors of "Three in Norway," who now describes a voyage in the waters between Iceland, Greenland, and Spitzbergen; and a new volume in the Historic Town Series, treating of "Winchester," written by G. W. Kitchin, Dean of Winchester, who speaks with love of the picturesque traditions and anecdotes of that old English city.

THE EASTMAN DRY PLATE CO., Rochester, elsewhere calls attention to the Kodak camera, one of the later novelties in the steadily progressing art of photography. This camera is specially intended for amateurs. It consists of a small, oblong box no longer than an ordinary cigar-box which contains the prepared paper and the lens, covered by a revolving shutter, which is presented to the object to be photographed, and moved by a stud. The pictures taken are necessarily small, but said to be perfect little gems.

"GEYER'S REFERENCE DIRECTORY" for 1890 will be ready in April. All the trade knows the value of this directory of publishers and dealers in books, stationery, paper, toys, fancy goods, notions, pictures, picture-frames, etc., which the publisher spares no pains to render as all-embracing and correct as possible. With each name is given an estimated capital or credit rating whenever attainable. We who know how difficult it is to get material for such purposes can best appreciate Mr. Geyer's industry and energy, and urge the trade to encourage him with prompt orders.

PERSONAL NOTES.

GEO. J. COOMBS, late of 275 Fifth Avenue, may hereafter be found at the store of J. W. Bouton, 1152 Broadway. All books in continuation and unfilled orders will be attended to by Mr. Coombs, through Mr. J. W. Bouton.

MR. J. SHERWOOD SEYMOUR, who for a number of years was connected with the advertising department of Harper & Bros., has severed his connection with that firm to become the business manager of the Evening Post, succeeding Mr. Edward St. John, who has withdrawn in order that he may be able to give all his time to the growing business of Babyhood, which we are pleased to hear has been a success from the beginning. Both of these gentlemen have done good work in their former places and will no doubt acquit themselves creditably in their new and larger spheres. We add our congratulations and good wishes to those of their many friends in the book trade.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

THE NEW NOVEL, "SPEAKING OF ELLEN."115,000"Thou Shalt Not"

75,000*"His Private Character"

Sold in 5 Months.

In a recent interview Mr. Ross says: "Yes, I consider 'Ellen' the best novel I have written. I might even go so far as to say, it is the best I shall write. The conception of the character of the heroine is the highest that has ever entered my brain. Now that the proofs are in my hands it gives me the most intense pleasure to feel that I have succeeded in doing nearly all I sought.

WHAT IS SAID OF "THOU SHALT NOT."

"It is easy to write a book on these lines that people will read. It is difficult, indeed, to treat the subject, as the author has done, so that the impression shall be pure and wholesome."—REV. J. H. WARD, in the Harvard.

"When Albert Ross depicts vice, he does it with an artistic touch, but he never makes it attractive."—Boston Globe.

"Mr. Ross is a rival to Charles Reade. 'Thou Shalt Not' reminds us of 'Griffith Gaunt' in the strength of its plot."—Athenaeum.

"That there are such men in the world as Hector Greyburn cannot be denied. The world must be made better by the portrayal of his punishment."—Tribune.

"It is a moot question whether the best moral results are obtainable from the exhibition of the results of vice, but the new novel, 'Thou Shalt Not,' makes a resolute and, we think, successful attempt in that direction."—Independent.

G. W. DILLINGHAM, Publisher, 33 West 23d Street, New York.

The book trade are respectfully requested not to place their orders for illustrated editions of

until they have seen Porter & Coates' edition of that world-renowned work, for the following reasons:

- 1st. It is printed from entirely new stereotype plates.
- 2d. The photographs are from the famous house of Allinari, of Florence, and some of them were taken expressly for us.
- 3d. The photogravures are made by Messrs. A. W. Elson & Co., of Boston, who made all those in Houghton, Mifflin & Co.'s edition of the "Marble Faun," and they promise that they shall be the finest reproductions of the kind ever published in America.
- 4th. It is printed in the best manner and on the best laid paper made expressly for us, and in every way the work will be a superb specimen of American book manufacture.

The Following are Some of the Opinions of the Trade and Press:

"For the time that we have devoted to its examination, are well pleased with it."—ROBERT CLARKE & CO., Publishers and Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"You deserve well of the world till you die, and after, but the book trade is just as ungrateful as any republic, and although they may sling an occasional laurel wreath out your way, the silver buzzard and the golden eagle 'fleeeth not so fast nor so far.' There is but one Directory of the Book and Stationery Trade and that is Caspar's."—P. F. VAN EVEREN, New York.

"It is just splendid. The most complete book of the kind we have seen."—J. H. KURZENKNABE & SONS, Harrisburg, Pa.

"I am greatly pleased with your Directory. It is the best work of the kind ever issued and deserves a large sale."—NATURAL SCIENCE PUBLISHING CO., New York.

"It seems more complete than anything of the kind I have seen before."—J. B. MARTINDALE, Chicago.

"We like it very much, and we don't know but what it is the best thing of the kind we have ever seen."—P. R. McCARGO & CO., Boston.

"Am very grateful to you for the conscientious care and painstaking effort in preparing so valuable and so complete a work. Be kind enough to enter my name, and mail me all addenda sheets in future, and do not fail to notify me of any new project in this line you may engage in."—Geo. H. COLBY, Bookseller, Lancaster, N. H.

"We have looked it over with great interest and appreciate the fact that it will be of great value to us."—W. O. DAVIE & CO., Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"I think your book a most valuable one and believe it will be better appreciated as it becomes better known."—WILL H. LYONS, Newport, Ky.

"Even a cursory examination of this important directory will convince any one of the thorough manner in which it has been put together and of the value of the completed work. Mr. Caspar has produced a work which, if properly kept up from year to year, will be the standard."—The American Stationer, New York City.

"The Appendix to 'Caspar's Directory of the American Book, News, and Stationery Trades' is a most valuable compilation, exhaustive and complete. The information it contains is absolutely unique and not to be procured from any other source. Hence it is of the first importance to every one in the trades. It is admirably arranged; the references are simple, and being grouped under special heads, makes consultation a matter of little or no difficulty. Such a work is really a great trade text-book, from which the initiated can feel the pulse of the whole book-publishing world. It is a monument of careful, painstaking and accurate labor, and is as reliable as it is extensive. . . . The preparation of this useful volume must have been a work of immense labor and patience, and Mr. Caspar must be congratulated on the success which he has achieved. It is a manual for publishers, booksellers, newsdealers, stationers, and libraries, indispensable to them all."—The American Bookseller.

"The book is devoted to customs, habits, and love in the misty future, and for pure, genuine imagination most charmingly worked out, is unexcelled."—Boston Evening Transcript.

SIX TO ONE. By Edward Bellamy, author of "Looking Backward," etc. New and revised edition. 16mo, paper, 35 cents.

"Humor is not the only quality of this little gem of a story, but it is that for which the reader feels most grateful; it is so quaint, so odd, so indefinable, of a sort which is thoroughly individual and independent of opinion."—London Spectator.

WAUTERS, Chief Editor of the Mouvement Geographique, Brussels. With maps, 33 portraits and illustrations. Thick 12mo, cloth, $2.00.

A history of this ever-memorable expedition, and of the dramatic events that led up to it, together with the important geographical discoveries resulting from it.

Old-Country Life.

By S. BARING-GOULD, M.A., author of "Richard Cable," "The Gaverocks," etc. Fully illustrated. Crown 8vo, cloth, gilt top, $3.00.

Mr. Baring-Gould will be remembered as one who knew his countrymen, and drew them as they were. His novels contain bits of human history, studies of eccentric development, scenes from the comedy of unsophisticated life, and descriptions of the customs and beliefs prevalent in the localities he introduces. His books possess a reality, vitality, and strength which insure for them a place in the literature of the future as well as the present.

STANLEY'S OWN BOOK

By direct arrangement with Henry M. Stanley, securing to them all American rights, Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons will publish at an early day the first and only authentic story of the Emin Pasha Relief Expedition that will be published in this country; the only one that will be written by Mr. Stanley himself, or with his consent or authority; and the only one in which he will have any personal interest. Mr. Stanley took the precaution to pledge his companions in the outset to furnish nothing for publication on this subject; the pledge has been faithfully kept, and he has neither written nor authorized anything himself, beyond a few brief letters that have already been published. Remember that STANLEY'S OWN BOOK WILL BEAR ON THE TITLE-PAGE THE IMPRINT OF CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, and that he will write nothing more concerning his last expedition excepting what will appear in "SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE." The book will be in two volumes of about 500 pages each, well provided with maps, and amply illustrated from Mr. Stanley's own photographs and sketches. It will be sold only by subscription. Agents wanted everywhere.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CASSELL PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish shortly Mr. Stead's work, "The Pope and the New Era," being letters from the Vatican in 1889.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready "Maria," one of the classics of South American literature, by Jorge Isaacs, translated by Rollo Ogden, with an introduction by Thomas A. Janvier.

THE WORTHINGTON CO. will publish at once in their Banner Library "Afloat in the Forest, or, a voyage in the tree tops," by Captain Mayne Reid, with a life of the author by R. H. Stoddard.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish at once, in their series of translations of Balzac's works, "Sons of the Soil;" also Morris' "Tale of the House of the Wolfings," already noted in these columns.

THE D. LOTHROP COMPANY have just published Miss Barrows' unique book on eggs entitled "Facts and Fancies About Eggs;" F. Vinton Blake's story for young people, "The Dalzells of Daisydown;" and Miss Sparhawk's "Chronicle of Conquest," a text-book for all who are working for Indian rights.

WILBUR B. KETCHAM, Cooper Union, N. Y., will publish shortly "The Presbyterian Handbook for 1890," edited by Rev. Wm. P. White. It will contain a list of the Presbyterian clergy, together with other reliable matter of great interest to members of the Presbyterian Church.

C. T. DILLINGHAM will publish for the author, Hyland C. Kirk, a history of the 4th N. Y. Heavy Artillery, under the title of "Heavy Guns and Light." This work will contain a complete account of the regiment from its organization in 1861 to its muster out, September 26, 1865, with the names and record of every member, and will be fully illustrated with maps, portraits, battle scenes, etc. The graphic narrative and details of personal history will be found entertaining not only to members of the regiment and their friends, but also to the general reader.

MACMILLAN & CO. will publish at once a new edition of Mr. Wilfrid Ward's "William George Ward and the Oxford Movement," which will contain an interesting addition to the last chapter. The author applies the principles contained in his father's "Ideal of a Christian Church," and in the last four University sermons by J. H. Newman, including the one on "Wisdom Contrasted with Faith and Bigotry," to the fundamental problem of the modern agnostic controversy, and attempts to show that this controversy was in great measure anticipated by the Oxford School fifty years ago.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready "Thomas Jefferson's Views on Public Education," by John C. Henderson, who aims to give an idea of how one of the most distinguished of American statesmen regarded the value of public, unsectarian schools to the people of the United States, and of his patriotic labors to secure such public education; two new volumes in the Knickerbocker Nuggets series, entitled "The Boyhood and Youth of Goethe," embracing John Oxenford's translation of Books I to II of Goethe's "Autobiography" ("Dichtung und Wahrheit"); and a second edition of Dr. Burt G. Wilder's "Health Notes for Students," which has been revised and enlarged.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just issued a volume by Dr. Philip Schaff on "Literature and Poetry," covering studies in the English language, the poetry of the Bible, the Dies Iræ and the various translations of its majestic language, the Stabat Mater, the hymns of St. Bernard, Dante Alighieri and the Divina Commedia, and the University ancient and modern, all treated with the erudition and happy style characteristic of this indefatigable teacher, and rendered more valuable by a good, full index. The house has also ready "Emigration and Immigration," a study in social science, by Prof. Richmond M. Smith, of Columbia College, who endeavors to place in the clearest possible light the scientific justification and necessity for a change in our entire public policy in regard to his subject. The volume contains a copious bibliography, an explicit table of contents, and a good index.

An English story of the 17th century during the time of the famous Monmouth rebellion; the events relate to an inheritance that is for some years diverted from the rightful owners.

Bigelow, J: William Cullen Bryant. Bost. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. c. 6+355 p. por. D. (American men of letters, no. 11.) cl., $1.25.

Mr. Bigelow was for many years associated with Bryant in the editorship of the New York Evening Post. It seemed peculiarly fitting that he should prepare this volume for the American men of letters series. In his long career as poet and journalist, Bryant won for himself an exceptional place in the esteem and admiration of his countrymen. Mr. Bigelow, who knew him intimately, writes enthusiastically of his subject, doing full justice to his character as a man, and to his literary fame.

Dodge, Theodore Ayrault. Alexander: a history of the origin and growth of the art of war from the earliest times to the battle of Ipsus, B.C. 301, with a detailed account of the campaigns of the great Macedonian. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. 25+693 p., map, plans, il. por. O. (Great captains ser.) cl., $5.

The first volume of a series in which Col. Dodge proposes to treat the art of war in successive eras, as illustrated by the great military chieftains of the world. The basis of this history is the Anabasis of Alexander by Arrian of Nicomedeia, who lived in the second century. The early chapters, about the military art preceding Philip, come mainly from Herodotus, Thucydides, and Xenophon. To these authors and many modern ones who have written lives of Alexander embracing excellent military criticism Col. Dodge acknowledges his indebtedness. In his preface he remarks, "It is hard to say anything about Alexander that some one may not already have said. But a good deal contained in this volume in the way of comment is new, and the author does not know of a life of Alexander, which, by the use of such charts and maps as abound in the histories of our own Civil War, makes the perusal of his great conquests an easy task."

Fenn, G. M. The golden magnet; or, the treasure cave of the Incas. N. Y., Frank F. Lovell & Co., [1890.] c. '89. 3-223 p. il. S. (Leather-clad tales, no. 8.) pap., 25 c.

*Francillon, R. E. Romances of the law. Phil., Gebbie & Co., 1889. 340 p. 12°, cl., $1.

Hazard, M. C. Easter voices: a carol service for Easter; musical editor, J. W. Tufts. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., 1890. c. 16 p. O. (Pilgrim ser., no. 14.) pap., 5 c.

*Heimbürg, W., [pseud. for Bertha Behrens.] The pastor's daughter; from the German by Mrs. J. W. Davis. N. Y., Worthington Co., 1890. 320 p. il. and por. 12°, cl., $1.25; pap., 75 c.

Hossfeld, C., and Heinemann, N. New German reader: shining lights of modern Germany; 1st ser. N. Y., N. Y. School-Book Clearing-House, [1890.] 7+352 p. T. (Hossfeld's pocket manuals.) cl., 75 c.

A collection of letters of eminent Germans, with short biographical, literary, historical, and geographical notes.

Hudson, W. C., ["Barclay North," pseud.] Jack Gordon, Knight errant, Gotham, 1883. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1890.] c. 4+247 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., v. 1, no. 41.) cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

The events all spring from the dastardly actions of Cyril Renfrew, a popular actor, attached to a New York theatre. Using his fascinations upon the silly girls who hover around him to obtain from them compromising letters, he afterwards uses these letters for the purposes of blackmail. One day he is discovered dead in his room, apparently murdered. His desk is found full of love letters from his victims. A detective is sent from headquarters to work the case up; three people he finds have visited the actor the day of the murder, two women and a man. Around these three characters the interest clusters. The detective work is clever and "Jack Gordon" freshly drawn. By the author of "The diamond button."

The present volume treats only of the Atlantic coast; a second is preparing relating to the gulf coast, middle, sub-tropical, and north Florida. The first section of this volume is devoted to sketches of the several counties, with maps compiled from the best attainable authorities. In the second section travelling routes are described in general and in detail—hotel rates given, prices of carriages, boats, etc. There are some introductory matter, hints to travellers, etc., and a paragraph history of Florida.

Nuttall's standard dictionary of the English language. New ed. (250th), rev., enl., and improved by the Rev. J. A. Wood. N. Y., F. Warne & Co., 1890. 14+816p. D. cl., $1; with duplex index, $1.50; same, hf. mor., $2.50.

This edition, it is claimed, "has been thoroughly overhauled from A to Z and something like 1000 improvements made and new words inserted."

Potter, V. M. To Europe on a stretcher. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1890. c. 100 p. D. cl., $1.

Relates the experience of a well-known New York lady, Mrs. Clarkson N. Potter, in two trips to Europe, made practically on a stretcher. She was sent abroad by her physicians to certain baths to cure an illness of many years' standing. Her little sketch shows how much one may enjoy even as a helpless invalid. It also offers hope to the sufferer, as her health was benefited by both trips.

Robinson, F. W. A very strange family. N. Y., Frank F. Lovell & Co., [1890.] 2+192 p. D. (Lovell's international ser., no. 63.) pap., 30 c.

In line with other of the author's stories; deals with English middle-class life and characters. The "Darrells" are a strange family in many ways, their history including several imprudent marriages, thriftlessness and drunkenness in its male members, and other ignoble traits.

*St. John, Sir Spenser. Hayti; or, the Black Republic. New rev. ed., with a map. N. Y., Scribner & Welford, 1890. 8°, cl., $2.50.

Savage, M. J. The signs of the time. Bost., G. H. Ellis, 1889. c. 5-187 p. D. cl., $1.

Contents: Break-up of the old orthodoxy; The Roman church; Liberal orthodoxy; Unitarianism; Free religion and ethical culture; Scientific materialism; Ingersollism; Religious reaction; Mind cure; Spiritualism; Break-ups that mean advance; The new city of God.

Schaff, Philip, D.D. Literature and poetry. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 7+436 p. por. and il. O. cl., $3.

The essays which make up this volume treat of "The English language," "The poetry of the Bible," "The dies iræ," "St. Bernard as a hymnist," "The university, past, present, and future," "Dante Alighieri," and other interesting literary topics, revealing throughout the breadth of the author's learning, the acuteness of his critical faculty, and the popular character of his method and style.

Sharp, W. Children of to-morrow: a romance. N. Y., Frank F. Lovell & Co., [1890.] 2+312 p. D. (Lovell's international ser., no. 70.) pap., 30 c.

The author's title is taken from a German writer who said, "We who live more intensely and suffer more acutely than others are the children of to-morrow." The scene is laid in England. The characters are mostly Jews—"emancipated Jews," as the writer calls them—who have few of the characteristics of their people, but who refuse to marry with Christians. The story is an intense love-tale, with a dramatic ending.

Sladen, Douglas B. W., ed. Australian poets, 1788-1888; with brief notes and an introduction by Patchett Martin. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1890.] 44+612 p. D. cl., $2.

A selection of poems upon all subjects written in Australia and New Zealand during the first century of the British colonization; with brief notes upon their authors.

Smith, Richmond Mayo. Emigration and immigration: a study in social science. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 13+316 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The nature of the question and the phenomena to be observed in its discussion are first taken up, and then follow two chapters on the history of emigration and immigration. The relations of immigration to population are next considered, the effect of the former on the race composition of the American people, and the comparative strength of mixed and unmixed races. In chapter 5 the political effects of immigration are described and discussed, and remaining topics are the economic gain by immigration, the competition with American labor involved, its social effects, the assistance and protection given to immigrants, Chinese immigration, actual and possible restriction, and, finally, the question of principle. The volume is rich in statistics and has a copious bibliography. The author is professor of political economy in Columbia College.

*Spenser, Geoffrey. Tales from Spenser; chosen from the Faery Queene, by Sophia H. Maclehose. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 195 p. 12°, cl., $1.25.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 1, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE STATE AND THE PUBLISHING BUSINESS.

THE Assemblyman from Schoharie, N. Y., possibly to humor one of his constituents, has introduced in the New York Legislature, at the present session, a bill entitled "An Act to establish a Board of Commissioners to be known as the Text-Book Commission and to define its powers and duties." In other words, Mr. Coons, the Assemblyman in question, is ambitious to precipitate the State of New York into the school-book publishing business. The bill provides for the appointment by the Governor of three new officers to be called Text-Book Commissioners, whose tenure of office shall be three years, who shall be paid an annual salary of $2000 each and $500 for expenses. These Commissioners "shall publish or cause to be published in their discretion such text-books, when so designated, at the expense of the State, and shall furnish the same to the several districts of the State at 10 per cent. above the actual cost of printing the same." Exactly what is meant by the phrase "when so designated" in this provision is not apparent, since there is nothing else in the previous part of the bill in reference to the designation of text-books; but it is to be inferred that the purpose is to authorize the publication by the State Government of such text-books as may be lawfully selected for use in the common schools.

The bill further directs that "the books shall be delivered to the trustees of any school district upon the receipt of the County Treasurer showing that an amount sufficient to pay for all books ordered has been deposited with that officer." The sum of $300,000 is appropriated for the purpose of executing the provisions of the act.

As we have pointed out again and again, no measure can be so little defended as the proposition that a State shall undertake any function which can be performed as well or better by private enterprise. And this is the case peculiarly with the manufacture of text-books. No corporation can make better books than those now issued by any of the school-book publishing houses. That a State should be able to turn out cheaper books is simply preposterous.

It will be welcome news to importing booksellers as well as to librarians that the Treasury Department has consented to revoke another of the many vexatious regulations that attend the importation of books—namely, the one requiring that a separate preliminary oath be filed for different entries of books included in a single order. The Department has recognized that this requirement is onerous and not necessary for the safety of the revenue, and therefore authorizes the Collector "to dispense with the requirement of more than one preliminary oath for books or other articles included in a single order, and to accept in lieu thereof a certificate from the librarian to the effect that the books, etc., are covered by the preliminary oath filed with the entry first made under the order."

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

A WESTERN BRANCH OF THE AMERICAN COPYRIGHT LEAGUE.

COL. A. C. McCLURG, Franklin McVeagh, Mrs. Potter Palmer, and others, having issued an invitation to the citizens of Chicago and its vicinity interested in the question of an American copyright law to meet at Mrs. Palmer's residence, a large and enthusiastic assemblage met on the evening of February 25 to assist in the formation of a Western branch of the American Copyright League. Col. A. C. McClurg was elected President. The Vice-Presidents are Prof. Swing, Franklin MacVeagh, Joseph Kirkland, and Charles L. Hutchinson. Among the officers and Council of the League are Marshall Field, George A. Armour, E. G. Mason, Hobart C. Taylor, Reginald De Koven, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Wirt Dexter, Capt. Charles King, Mrs. Henrotin, and Mrs. Mary Hartwell Catherwood. After the organization, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That this meeting unanimously indorses the efforts of Congressman George E. Adams, of Chicago, toward securing the enactment of the Chace-Breckinridge International Copyright bill in the United States House of Representatives, and urges upon Congress the necessity for the immediate passage of said bill.

George Lathrop Parsons delivered an address on the subject of the benefits and necessity of international copyright.

ELECTRICIANS ENDORSE THE COPYRIGHT BILL.

At their last monthly meeting the Electric Club, representing four hundred members, electricians, patent attorneys, and others, on February 20, passed the following resolution in favor of international copyright:

Resolved, That the members of the Electric Club are in sympathy with the efforts of American authors to obtain from Congress a just recognition of the rights of intellectual property, and we hail with satisfaction the prospect of an early passage of the pending International Copyright Bill.

AN IMPORTANT CUSTOMS DECISION.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 13, 1890.

To the Collector of Customs, New York, N. Y.

SIR: The Department is in receipt of a letter from Hon. J. R. Hawley, U. S. Senate, dated the 9th instant, enclosing a letter from Rev. Jas. J. MacCook, Librarian of Trinity College, dated Hartford, Conn., the 6th instant, in which he complains of certain inconveniences attending the production of oaths for entries of books imported for said college by Mr. Gustav E. Stechert at your port, under the Department's instructions of June 8, 1889 (S. 9424), and asks that such instructions may be revoked or amended.

Mr. MacCook states that when books are ordered by the Library Committee it frequently occurs that, to obtain the same, Mr. Stechert has to send to different places in England, France, or Germany, that books included in the same order arrive at different times and by different vessels, and that under existing regulations he is required to file a separate oath for each entry.

As this requirement appears to be onerous and not necessary for the safety of the revenue, you are authorized to dispense with the requirement of more than one preliminary oath for books or other articles included in a single order, and to accept in lieu thereof a certificate from the librarian to the effect that the books, etc., are covered by the preliminary oath filed with the entry first made under the order.

Such certificates should be attested by the seal of the library, college, or other institutions for which the books are imported.

Respectfully yours,

GEO. C. TICHENOR, Ass't Sec.

BOOKSELLERS AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

As noted a week ago, the growth of this society is steadily increasing. Since the last annual meeting, when the one thousand limit was reached, from eight to fifteen members have been added at each of the monthly meetings of the Board of Trustees. This, taken with the fact that the loss of membership for non-payment of assessments and other causes has been very small—from one to eight each assessment—has made a steady growth, which has at last enabled the Association to pay a full $1000 on the death of each member. The first beneficiary to receive this amount was that of John J. McCarthy, followed by those of Samuel H. Molleson and Frank E. Brooks. When it is remembered that up to the present, $7.70 has been the limit per year to secure an insurance of $1000, the economy with which the Association is run becomes apparent. The epidemic which has visited the city in the last few months will raise the number of assessments this year, probably to nine; but even then the cost of carrying $1000 of insurance will be considerably less than that of regular insurance companies.

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees, held on the evening of Wednesday, February 19, the following members were elected: Donald B. Smith, No. 709 Broadway, New York City; George Wright, No. 709 Broadway, New York City; Henry Heininger, No. 310 Broadway, New York City; John Payne, No. 751 Broadway, New York City; Herman Schultz, No. 751 Broadway, New York City; Edmund J. Walsh, Nos. 56 and 58 Park Place, New York City; Louis A. Mitchell, No. 15 Centre St., New York City; Abram H. Meserole, No. 13 Astor Place, New York City; Wm. Unger, No. 310 Broadway, New York City; Henry C. Breher, No. 310 Broadway, New York City; George F. Duysters, No. 120 Broadway, New York City; W. S. Appleton, No. 17 E. 32d St., New York City; Henry Graff, No. 341 Adelphi St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

A SWINDLER OPERATING IN THE NAME OF THE NEW YORK NEWS CO.—A WARNING.

For some time the New York News Company has been in receipt of letters from widely-separated parts of the country, complaining that a stranger, who goes under various names, has visited the particular locality from which the letters hail, and by representing himself as an agent for the New York News Company, has managed to secure many subscriptions to current periodicals, magazines, and journals. As the persons from whom the stranger secures subscription money never receive the papers they expect, they write to inquire what is the trouble. The self-styled "agent" is said to be provided with subscription blanks and blank forms of receipt on which are printed the name of the New York News Company, with the address "346 Sixth Avenue." The stranger asks much less than the regular price of subscription for the various papers and periodicals he says he is acting as canvasser for, and as an extra inducement he is accustomed to offer premiums of oil paintings, photographs, etc., to be obtained by sending to 346 Sixth Avenue.

From the letters it appears that the man has worked various places in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, and Tennessee. It is his plan to go to a town, stay there a day or two, and get $25 worth or more of subscriptions, and then to disappear, perhaps making his appearance again next day at a village 100 miles distant. Occasionally it is reported that the swindler has coupled the name of the Union News Company with that of the New York News Company. Since February 1, news has been received that he has extended his swindling operations to New York City itself, and Mr. Rhoades intends to place the matter in the hands of the police, with good hopes of running down the fraud. The New York News Company, which, as is well known, does a wholesale business only, and employs no agents or canvassers of any kind, warns the public and the trade against all persons representing themselves as agents of the company.

THE GROLIER CLUB'S HOUSE-WARMING.

THE Grolier Club, on the evening of Feb. 19, held the first annual meeting since its occupancy of the handsome new building at 29 East Thirty-Second Street. The meeting was at the same time, the formal opening of the club-house. Almost all the members were present. The annual address was delivered by the President, William Loring Andrews, who thanked the Building and House Committee for presenting to the Association with such expedition and thoroughness so complete a work. "We have," he said, "advanced to our present position under the stimulus of poverty—we have now to combat, to only a moderate extent, it is true, the always demoralizing influences of comfort and luxury." "The creed of this Club," he continued, "if I understand its sentiments and motives, may be found embodied in those lines of Longfellow (so full of truth and force) on the old town of Nuremberg:

"Not thy Councils, not thy Kaisers win
The world's regard;
But thy painter Albert Dürer and Hans Sachs thy Cobbler Bard."

The Club elected as Councillors for the class of '93 Samuel P. Avery, Beverly Chew, Albert Gallup, J. Holme Maghee, Samuel W. Marvin, and to fill a vacancy in the class of '92, E. H. Bierstadt. S. W. Marvin read the Secretary's report, and Albert Gallup the Treasurer's. The latter report showed cash assets of $29,130.20. The new club-house and lot cost $53,674.05. The Publication Committee announced that the Club's next publication would be a "Biography of Horace Walpole," written by Austin Dobson. After the committees had reported, the Club elected its first honorary member, Prof. Andrew F. West, of Princeton College, who has been at work editing the Club's edition of Richard De Bury's "Philobiblon."

The sale of this work at auction at the meeting of the Club immediately following the regular business meeting, brought about some spirited bidding from the members. The auction sale was started with two copies of the Club's edition of William Matthews' "Modern Bookbinding Practically Considered," printed on vellum. The highest bidder had the choice of the two copies, and after a brisk contest, S. P. Avery got first choice for $50, and Beverley Chew took the other at $45. Then the "Philobiblon" was put up. It was a beautiful edition in sets of three volumes each, the first being in black letter with highly-ornamented initials rubricated, in Latin, the second being the English translation, and the third a commentary. It took the Club three years to get it up. The two vellum copies of the edition were warmly fought for, starting off at $100, that quickly ran up to $410, when it was captured by Beverley Chew for Mr. D. B. Fearing, of Newport. The fight for second choice was even more lively. Beginning at $150, the bidding jumped quickly to $350, and was warmly contested by J. O. Wright, J. H. Purdy, Junius S. Morgan, Jr., and E. B. Holden. After a struggle Mr. Wright and Mr. Purdy drew out, and Mr. Morgan fought for it with Mr. Holden, carrying the price up to $640. Mr. Holden finally bid $645, and the book was his. The library of the Club retained one copy of each of the above books printed, of which only three copies were printed on vellum.

After the sale the members adjourned to the "pot-room," where the opening, the sale, and the exhibition were celebrated around a punch-bowl.

A BOOKSELLER-DRAMATIST.

THE following excerpt from an article on the "Minor Stage" in a late number of the Boston Herald may be of interest to our readers because it has to do with a member of the book trade whose life has been passed in publishing and bookselling, including 27 years with Messrs. Lee & Shepard. He is now slowly recovering from a long and serious illness:

"If the average patron of the theatre were to be told that there existed a dramatic author who had written 79 plays, and that not a night passed during the colder months of the year but one or more of them were produced in one part or another of the United States before audiences manifesting all the outward signs of delight and appreciation, he would, probably, in his inability to name the gentleman or remember his works, arrogantly class the statement as an ambitious fiction, and probably express this opinion with a candor inversely proportioned to his sense of politeness. . . . The author of all others who has best succeeded in adapting his work to the demands of the amateur stage is the gentleman to whom allusion was made at the opening of this article. It seems strange that the author of 79 plays, all successful in the field for which they were written, some of them phenomenally so, should never have had a piece produced upon the regular stage. Yet the name of George M. Baker, which is, probably, more familiar to a larger number of citizens of this republic than that of any other dramatic author save Shakespeare, might readily fail to be recognized by theatre-goers. His most successful work sells at the rate 6000 copies annually, and has been selling at a constantly increasing rate for the past 18 years. It is played at least 500 times every season to the gratification and amusement of at least 50,000 people, a large proportion of whom rarely visit a regular theatre. Not far behind it in point of popularity come others, comedies, melodramas, and farces, ingeniously adapted to all possible needs of length, difficulty of distribution of characters, aggregating a total annual sale of over 60,000 copies of this writer's plays alone. Plays written for a similar purpose by other writers sell in great numbers, often for no earthly reason discoverable in themselves; but while Mr. Baker's plays can be criticised on a variety of grounds, their absolute and invariable fitness for the purpose for which they were written, their unerring appreciation of the taste they are designed to meet, and their invariable popularity can hardly be matched by any writer for the professional stage. The problem which a writer for this special public has to solve, while less exacting in many particulars than that which Mr. Bronson Howard habitually encounters, has special features which are calculated to appal the professional playwright. In writing for the theatre one is free, within certain limits, to employ such characters and in such proportion of sex as suits him. But the Shakespeare of the vestry is called upon to evolve, at times, a play of sufficient dramatic interest employing female or male characters only. It does not require long consideration to apprehend the difficulties of this task, which has, however, been performed by Mr. Baker with eminent success, if one may judge by the popularity of such pieces, no less than nine times. The demand for plays in which only girls take part is not easy to account for, and is still harder to supply, the number of possible narratives that can dispense with all assistance from the sterner sex being naturally small. From such demands, as from a permanent request for temperance plays, Grand Army dramas, and plays based upon the glorious principle of women's rights, it becomes apparent that the cultivation of dramatic art is often a secondary consideration to the promulgation of certain moral and patriotic ideas."

DECADENCE OF THE PSEUDONYM.

From Bok's "Literary Leaves."

THERE seems every reason to believe that the day of the pseudonym in literature has gone by. Authors of established reputation are in several cases discarding their pen-names, while the younger writers are for the most part using their own signatures. In fact, when one comes to look over the field, there is not a modern author of repute completely screened behind an assumed name. "The Duchess," up to within a short time, succeeded in keeping her identity veiled. She is, however, now writing under her own name of Margaret Hungerford. "J. S. of Dale" has entirely discarded that name, and all his books will hereafter be published under his own name. "Sydney Luska" appends his real name now to all his books. "Ouida" is writing her first article under her own signature of Louisa de la Ramee. Marion Harland, Ik Marvel, Mrs. Alexander, Mark Twain, Jenny June, Edna Lyall—all these are now becoming merely the shadow of the real names which they once so effectually screened from public knowledge. The reasons for this change of feelings are several: 1. Authors are realizing more and more that with two names they have two reputations to make, and, in these days of literary competition, it fills the hands of any ordinary man to succeed in making one. 2. Writers are daily becoming more convinced that the strength of one's personality in his work is an essential of success. 3. Publishers are more reluctant to place pseudonyms on the title-pages of their authors' books than they were fifteen years ago. And thus are our methods changing, in literature as well as in everything else.

DEMAND AND SUPPLY IN LITERATURE.

AT the meeting of the Goethe Club held at the Hotel Brunswick, New York, on February 24, Mr. Charles R. Miller, of the New York Times, and Vice-President of the Society, delivered the address of the evening on the subject "Demand and Supply in Literature."

Mr. Miller said that he had no intention of applying all the laws of trade to the literary calling, but only to make a study of the phenomena of exchange between the author and the reader, with a view to determining whether any of the laws of demand and supply were of force and effect in that field.

He considered at some length the enormous and well-nigh insatiable demand for trashy novels, or what he called literature for immediate consumption. This problem he thought one of the most profoundly interesting of any his theme could suggest—why the many bought bad books when good books were just as cheap. No man or woman would buy unwholesome provisions when wholesome provisions might be had or the same money; and no farmer, mechanic, or artisan would buy imperfect tools when perfect ones cost no more.

The influence of this enormous demand for reading-matter that served only to amuse idle minds was felt no less strongly by the periodical and newspaper press than in the field of literature proper. The magazines, he said, had wonderfully improved the art of illustration, but had made no similar progress in their literary quality. The reviews had been popularized so rapidly that at present they pushed the newspapers a hard race in the business of supplying reading-matter destined only for immediate consumption.

Mr. Miller then considered how men of letters might profit by attentive study of the literary market with a view of finding out what the public wanted, in order that its wants might be supplied by the authors. He pointed out the success that has been attained by writers who have treated social problems with marked ability, by those who have successfully appealed to the interest of mankind in religious matters, and by some who have turned aside from one field in which they met with small success to attain their reward in some other direction.

But he was confident that an attentive study of the laws of demand and supply in literature would prevent any writer capable of good work from attempting to supply the demand for worthless trash. In that field there was neither honor nor profit. As he read the literary signs of the times, they showed a clear tendency away from this kind of writing and a disposition among young, studious men of letters in America to set up a high standard, and faithfully to observe it, to satisfy at least their own consciences and give the public the best that was in them.

He was convinced that the imaginative writers of America at the present time surpassed those of England both in performance and in promise, and he dissented altogether from the view of those despairing mortals who foresee the extinction of literature because this is an age of materialism and newspapers.

THE LARGEST BOOK EVER MADE.

THE largest book that has ever been made will be shortly sent to Albany and presented to the Legislature. It is the petition of the voters of this city for the Ballot Reform bill introduced in the Senate by Charles T. Saxton. The book will have over 40,000 names when completed and be the largest petition that has ever been gotten up or presented to a legislative body. . . . The book will have about 6000 pages, which are over two feet square, and will be over four feet in thickness. It will weigh 1000 pounds and will take half a dozen men to carry it. To bind this book is a task that has greatly worried the man who took the contract to do it.—N. Y. Tribune.

A STORY ABOUT THE ELDER DUMAS. — The late Frank Saltus used to tell the following story about the elder Dumas: When the younger Dumas' play, "La Dame aux Camellias," was to be produced, he invited his friends. The old man pooh-poohed! at the idea, but he went. After the first act he remarked, "So-so; so-so," in a good-naturedly egotistical way; and at the end of the second, "Well, well!" At the end of the third act, "I helped him write it!" At the final curtain, "By St. Louis! I wrote it myself!"—Chatter.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

IN a letter to Mr. E. Marston, of Sampson Low & Co., Mr. Stanley writes that he expects to get his new book ready for publication in May.

FRANK SALTUS' book of poems will be out in a month. There will be 1000 copies printed, and no more. "It will astonish the Dryasdusts, and 400 of the natives," says Chatter. "The poems cover time and space, from Carthage and Babylon down to Third Avenue, and from before Christ to last June."

A SENSATIONAL rumor is afloat concerning Count Zubof, the author of "Viera," a novel published last December by T. Y. Crowell & Co. It is alleged that the Count is not a Zubof, but plain Mr. Lippmann, and many other things that must be disagreeable news to his many admirers in Boston literary circles.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

AN interesting article by Lucy C. Little, entitled "Literary England," will be found in the March number of Belford's Magazine.

UNDER a recent decision of the Post-Office Department, "a premium list cannot be admitted as a supplement to a publication when the same is mailed as second-class matter."

MR. WHITTIER, when he sent his poem, "The Captain's Well," to the Ledger, left the amount of the remuneration to the publishers. They sent him $1000. In acknowledging receipt of the check, the poet said it enabled him to give more than he expected to certain charitable enterprises that were near his heart.

THE FRENCH EVANGELICAL PUBLISHING SOCIETY, of Boston, announce a paper to be called Le Citoyen Franco-Américain. It will be published weekly and in both French and English, and will discuss the questions affecting the French Canadian nationality and the relations of this population with our American civilization.

AMONG the pleasant features of the current number of Wide Awake are the opening chapters of "Bony and Ban," a new serial by Mary Hartwell Catherwood; "A Rabbit Round-up," by Joaquin Miller; another of Jessie Benton Fremont's "Will and the Way Stories" entitled "A Picnic Near the Equator;" and an account of the "Beautiful Emily Marshall," by Frances A. Humphrey, illustrated by a portrait.

The Book Lamp is the title of a bright little monthly published by the Stone & Locke Book and Stationery Co., of Denver, Col. It is gotten up in the size and general style of our WEEKLY, and gives in eight pages a list of the new books, and literary gossip generally. The object of the publishers is "to stimulate about them the interest in books and to turn the attention of buyers recently from the East to Denver as a point not only of supply but on the qui vive to meet their wants." We commend this line of action to all local booksellers. Those who haven't the time to devote to literary work will find The Literary News, published from this office, with dealer's imprints, a live, attractive, and inexpensive tool.

TICKNOR & Co., Boston, to meet the demand made upon them for a much greater variety and number of illustrations in their American Architect, have made arrangements to issue in addition to their regular and imperial editions a greatly enlarged and more expensive issue, called the International edition. This will be one of the most artistic as well as the most costly periodicals published anywhere. It will illustrate and describe all the most important American and foreign architectural work, including the new national and public buildings, residences, monuments, and churches of England and the Continent, and also the choicest ancient and mediæval structures, abbeys, palaces, castles, temples, etc. Several hundred large pictures will also be given each year of American buildings, both those of historic and artistic interest and those of recent or projected construction, exemplifying the latest phases of constructive art. These illustrations will be drawn from all sections, from St. Augustine to Tacoma, and from San Diego to Eastport. Messrs. Ticknor & Co. have just issued an exquisite photogravure (upon Japan paper) of Alex. H. Haig's "At the Fountain of St. George," an etching which in its original form sold for $125. This beautiful reproduction is given as a premium to subscribers to the International and Imperial editions of The American Architect. Others can buy it for $3.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CLEVELAND, O. — P. M. Kramer, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

FLINT, MICH. — Joseph Taylor & Brother, booksellers and stationers, have sold out.

GRUNDY CENTRE, IA. — W. W. Light, bookseller, has taken into partnership Mr. La Doge. The firm is known as Light & La Doge.

JERSEY CITY, N. J. — B. Scarboro, bookseller, has made an assignment. A meeting of his creditors will be held next week at the rooms of the Stationers' Board of Trade.

NEW YORK CITY. — At the last meeting of the creditors of Daniel Slote & Co., the committee submitted a report from which it appears that the total liabilities amount to $95,119.72 and the assets to $42,001.16. The majority of the creditors present favored the acceptance of the proposition of the firm to settle at 30 cents on the dollar on time. The Saugerties Bank objected strongly.

NEW YORK CITY. — The committee of the creditors of J. B. Sheffield & Son and the Saugerties Blank-Book Co. recommend the formation of a new corporation. 1. The formation of a new corporation with a capital stock of $875,000 — $675,000 of which to be preferred, and upon which there shall be declared from the first net receipts of the company a dividend not to exceed 5 per cent. per annum, and $200,000 of common stock, upon which no dividends shall be declared until the second mortgage bonds, hereafter provided for, are paid, and then to be paid only at the option of the trustees. That the new corporation shall execute upon all the real estate and machinery owned by the two corporations a second mortgage bond, payable in five years, and to draw interest at 5 per cent. per annum. That the said second mortgage bonds and the preferred stock be used in the liquidation of the indebtedness of the two corporations as follows: That each creditor shall receive 25 per cent. of his debt in second mortgage bonds, and 75 per cent. of the same in preferred stock, and all fractions of $100, or sums less than $100, shall be paid in cash at 70 cents on the dollar. Mr. Sheffield is confident that the second mortgage bonds can be paid off in cash during the next two or three years by reducing the merchandise account of $500,000 to $350,000 or $400,000 in connection with the profits. The committee propose that Mr. Sheffield shall have an opportunity of regaining the property, which has been held in the family for over fifty years, by delivering to him the $200,000 of common stock upon the cancellation of the second mortgage bonds of $200,000. The alternative is the closing out of the business under the present receivers. One-half of the 304 creditors have already consented to the proposition.

QUINCY, ILL.—The Dayton Book and Paper Company have leased the Powers block, and will occupy their new quarters June 1,

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

ESTES & LAURIAT have just issued a new edition of their popular book, "Social Customs."

THE BOSTON BOOK COMPANY have just ready "Federal Practice," by Roger Foster, of the New York Bar and Lecturer at Yale College. It is a treatise on pleading and practice in equity in the courts of the United States, with chapters on jurisdiction of the Federal courts, removal of causes from State to Federal courts, etc.

SAMPSON LOW & Co. have in press a volume entitled "Oliver Cromwell, the Protector: an appreciation based on contemporary evidence," by Mr. Reginald Palgrave, the Clerk of the House of Commons. It will be founded to some extent on the articles Mr. Palgrave contributed to the Historical Review, but will be to all intents and purposes a new book.

THE HISTORICAL PRINTING CLUB, 97 Clark Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., invites subscriptions to the following historical works edited by Worthington C. Ford: "Trade Between Great Britain and the United States," a "suppressed" report made by the Privy Council to the King in 1791; "Letters of Joseph Jones, 1777-1778," a member of the Continental Congress from Virginia; "Washington as an Employer and Importer of Labor;" "The Spurious Letters Attributed to Washington;" and "The Duché-Washington Letters," containing the original of Parson Duché's letter to Gen. Washington urging him to betray the Continental cause and negotiate for peace at the head of his army. These pamphlets are uniform small quarto, and the edition is limited in the case of the first two to 250, of the last three to 500 copies.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS, in pursuance of their plan of providing for the present generation of Americans authoritative and carefully edited texts of the writings of the "Fathers of the Republic," have in preparation an edition of the "Writings of John Jay," which will be issued in four volumes, uniform with their handsome editions of the Works of Hamilton, Franklin, and Washington. The writings of Chief-Justice Jay (which include a very large proportion of important material heretofore unpublished) are being prepared for the press by Professor Henry P. Johnston, of the College of New York, with all the essential assistance of the present John Jay. This set will contain, in addition to the correspondence and decisions of Jay, a selection of the more important of the letters from his contemporaries, and will therefore make a very complete presentation of the issues and opinions of the time. This work will be followed by the publication, in the same style, probably in nine volumes, of the "Writings of Jefferson." Of both these sets, as of those already published, but limited editions will be issued, printed from type, and no electrotpe plate will be made.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

RECENT BOOKS.

EMIGRATION AND IMMIGRATION.

A Study in Social Science. By Prof. RICHMOND M. SMITH, of Columbia College. 12mo, $1.50.

CONTENTS: Introduction; The History of Emigration; History of Immigration; Immigration and Population; Political Effects of Immigration; The Economic Gain by Immigration; Competition with American Labor; Social Effects of Immigration; Assisted Emigration and Immigration; Protecting the Emigrant; Chinese Immigration; Legislative Restriction of Immigration; The Question of Principle and of Method.

The comprehensive scope of Professor Smith's book is indicated in the foregoing summary of its contents. It is a popular examination of one of the most urgent of present-day problems from historical, statistical, and economic points of view, the information being full and exact, and the author's style being a model of terseness and clearness.

Literature and Poetry.

By PHILIP SCHAFF, D.D. 8vo, $3.00.

The essays which make up this volume treat of "The English Language," "The Poetry of the Bible," "The Dies Iræ," "St. Bernard as a Hymnist," "The University—Past, Present, and Future," "Dante Alighieri," and many other interesting literary topics, revealing throughout the breadth of the author's learning, the acuteness of his critical faculty, and the popular character of his method and style.

The Religious Aspect of Evolution.

By JAMES MCCOSH, D.D., LL.D. Crown 8vo, $1.00.

The author's belief in evolution is well known, and his purpose in this book is to show that the theory of evolution is not inconsistent with religion.

"One of the best epitomes of the relation of the Creator to his earth in the process of creation that has been written."—Hartford Courant.

HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES.

By HENRY ADAMS. Vols. I. and II.: The First Administration of Thomas Jefferson. $4.00.
Vols. III. and IV.: The Second Administration of Thomas Jefferson. $4.00.

"In the third and fourth volumes the admirable qualities become more and more apparent. Prominent among these is the remarkable combination of condensation with interest and vivacity. Mr. Adams' thorough and captivating work is full of nervous life. We should be inclined to call this the best book which has yet been written upon American political history. In point of literary execution Mr. Adams is easily the best of our political historians."—N. Y. Times.

Down the Islands.

A Voyage to the Caribbees. By WILLIAM AGNEW PATON. Beautifully illustrated. New and cheaper edition. Square 8vo, $2.50.

"An exceedingly entertaining book of travels. Mr. Paton relates what he has seen in the Windward Islands, from St. Kitts to Trinidad, and with this he interweaves a vast amount of official and historical information. The story is highly romantic."—Boston Beacon.

Music in America.

By Dr. FRÉDÉRIC LOUIS RITTER, Professor of Music in Vassar College. New edition, revised and enlarged. 12mo, $2.00.

In this new edition of his popular book, Dr. Ritter has incorporated about one hundred pages of fresh matter, bringing the history of the opera and concert stage in all the leading American cities down to the present time.

Will Publish March 10th:

Sons of the Soil.

By HONORE DE BALZAC. Translated by Katharine Prescott Wormeley. 12mo, bound in half russia, $1.50.

This volume of Balzac, the fifteenth in our series, has a timely interest from the prominence of the subject before the public. This is "Les Paysans," which, rendered in English, is "Sons of the Soil." It is a story of the land question in France, and appeals to that sense of the inequality of conditions as illustrated by the tenure of this sort of property, which is excited by writers on the same subject in this country to-day. The motto of the first chapter aptly suggests the trend of this powerful story: "Whoso land hath, contention hath."

The House of the Wolfings.

A Tale of the House of the Wolfings and all the Kindreds of the Mark. Written in Prose and in Verse by WILLIAM MORRIS, author of "The Earthly Paradise." Edition de Luxe. Limited to 500 copies. Bound in antique style, crown 8vo, $3.00.

This is one of those rare creations of genius which reproduce the life and manners of a remote past and of peoples of a grand kind that civilization cannot assimilate. They live in the stories of their deeds, and whether these are recorded in veritable sagas, or are told by some writer of an alien race and of later times, their power over the mind is due to their adequate expression of the thoughts, experiences, and emotions of a by-gone people. And while the modern narrator lacks the control over the feelings which an ancient chronicler exerts, he may, by the exercise of his imagination and the charm of his literary art, give a peculiar attractiveness to his work. This is what William Morris has done in "The House of the Wolfings," which is especially remarkable for its essentially poetic character, although it is written in both prose and poetry. It is this vital element of power, underlying the form of composition, which gives the book its hold on critical appreciation.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE FRANK F. LOVELL Co. will publish shortly Ouida's new novel, "Position."

D. APPLETON & Co. will not publish the second volume of Mme. Carette's memoirs of the Louis Napoleon period. The announcement in our columns was an error.

THE annual Spring Trade Sale will be held at the rooms of Geo. A. Leavitt & Co. during the month of April. Invoices or lists of books for this sale should be sent at once.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have in preparation Heinrich von Sybel's "History of the Founding of the German Empire by William I.," translated by Prof. Perrin, formerly of Göttingen and now of Boston University.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. announce for early publication a large work on "Indigenous Flowers of the Hawaiian Islands," with descriptions by Mrs. Francis Sinclair, and forty-four plates painted in water-colors.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS will publish at once Guy de Maupassant's powerful story, "Pierre and Jean," with a preface by the author. It has been translated by Hugh Craig, and illustrated from designs by Ernest Duez and Albert Lynch. It will be issued uniform in style with their Daudet Series.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD have just ready "Shakespeare's Sonnets," edited with notes and introduction by Thomas Tyler, illustrated with portraits of William Herbert, Earl of Pembroke, of his mother, Mary, Countess of Pembroke, and of Mrs. Mary Fitton; "The Marriage of the Bourbons," by Captain, the Hon. D. Bingham, who has made a special study of the dynastic annals of France, illustrated; also "Italian Characters in the Epoch of Unification," by the Countess Martinengo Cesaresco, containing lives of the patriots Ugo Bassi, the Cairolis, Daniel Manin, Constance d'Azeglio, and others.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS have just ready a superb edition of the Oxford Parallel Bibles, containing the authorized and revised versions in parallel columns, printed in minion type on "Oxford" India paper, with 12 maps and index and bound in turkey and levant morocco. It is 9 1/4 x 6 3/4 and only an inch in thickness. They have also just ready a long primer edition of the revised version of the Book of Psalms; the "Finger Prayer-Book," a unique edition of the Church of England Prayer Book one inch in breadth, three and a half inches in length, and one-third of an inch in thickness; also, "Robertson of Irvine—Poet-Preacher," a life of Dr. William Bruce Robertson, the famous Scotch divine, by Arthur Guthrie.

A. KNOFLACH, the author of "German Simplified," "Spanish Simplified," etc., will publish this week, through G. E. Stechert; "Sound English: a language for the world." This is not a new Volapük full of difficulties of inflection, gender, case, accent, etc., more difficult to learn than any known tongue, but a treatment of the English language which Jacob Grimm, the great German philologist, says "may with full propriety be called a world-language." The English language has confounded all the laws of sound, but owing to its highly intellectual and wonderfully happy structure its whimsical orthography has not prevented its being universally accepted. The sounds of the English language Mr. Knoflach aims to teach students of every land and race by an entirely new and original system, by which he expresses the thirty-nine sounds of the English language without inventing a single new type, and without using any vowel combinations, or diacritical marks. He also avoids accent marks by symbolically designating the accent in every word. Mr. Knoflach claims his method is so simple that any foreigner of intelligence can master a correct pronunciation in three or four weeks, and learn enough words for all the ordinary purposes of life. Since English is already spoken by more civilized people than any other language, it seems a very wise idea to make all people speak English instead of making all English-speaking people struggle with a new world language that may prove a failure.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

At Paris in the year 1832 the story begins; it is one of love and intrigue throughout. There is a secret marriage through which Henri de Laferrière aims to ruin the life of Mdle. de Rauville, because he hates his brother the Marquis de Laferrière, and knows that the Marquis loves Mdle. de Rauville. Believing Henri dead, Mdle. de Rauville, to please her mother, marries the Marquis, and on her second marriage night, her first husband reappears. The heroine's career to the end is surrounded by mystery and intrigue. She is the victim of falsehood and deceit and unmerited hatred. Through the many divergences of the story, the reader obtains glimpses of the revolutions of the period, and street fights of the barricades, is taken to the most squalid quarters of Paris, and into lonely, deserted houses, and is treated to many exciting and novel episodes. By the author of "A terrible legacy."

In this volume the author has grouped together the history of what are commonly termed the silver and centennial states, including also the partially intervening territory of Wyoming, which, with Utah and southern Idaho, whose annals are given in other volumes, form the central division of our Pacific coast domain, extending eastward from California to the limits of the field occupied by this series. The region described is the most romantic thus far touched upon, being full of natural wonders, with a climate and configuration, a mountain, lake, and river system, a fauna and flora, a geology and mineralogy, all of them peculiar and distinct. The most interesting portion of the volume naturally is the account of the discovery and development of the mineral resources of this section, in particular the Comstock lode, the yield of which has reached fabulous figures. In preparing the material for this volume the author has consulted in addition to the printed books and periodicals and public documents, a large number of valuable manuscripts furnished by the actors in the scenes which they describe. As usual a full list of authorities consulted, and a good index is included.

Opening in a moonshiner's camp, in the wildest mountains of North Carolina, the story shifts to New York, showing various phases of the great city, in the saloon, the clubs, and the slums. A beautiful octoroon is a prominent actor in these scenes—her story being sad and tragical. "Juny" is a waif found in the moonshiner's camp. The mystery of her birth remains a mystery through many chapters.

With the sickening, repulsive realism of Zola, Mr. Fawcett depicts the life of Cora Strang, a poor and friendless sewing-girl, whose home is in one of the meanest tenements of New York City. Her degraded associates and her squalid surroundings and the temptations which assail her on all sides are powerfully depicted. Her miserable career, ending in her ruin and subsequent death by violence in the streets, carries its own moral.

Gerard, Dorothea. Lady Baby: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1890. 3-378 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 667.) pap., 45 c.

A railroad accident makes Laurence Carbury the unexpected inmate of Kippendale House, the home of Lord Kippendale, a Scotch Earl, and his family, and fate connects him with the fortunes of the family. "Lady Baby" is the youngest member of the family, and is a pretty, bright young creature, just fresh from her governess. Her love-tale is the central motive. Its course is interfered with for a short time by a scheming London girl in search of a husband. Scenes from the hunting field, and outdoor country life of the Scotch border abound.

Goethe, J. W. v. The boyhood and youth of Goethe: being books I to II of the Autobiography; from the German by J. Oxenford. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, [1890.] 2 v. 4+401; 4+401 p. T. (Knickerbocker nuggets.) cl., $2.

Graybill, J. M. In time of peace prepare for war; or, tariff and other talks. Leavenworth, Kan., G. A. Spooner, 1889. c. '89. 55 p. D. pap., 25 c.

The author advocates the continuance of a protective tariff, and discusses the various objections made to it, his aim being to show "the importance of preparing now to defend the American tariff system against the attacks which the Democracy will make upon it in 1890 and 1892." Chapters also on political clubs, oratory an engine of free government, the problem of prison labor, single liability of corporations, etc.

Habberton, J. Couldn't say no. N. Y., Belford Co., [1890.] c. '89. 3-229 p. D. (Household lib., v. 4., no. 5.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The author of "Helen's babies" paints in a graphic manner the downward career of a young man, born to wealth and position, who is too weak to deny himself anything. The scene opens in New York City, the hero being introduced at an evening reception just upon his return from a European tour. His temptations come chiefly in the form of women, the scenes illustrating his degeneracy and final ruin being taken from real life.

Haferkorn, H. E., and Heise, Paul, comps. Handy lists of technical literature: a reference catalogue of books printed in English from 1880 to 1888 inclusive. Pt. 2: Military and naval science; navigation, rowing, sailing, yachting; boat, ship and yacht building; ammunition, arms, tactics, and war; together with a supplementary list of non-technical books, illustrating soldier and sailor life, battles, etc., and a list of periodicals and annuals in these branches. Milwaukee, Wis., National Pub. and Printing Co., 1890. c. '89. 4+104 p. O. cl., $1.25; pap., $1; Key to same, 11 p. O. pap., 25 c.

Henderson, J. C. Thomas Jefferson's views on public education. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1890. c. 7+387 p. por. O. cl., $1.75.

In a succession of chapters headed "An admonition to friends of civil liberty," "A state should have a university," "Jefferson's ideal university," "Our colored brethren," and "A Jeffersonian amendment to the constitution of the United States," the author sets forth some of the leading thoughts of Thomas Jefferson on public education and civil liberty.

Linn, Beth. One little mustard seed. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1890. c. '89. 2-239 p. il. S. cl., $1.

Kate Frothingham, a young city girl, who goes to teach a village school, for the large salary of $4 per week, is the central figure. She finds Millville dull and sleepy, and the inhabitants sadly ignorant of worldly and spiritual knowledge. Kate's experience is both amusing and instructive; her bright intelligence and helpfulness bring about a wonderful change in the lives of young and old in Millville.

Marshall, Emma. Under Salisbury spire, in the days of George Herbert; the recollections of Magdalene Wydville. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., [1890.] 3+344 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

An English tale of the 17th century. The heroine is born under the shadow of Salisbury Cathedral, and when but eighteen is sought in marriage by Anthony Wydville of Wydville Grange. The Grange had once been a monastery, from which the monks had been cast out by Henry the Eighth. The inheritance is supposed to carry with it a curse to the family occupying it, and this is a blight from the first upon the life of Magdalene Wydville, who relates the story of herself and children, and of the influence of George Herbert upon the people around him.

Posse, Nils, (Baron.) The Swedish system of educational gymnastics. Bost., Lee & Shepard, [1890.] c. 5+275 p. il. O. cl., net, $2.

The book meets the requirements of the professional teacher of educational gymnastics, and of the general public. It is in no sense a translation, but an original and lucid exposition of the entire system of "Educational gymnastics," amply and clearly brought out by nearly 250 illustrations, portraying the different practical movements of the body. Intended as educational, rather than medical in its treatment of the subject, although the author has included in an appendix an elaborate statement of the physiological effects of exercise.

il. by Marian Morgan Reynolds. Bost., Lee & Shepard, [1890.] c. '89. 4-168 p. il. and por. O. cl., $2.

Pt. 1 treats of "The use and abuse of the vocal organs," and portrays vividly and accurately the functions of the human voice. Pt. 2 deals with the "Anatomy, hygiene, and physiology of the vocal organs," amply illustrated, giving a clear insight into the anatomy and physiology of the organs as related to the production of the voice, using as far as possible plain and familiar terms, rather than technical ones, to explain nature's methods in producing vocal tones. Pt. 3 considers the "Breathing and vocal exercises for the culture and development of the human voice," and is also elaborately illustrated by instructive diagrams regarding the interesting subject.

Wauters, A. J. Stanley's Emin Pasha expedition. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1890. 14+378 p. por. il. and map, D. cl., $2.

Contains a résumé of the story of the Egyptian occupation of the Equatorial region, or Nile provinces of Eastern Soudan; of the career of Gordon Pasha; of the Mahdist war, and the fall of Khartoun; of the heroic and skilful tactics by which for more than eight years Emin Pasha sustained himself in the face of immensely superior hostile forces; and of his rescue by Stanley. Contains also geographical and ethnological information of great value. The Congo Free State is described, and the career of that remarkable native merchant, Tippoo Tib, is sketched with admirable clearness and interest.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. S. E. DAWSON, the well-known publisher of Montreal, has received the degree of Doctor of Letters from Laval University, Quebec. Mr. Dawson is an author of reputation. His study of "The Princess" was very cordially welcomed by scholars the world over on its appearance a few years since. Recently Mr. Dawson has written a series of thoughtful essays in the Toronto Week on Canadian political questions.

IT WAS THE BIGGEST THING THERE.—Hines—I read an interesting article in the Matchless Soap and Cod Liver Oil Magazine on—Skittles—In the what? You're joking.—Hines—Well, I couldn't find any other name on it.—N. Y. Sun. [This reminds us of the facetious reply our old friend P. F. Van Everen made to a gentleman on the Brooklyn Elevated Railroad, when asked the name of the station at which the train was then stopping: "I can't make out," said he, "whether it is Pear's Soap or Ball's Corsets."—ED. P. W.]

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 8, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE POPULAR SALE OF OBJECTIONABLE BOOKS.

THE fact cannot be ignored that there are classes of books unfitted, by their essential or incidental character, for popular circulation in our day, some of which have a historic or literary interest which makes their sale legitimate within certain limitations, and others of which have no real right of being. One of the most serious problems before the book trade is as to how far censorship should be tolerated in regard to literature of this kind and what is the duty of the trade in regard to the sale of these several classes of works.

As a matter of fact, the question is usually treated in a most unfortunate way. For instance, one of the New York dailies some time since printed a severe criticism of a book of poems, singling out and publishing passages which it considered the most objectionable. The book was, as a matter of fact, of high poetic quality, and would in itself have commanded the attention of a limited class of buyers, who would care more for the essential poetry than for the incidental features which the criticism was so careful to bring out. Whether this kind of review, which really panders to the lower appetites while aiming to promote virtue by severe criticism, was in this case a piece of hypocrisy or earnestness, it is not our business at the moment to inquire. The result was, however, a wide sale for the book and the publication of a second edition, including "poems previously excluded by the advice of publishers and friends," which would sell probably on the strength, not of the poetry, but of the notoriety caused by the incidental features of the book. Everything that exploits a book as particularly bad is pretty sure to increase the badness by giving it wider promulgation. That must be recognized as a fact in human nature.

In regard to classical literature, back to Shakespeare and beyond him back to the Bible itself, it is practically impossible to prevent certain passages, which in their language or tone are objectionable in our day and generation, from sharing in the natural circulation of these great books. This is true also in the case of those well-known works of Italian and of French literature in which these features, however offensive to us, are an essential part of their literary being. Some booksellers make a practice of refusing to handle the class of books last named, and certainly no bookseller ought to take part in selling them except to the special class of people to whom they address themselves as literature. They are not books to be put before young people either from the bookstore or from the library.

As to Zola's works, it is very difficult indeed to come to a satisfactory practical conclusion. This is the case of a great writer making studies of actual conditions of society, probably in good faith, and in that endeavor saying many things which are not fit for all ears or all eyes. Such social studies, if it were not for these last features, which are in one sense the vital part of the book, would have an ordinary sale, but the sensational and objectionable features give them notoriety and circulation far beyond their natural limits.

But now comes a third class of books in the same general category, which at one time or another appear in such quantities as to become virtually an epidemic. These books—most of them professing a high moral purpose, which they proceed to carry out by presenting incidents in an entirely unnecessary way, to put it mildly, for the conveyance of the supposed moral—are extravagantly sensational and have little if any literary quality. They are expected to sell for one reason only. It is perfectly evident that the writers of them could accomplish their asserted purpose without any such wealth of detail as they insist upon giving. Such books as these, however wide the public demand created by their notoriety, we cannot recommend for sale by booksellers.

The key to the Zola perplexity is probably in the fact that the modern novel has become so all-embracing that it is made a vehicle for a great deal which does not properly belong in the novel. This, however, is a literary and not a trade view of the subject; what we desire is to obtain such light as can be thrown on a practical problem before the honest-minded and reputable bookseller.

THE "LIBRARY" PUBLISHERS' COMBINATION.

THE Lovell combination, which at last writing seemed likely to be quite restricted in its field, has again assumed proportions more like the plans originally foreshadowed. In addition to the arrangements recently noted in these columns it is reported that the Lovells have purchased the plates of W. L. Allison; that they have made arrangements to secure the plates of the "twelvemos" published by the J. B. Lippincott Co.; that the plates of the cheap fiction of two or three other firms have been absorbed; and, most important of all, that Hurst & Co. have finally been induced to come into the arrangement. This leaves practically but one house to be gained—J. S. Ogilvie, who so far seems to prefer fighting his way alone.

This endeavor to bring together a union of the different houses to regulate prices, etc., is perhaps only secondary to the ambition to obtain the leading place for the future in the whole American market for foreign fiction. From a "predatory" beginning—in this respect not much unlike many who consider themselves their betters—the Lovells have gradually worked their way up from indifferently-made to better-made novels; from pirated works to books published by arrangement with foreign authors and publishers, and to American copyright literature. For a year or more the regular publishing houses, with a few exceptions, have done little more than keep up appearances in the line of foreign fiction, and during that time the Lovells more and more have pushed to the front. Now and then, older houses, who had for years published the novels of certain well-known English authors, even became aware that their younger rival actually outbid them in the foreign market for the privilege of obtaining advance sheets; and so occurred the phenomenon that new novels of the authors whose names had become household words in connection with their American publishers, appeared first "by arrangement" on the Lovell list, and weeks after (without arrangement) on the list of the older house, so that, on one occasion at least, the tables were turned and the kettle had reason to call the pot black.

Having made a beginning, therefore, and apparently a successful one, in obtaining a fair number of the better-known English authors, what more natural than that the Lovells should seek by combination the supremacy of the market, so that in the event International Copyright is established by law, they may be able to hold the field against houses of older standing.

However much money the "combination" may have back of them—and at present they undoubtedly have considerable—they have assumed enormous responsibilities, which the plant may or may not justify. Crediting common report—of course, nothing definite can be obtained—they have made arrangements which bind them to pay rentals for plates, aggregating $100,000 annually for three years at least. In addition to this they are said to have paid almost $100,000 outright for plates and stock. Granting that the prices they will hereafter realize for their publications will be higher than before, the increase is by no means sure to be so great as to reimburse them for the rental alone, nor is it at all probable that they will be left in undisputed possession of the field. Furthermore, the new arrangements which make part of their list returnable will scarcely add to the stability of the business. The results of the combination will therefore be watched with great interest.

AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' COPYRIGHT LEAGUE.—ANNUAL MEETING.

THE Annual Meeting of the American Publishers' Copyright League was held on Friday, February 20, at the Aldine Club, the President of the League, Mr. William H. Appleton, being in the chair. Officers of the League for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, William H. Appleton; Vice-President, General A. C. McClurg; Treasurer, Charles Scribner; Secretary, Geo. Haven Putnam; Executive Committee, Joseph W. Harper, Henry O. Houghton, Craig Lippincott, A. D. F. Randolph, Henry Holt, Dana Estes.

The report of the Treasurer showed that, while the League had no outstanding liabilities, the funds in the treasury were practically exhausted, and that money was required at once for work in Washington and throughout the country and for the distribution of documents. The Treasurer explained that the outlays were being carefully and economically made and that the plan adopted during the past year of consolidating into one treasury the funds of the Authors' and Publishers' Leagues, and of the Boston Association, had materially increased the effectiveness of the work and of the expenditures. The work to be done in Washington called for the service of a representative of the League who should remain in the capital until the bill came to a vote, for the purpose of keeping Congressmen informed as to its purpose and character.

The service required in the West was such as Mr. Lathrop was now engaged in in Chicago, and as Mr. Putnam had interested himself in rendering in Colorado and Minnesota—namely, the presentation of the subject to the book trade and the general public, the holding of meetings, and the organization of State and local leagues. This very necessary and legitimate work of informing legislators, and of organizing and directing public opinion, could not be carried on without money, and Mr. Scribner expressed the hope that, now that the prospects for final success appeared to be favorable, the publishers, booksellers, and the trades connected with the manufacturing of books, would not fail to give the support required, but would send in promptly their dues for the current year and would add any special subscriptions that seemed to them proper.

The annual dues for the League were for active members, $25; associate members, $10. Under this last head the booksellers who were interested had as a rule enrolled themselves.

The Secretary, Mr. Putnam, gave in his report a brief summary of the work done during the year, and of the present status and prospects of the pending bill. He explained that for three months he had been absent from New York "on sick leave," and that during this period the Secretary's responsibilities had been taken care of by Mr. W. W. Appleton.

At the beginning of the work for the year, a satisfactory organization had been brought about of the Executive Committees and representatives of the several bodies working for International Copyright, and the General Conference Committee, by which the campaign work was being directed, now comprises delegates (acting with authority) from the Authors' League, the Publishers' League, the Boston Association, the Chicago Association, the National Association of Typographers, and the National Association of Typothetæ, while the interests of the public at large were represented on the Conference Committee by ex-Senator Chace. Mr. R. U. Johnson, of the Century Company, had accepted the position of Secretary of this General Committee of the Leagues and had had the general planning and direction of its correspondence, and his public-spirited service had been most effective and valuable. The treasury of the General Committee was in the charge of Mr. Charles Scribner.

The Copyright Bill was in a much more favorable position in Congress, on the calendar as well of the House as of the Senate, than had been the case at the corresponding period of the previous session. It had been introduced into the Senate by Senator O. H. Platt, of Connecticut, for whose coöperation we are largely indebted to ex-Senator Chace, and the Committee on Patents had made a unanimous report in its favor. It had been introduced into the House by Mr. George E. Adams, of Chicago, and had been favorably reported by the Judiciary Committee. Mr. Adams had been interested in the bill when it was before the 50th Congress, but for his exceptionally valuable coöperation at this time, we are largely indebted to the influence of our Vice-President, General McClurg. The General had taken pains to arrange for the conference held in Chicago between Mr. Putnam and Mr. Adams, when Mr. Adams agreed to take charge of the bill, and his counsel and suggestions have been from the outset exceedingly valuable. A duplicate of our bill had been introduced into the House by Mr. Simonds, of Connecticut, and referred to the Committee on Patents, which had also reported unanimously in its favor. The Committee on the Judiciary had had three hearings upon the bill, at the first and third of which the authors, publishers, and typographers had been represented. The second hearing had been devoted to the statement of Mr. Gardiner G. Hubbard, counsel for the Bell Telephone Company, whose arguments against the measure had, as we are advised, proved exceptionally valuable in making friends for it. Mr. Kennedy, of the Washington Typographical Union, speaking before the committee as a delegate of the National Union, had made a most effective presentation of the considerations for the bill, with reference as well to the interests of the printers as to those of the reading public. The National Associations of the Typographers, of the Typothetæ, and of the Newspaper Publishers had passed resolutions urging the passage of the bill.

A Copyright League had been organized in Chicago under the presidency of General McClurg, and it was hoped that this would shortly be followed by other similar leagues throughout the West.

Mr. George P. Lathrop had rendered effective service in Chicago in connection with this organization, and it ought to prove possible to utilize his services also in other cities.

Mr. Putnam stated that he had taken occasion, while in the West, to do what he could to test public opinion upon the question of International Copyright, and it had been his experience that wherever the issue was fairly presented, the public opinion was, with hardly an exception, cordially interested and heartily favorable. He had had an opportunity of making in Colorado several addresses upon the subject and had forwarded to Senator Teller and to Representative Townsend petitions in favor of the pending bill, signed by the Governor of the State, the Chief Justice, and most of the Associate Justices of the State Supreme Court, the Mayors of Denver, Boulder, and Colorado Springs, the principal booksellers and a large number of other leading citizens of the State. A similar address had been given in Minneapolis under the invitation of the Union League Club, and in commenting upon this, the journals of Minneapolis and St. Paul, and of the State generally, had, with hardly an exception, expressed themselves as heartily in favor of the measure.

After the adoption, by a unanimous vote, of appreciative resolutions in regard to the valuable service which was being rendered by Mr. R. U. Johnson, Secretary of the General Committee, and by General McClurg, the meeting adjourned.

PAN-AMERICAN COPYRIGHT.

THE report of the Committee on Patents and Trade-Marks was under consideration by the Pan-American Conference on the 3d inst. and was unanimously adopted. The committee finds in the three treaties on copyright, trade-marks, and patents, subscribed to by the representatives of the Argentine Republic, Bolivia, Brazil, Chili, Paraguay, Peru, and Uruguay, who attended the recent Congress of Private International Law of Montevideo, the principles which, in its opinion, should be adopted throughout this continent "in order to assure and give effective protection to the rights of literary, artistic, and industrial property acquired in any of the nations represented in this Conference." We extract from the report the proposed form of "Treaty on Literary and Artistic Copyright" as being of direct interest to the publishing trade generally:

Article 1. The contracting States promise to recognize and protect the rights of literary and artistic property, according to the provisions of the present treaty.

Article 2. The author of any literary or artistic work and his successors shall enjoy in the contracting States the rights accorded him by the law of the State in which its original publication or production took place.

Article 3. The author's right of ownership in a literary or artistic work shall comprise the right to dispose of it, to publish it, to convey it to another, to translate it or to authorize its translation, and to reproduce it in any form whatsoever.

Article 4. No State shall be obliged to recognize the right to literary or artistic property for a longer period than that allowed to authors who obtain the same right in that State. This period may be limited to that prescribed in the country where it originates, if such period be the shorter.

Article 5. By the expression literary or artistic works is understood all books, pamphlets or other writings, dramatical or dramatico-musical works, choreographies, musical compositions with or without words, drawings, paintings, sculptures, engravings, photographs, lithographs, geographical maps, plans, sketches, and plastic works relating to geography, topography, architecture or to the sciences in general, and finally every production under the domain of literature or art which may be published in any way by printing or production.

Article 6. The translators of works of which a copyright either does not exist or has expired shall enjoy with respect to their translations the rights declared in article 3, but this shall not prevent the publication of other translations of the same work.

Article 7. Newspaper articles may be reproduced upon quoting the publication from which they are taken. From this are excepted articles relating to the sciences or arts, and whose reproduction shall have been prohibited by the authors.

Article 8. Speeches pronounced or read in deliberative assemblies, before tribunals of justice or in public meetings may be published in the public press without any authorization whatsoever.

Article 9. Under the head of illicit reproductions shall be classed all indirect, unauthorized appropriations of a literary or artistic work, which may be designated by different names as adaptations, arrangements, etc., and which are nothing more than a reproduction without presenting the character of an original work.

Article 10. The rights of authorship shall be conceded, in the absence of proof to the contrary, in favor of the persons whose names or pseudonyms shall be borne upon the literary or artistic works in question. If the authors wish to withhold their names they should inform the editors that the rights of authorship belong to them.

Article 11. Those who usurp the right of literary or artistic property shall be brought before the courts and tried according to the laws of the country in which the fraud may have been committed.

Article 12. The recognition of the right of ownership of literary and artistic works shall not prevent the contracting States from preventing, by suitable legislation, the production, publication, circulation, representation or exhibition of all works which may be considered contrary to good morals.

Article 13. The simultaneous ratification of all the contracting nations shall not be necessary to the effectiveness of this treaty. Those who adopt it will communicate the fact to the governments of the Argentine Republic and the Eastern Republic of Uruguay, who will inform the other contracting nations. This procedure will take the place of an exchange.

Article 14. The exchange having been made in the manner described in the foregoing article, this treaty shall remain in force for an indefinite period after that act.

Article 15. If any of the contracting nations should deem it advisable to be released from this treaty or to introduce modifications in it, said nation shall so inform the rest; but it shall not be released until two years after the date of notifications, during which time measures will be taken to effect a new arrangement.

Article 16. The provisions of article 13 are extended to all nations who, although not represented in this Congress, may desire to give their adhesion to the present treaty.

The committee in its report gives at some length the history of the movement in Europe to give international protection to literary and artistic works, patents, and trade-marks, and says:

"To the recent Congress of Private International Law of Montevideo, assembled in response to an invitation issued by the governments of the Argentine Republic and the Republic of Uruguay to the other nations of South America, is due the high honor of having been the first to acknowledge on this continent and solemnly establish the most wholesome principles of law for the solution of disputes arising from the differences of the legislation of one country from that of another, and of establishing among these principles that of international protection of literary, artistic, and industrial property. In the three treaties on literary and artistic copyright, on trade-marks, and on patents subscribed to the representatives of the Argentine Republic, Bolivia, Brazil, Chili, Paraguay, Peru, and the Republic of Uruguay, who attended said Congress, your Committee on Patents and Trade Marks finds the principles set forth which, in its opinion, should be adopted throughout this continent in order to assure and give effective protection to the rights of literary, artistic, and industrial property acquired in any of the nations represented in this conference."

The report was signed by José S. Decoud, Paraguay; Andrew Carnegie, U. S.; and Climaco Calderon, Colombia.

A BRANCH POST-OFFICE TO RELIEVE THE UPTOWN PUBLISHERS OF NEW YORK.

FOR years that part of the book trade of New York City located above Canal Street has been seriously inconvenienced through the lack of proper postal facilities in the handling of "bulk" matter. All second-class matter has to be delivered at the General Post-Office, which imposes a considerable tax on the trade—how large may be gathered from the fact that of the 4035 tons of second-class matter delivered at the General Office for the quarter ended on September 30 last, one-fourth came from above Canal Street. Besides the cost it also occasions delays in the final delivery of books at their destination, because it is very often impracticable to make more than one trip to the Post-Office, and that in the evening. The Department has been finally brought to recognize this short-coming (after years of petitioning) and has made arrangements to open a branch station at 30 and 32 West Thirteenth Street, to be known as Station O. It will be opened sometime next month and will be like all other branch post-offices except that there will be no delivery by carriers.

BOOKS BY PROMINENT PEOPLE.

From the Mail and Express.

A CURIOUS little paragraph has been going the rounds of the press, to the effect that the widow of Gen. Grant was to publish a volume of the dead warrior's love letters to her. There is not a scintilla of truth in it. Mrs. Grant is possessed of all the letters written her by her husband, but she is not the woman to make such delicate missives public. She possesses abundant material for a book that would be highly entertaining to the American public, and would be remunerative besides—odds and ends of papers, stories about famous men and women who were intimate with her husband, and bits of unwritten history about the great rebellion. These she may publish at a later day when her health is fully restored.

It seems to be the fashion just at present to write books or have some one else do it for you. Ward McAllister, the great social generalissimo, is debating whether he shall write a book on social questions or not. He has been offered a large sum for such a work. It is the gossip of literary circles that Cyrus W. Field, now in the sunset of a glorious life, contemplates a volume of memoirs. Ben Butler is already engaged on a volume that is to be published in the fall, and the widow of Jefferson Davis will have her life of the great Confederate leader ready for the publisher in a few weeks. Ex-Minister William Waldorf Astor, who has met with some considerable success in literature, has a new volume under way, and Nellie Bly's story of her race around the world will soon be spread before a long-suffering public. Mrs. President Harrison has been offered a large sum of money for a half dozen magazine articles, and the widow of Henry Ward Beecher has about decided to edit a volume of papers about her late husband.

ONLY TWO KINDS.—Young Lady (hurriedly): "I want a novel—something popular." Book Clerk (briskly): "Yes, miss. Which sort—wicked or vapid?"—Newsdealer.

AFRICAN BIBLIOGRAPHIES.

From the London Athenæum.

READERS of "Travels in Tunisia," by Alexander Graham and H. S. Ashbee (1887), will remember that one of the features of that altogether admirable book was a bibliography, which covered the entire period from the times of Carthage down to the French protectorate. This bibliography has now been reissued by Mr. Ashbee, in handsome large octavo (Dulau), with an appendix augmenting the number of titles by about one-third, and a copious index to facilitate reference. To show how wide is the field covered, we may quote from the preface the following classification of the contents:

"(1) books on Carthage and Utica, with their history and archaeology; (2) books on Tunisia, or on towns or separate districts of that country; (3) books partly on Tunisia; (4) books on the Barbary States (when Tunisia is included) and their piracies; (5) articles in Societies' Transactions, collections of travels, encyclopædias, magazines, and other periodicals; (6) dictionaries and manuals of conversation in the Arab language; (7) a few books not specially on Tunisia, but illustrating indirectly the religion, customs, antiquities, or language, ancient or modern, of that country; (8) Consular reports; (9) some works of the imagination—novels, dramas, and poems."

It is curious to note the favorable treatment which Northern Africa has received from bibliographers. To take only English works—Prince Ibrahim Hilmy has compiled two large though by no means exhaustive volumes of the literature relating to Egypt and the Sudan. For the Barbary States, Sir R. Lambert Playfair, our indefatigable Consul-General, published a bibliography of Algeria two or three years ago through the Royal Geographical Society, and has just finished a companion work on Tripoli; while we understand that Dr. Robert Brown is well advanced with his bibliography of Morocco. What would not the student of Indian history give for similar help, even in detached portions of his vast subject?

COMMUNICATIONS.

ANOTHER "WORD ABOUT BOOKMEN."

NEW YORK, March 3, 1890.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

DEAR SIR: In a recent number of the American Bookseller appears a violent attack upon an article signed "A. J. B." printed in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. The Bookseller gratuitously assumes that I am ignorant of the true meaning and application of such an every-day expression as a minus quantity. It also assumes my experience of books and literature was gained during a temporary sojourn in a bookstore just outside New York! These are mere personalities not worthy of notice, except as showing the spirit and tone adopted by the Bookseller. The Bookseller "thinks that cultured men are in a majority" in the book trade, and gives a list of instances. Of that list most are heads of large New York and Boston houses, both of which cities are especially excepted in my article. The remark about "Areopagitica" can hardly be passed over in silence. Only think! The book to which Lord Macaulay paid tribute as "that sublime treatise which every statesman should wear as a sign upon his hand and as frontlets between his eyes," the book which stands a white stone in the records of the battles for liberty of the press—one of the most glorious of Milton's prose works—is, forsooth, found a "hindrance" by the editor of the American Bookseller and an American authoress. The remark as to my knowledge of the value of a first folio Shakespeare is also a personality not affecting the question at issue. However, as I happen to have bought and sold a couple of copies, and handled perhaps ten or a dozen more, I may be allowed to know something about their value. But the question is not whether I know the value of a copy, but whether the majority or even a decent minority of the trade does. The very phrase used to attack me "a fine edition of the first folio," is meaningless to a bookseller. For "edition" read "copy" and the meaning appears.

But, Mr. Editor, when a journal which pretends to be devoted to the interests of the book trade (!) airily classes Shakespeare, Milton, Izaak Walton, and John Bunyan as among the "curiosities of literature," and says the bookseller "ought to let them alone," what really can one say in reply?

A. J. B.

OBITUARY.

LAWRENCE KEHOE.

LAWRENCE KEHOE, the well-known manager of the Catholic Publication Society Company of New York, died suddenly of pneumonia at his residence, 161 Tompkins Avenue, Brooklyn, on February 27. He was born in the parish of Litter, County Wexford, Ireland, July 24, 1832, and came to this country when a boy. Shortly after he came to this country he was taken into employ by D. & J. Sadlier, where he rapidly worked his way up into a responsible position. In time he became a contributor to the New York Tablet, and during the war became its manager. In 1867, when Father Hecker founded the Catholic Publication Society, Mr. Kehoe was made its manager. In this capacity he devoted his best energies to raising the standard of Roman Catholic literature in the English language, compiling and editing himself a number of works, including "The Life and Works of Archbishop Hughes." He was, also, always foremost in every reform measure touching the book trade. In 1883 he became a partner in the concern and made arrangements to represent Burns & Oates in this country.

Mr. Kehoe was a trustee of the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum, of St. John's Home, and of St. Joseph's Asylum in Brooklyn, and a member of St. John the Baptist's Roman Catholic Church. He leaves a widow and ten children, seven boys and three girls. One of his boys was associated with him in business.

At a meeting of the Catholic publishers of New York, held on the afternoon of February 28, to take action on the death of Lawrence Kehoe, the following resolutions were passed:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God, in His inscrutable wisdom, to remove from us our associate, Lawrence Kehoe; and

WHEREAS, While we bow with humble submission to the Divine will, we recognize in his death the loss of a valuable, an energetic, and an honest associate, and a severe blow to the interests of American Catholic literature, which he labored to foster and advance;

Resolved, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved members of his family in their hour of affliction, and commend them to the care of Him who is the help of the widow and the fatherless.

Resolved, That we attend his funeral in a body, and that these resolutions be printed in the daily and Catholic weekly papers of New York, and a copy be properly engrossed and presented to the family of the deceased.

Mr. Josiah W. Wentworth has been elected President and Treasurer of the Catholic Publication Society Co., the business of which will be continued as usual.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. ERNEST JARROLD, of the editorial staff of the New York Sun, has gathered into book-form his clever sketches from that journal relating the domestic happenings of Mickey Finn and his family.

WILLIAM WINTER is preparing for the Dunlap Society a memorial volume on John Gilbert. The third part of Mr. Winter's valuable "Brief Chronicles" is ready, and will be sent out shortly.

MR. LEWIS CARROLL, author of "Alice in Wonderland," is compiling a volume which is to consist of selections from the Bible, and another which is to be an arrangement of Shakespeare suitable for young girls.

THE Welch memorial fund has been closed. More than $25,000 has now been raised, subscriptions having come from all over the country and from hundreds who were touched by the story of Welch's brave struggle. The money is to be used in educating his children.

"MISS OLIVE SCHREINER," says the London Athenaeum, "has sent from Cape Town the complete MS. of a small volume of allegories, including several that have not yet seen the light. The volume will be published by Messrs. Blackford & Sons, if we mistake not. It is said that it will be called 'Dreams.'"

MR. WHISTLER, according to the New York Tribune, desires his American friends to understand that he has given no sanction to the proposed publication of his letters and other writings, whether in England or America. His solicitors, Messrs. Lewis & Lewis, were instructed as soon as he heard of this scheme, to apply for an injunction in both countries. The book is said to have been actually in type, and the plates shipped to New York.

THE author of "Metzerott, Shoemaker," is Miss Katherine Pearson Woods. According to the Boston Transcript, Miss Woods was born in Wheeling, (then) Virginia, Jan. 28, 1853, so that when she wrote "Metzerott" she was a year younger than George Eliot was when she wrote "Scenes from Clerical Life." She is a granddaughter of the late Rev. James Dabney McCabe, D.D. Captain W. Gordon McCabe, Principal of the University School of Petersburg, Va., and one of the well-known "writers of the South," is a cousin. Her father's maternal grandfather was Alexander Quainer, of French Huguenot extraction settled in Scotland. In 1884, while teaching in Wheeling, West Virginia, Miss Woods was led to study social science, especially by the great strike in the nail works in that place. "She regards Christian Socialism as the great cure-all for such irregularities."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Munyon's Illustrated World, published at Philadelphia, claims to have "secured" Walt Whitman to write a poem for each monthly issue.

Poet-Lore for March 15 will give another of Mr. Nathan Haskell Dole's papers on the Russian Drama, with translations from Tolstoi and Pushkin.

Chatter has overcome the objections of the Post-Office Department, and has been informed that it may call itself a newspaper, and pass through the mails as such.

RUSSELL STURGIS will contribute to an early number of Harper's Magazine an article on "Painted Greek Sculpture," illustrated with drawings from statuary which has been recently discovered at Athens.

The Newsdealer has made its appearance and makes a good impression. It is full of news, terse and wide awake, and apparently has "no axe to grind." We wish it all success. It will be published monthly by Warren Elbridge Price, 1203 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

Short Stories; a Magazine of Select Fiction, is the title of a new periodical which the publishers of Current Literature, of New York, will begin to issue early in April. The publication "will be semi-eclectic in character, and will present to the reader twenty-five good short stories for twenty-five cents. In form, appearance, and quality of contents the new-comer will be something of a novelty."

BUSINESS NOTES.

ADRIAN, MICH.—G. Roscoe Swift has succeeded Charles Humphrey, bookseller and stationer.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—W. J. Weedon has purchased from Alexander Levy his right, title, and interest in the book business at 138 Court Street.

CHICAGO, ILL.—R. R. Donnelly & Sons, printers of the Chicago City Directory and one of the oldest printing and publishing houses in the West, have failed. The liabilities amount to about $100,000, the assets are reported to be considerably less. The failure of the firm, it is said, will not affect the Chicago City Directory Company, which is an incorporated and distinct concern.

EMMETSBURG, IOWA.—W. A. Weaver, bookseller and stationer, has been succeeded by W. H. Robins.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—We regret to hear of the death of Alexander Borg, bookseller and stationer. Mr. Borg was in business since 1877, starting with Mr. Phillips under the firm-name of Borg & Phillips. A year later Mr. Phillips retired, and the firm became A. Borg.

NEW YORK CITY.—H. Williams, dealer in old magazines, has removed from No. 39 MacDougal St. to No. 195 West 10th St.

NEW YORK CITY.—Thomas Y. Crowell & Co. will remove from their old quarters, Astor Place, to 46 East 14th St., Union Square.

NEW YORK CITY.—Miss Mary F. Seymour, one of the pioneers among women stenographers and typewriters, has associated four other women with her in the formation of a printing and publishing company. They own the stock themselves, they declare that they are going to run the business all alone, and that there shall not be a dollar's interest sold to any man. The chief thing that they have on their hands is the publication of the Business Woman's Journal. Miss Seymour is the editor. She started it some time ago, and, quite well satisfied with its success, has recently enlarged it.—Sun.

NEW YORK CITY.—White & Allen, we regret to learn, have been obliged to place their affairs in the hands of their creditors. Their trouble, it is said, is on account of a demand on the firm by Mrs. Mary J. White for the payment of $10,000. Messrs. Benedict, of Benedict & Valentine, and Pfister of F. J. Pfister & Co., have been named by the creditors to make an examination of the firm's affairs and report what is best to be done in the matter. The liabilities are not definitely known, as the accounts have not all been closed, but are reported, to be about $50,000, about one-half of which is due in Europe. The assets are large and it is generally thought that the embarrassment will be only temporary. Mr. Allen is on his way from Europe, and is expected to arrive on the 10th. When the present firm was formed, it claimed $25,000 capital and outside means of $35,000.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—I. H. Brown & Co. have succeeded the American School-Book Co.

SAN FRANCISCO CAL.—J. M. Litchfield, the assignee of Coleman & Gruninger, gives notice to the creditors of that concern that their claims must be presented to him on or before the 29th inst., at his office at No. 12 Post St.

SCRANTON, PA.—C. H. Fisdale, bookseller and stationer, had his stock cleared out by fire. Fortunately he was insured.

UTICA, N. Y.—W. T. Smith, one of the best-known booksellers and stationers in western New York, has admitted Messrs. John L. Grant and Fred. W. Luker into partnership, and changed the firm-name to William T. Smith & Co. The new partners have both been connected with the business for a number of years.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE title of Stanley's book is to be "The Darkest Africa: the quest, rescue, and retreat of Emin."

GINN & Co. will publish next month a work on "Directional Calculus," by Prof. E. W. Hyde. The work follows, in the main, the methods of Grassman's "Ausdehnungslehre," but deals only with space of two and three dimensions.

M. T. RICHARDSON & Co., 86 Reade St., N. Y., will publish shortly a collection of Southern songs, camp fire, patriotic, and sentimental, compiled by W. L. Fagan, who was an officer in the Confederate Army. It will be entitled "Southern War Songs," and will be fully illustrated.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have in preparation a new volume by George W. Cable entitled "The Negro Question." The address which Mr. Cable delivered on Washington's Birthday before the Massachusetts Club, in reply to the speech of the late Henry W. Grady, will be the leading feature of the volume, which will also contain the "open letters" by Mr. Cable on this important topic which have appeared in The Century.

WHILE the new building is being erected on the present site, the Mercantile Library will be located in the five-story building, No. 67 Fifth Avenue, one door below 14th Street. In order to remove and arrange the large collection of books, it will be necessary to close the library for business from April 7 next until May 1. Members will be permitted, without extra charge, to draw three books to be retained during the period the library is closed. The branches at 426 Fifth Avenue and 33 Liberty St. will be kept open, but no deliveries can be made from the main library. The reading-room will be closed only during the last week of April.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have added this year to their already large and varied stock of Easter gifts a number of charming little souvenirs in the shape of tiny booklets cut out in a variety of forms. Among the recent ones are "Sweet Peeping Faces," in the shape of delicately tinted leaves, out of the centre of which "peeps" a baby's face; "Cherubs" is an angel's head with wings; "Silver Crosses," a cross wreathed with spring blossoms; "A Posy with Love," a pansy; "Easter Lilies," a leaf of the Lily of the Valley sheathing a spray of the flowers; "Lilies," an Easter Lily; "Water Lilies;" and "Little Darlings," "cute" little children holding out their dresses with both hands. All these souvenirs are delicately printed and bound with silk ribbons or with tasselled cords. They have also a number of booklets with charming landscape views artistically printed.

L. PRANG & Co. as always offer an extensive line of Easter goods made especially noticeable by their thoroughly American workmanship, the text being supplied by American authors, the designs by American artists, and the manufacture being all accomplished in this country. The Easter art-prints on satin are very attractive, and include pads, book-marks, sachets, perfume bags, handkerchief boxes, portfolio and magazine covers, cushions, chair and easel scarfs, etc. There is a very large assortment of small Easter Booklets ranging in prices from 6c. to 40c. The Art Books issued for this season are "A Spring Song," "The Robin's Song," "The Hermit Thrush," and "The Messenger of Spring," all illustrated by F. Schuyler Matthews in monochrome and pen drawing; "Winged Winds" and "Jesus, Lover of my Soul," illustrated by Louis K. Harlowe; "Christ is Risen," illustrated in colors by Lucy Comins; and "The Angel at the Sepulchre," a poem by Esther B. Tiffany, with full-page illustrations by William S. Tiffany.

AMONG forthcoming volumes of the Canterbury Poets is a selection from the works of Owen Meredith (the Earl of Lytton). The editor is Miss Betham-Edwards, who has Lord Lytton's sanction for the reprint.

G. BELL & SONS, London, have in press two volumes which are certain to interest the majority of our readers. We refer to "Bookbinding," by J. Zaehnsdorf, and "Printing," by C. T. Jacobi, manager of the Chiswick Press. Both volumes belong to Messrs. Bell's series of Technological Handbooks.

BLACKWOOD & SONS will immediately publish the correspondence between Mr. Pitt and the Duke of Rutland, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland from 1781 to 1787. The letters throw much fresh light upon the conduct of Grattan's Parliament, upon the conditions of the country, the factious conduct of the Irish leaders, and upon the early ideas for establishing a union with Great Britain. This correspondence was collected and edited by Earl Stanhope for the Rutland family, and a few copies privately printed; but the volume seems to have been lost sight of until it was unexpectedly recovered by the present Duke of Rutland when arranging his family papers. The Duke of Rutland has prefaced the volume by an introductory note, and this important correspondence will now, for the first time, be laid before the public.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

BOOKS WANTED.

 In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

 It is desirable to receive copy in shape ready for the printer, viz.: first, headline—name and address—then, titles in separate lines (see below), all written on a separate sheet, or at the bottom of letter, or on postal card. Compliance with this request will secure accurate and prompt insertion.

ROBERTSON OF IRVINE.

POET PREACHER.

BY ARTHUR GUTHRIE, Ardrossan, N. B.

12mo, Cloth Extra, $1.75.

The writer in this volume has sought to recall Robertson, the Man and Preacher. His ministerial career in Irvine, addresses, speeches, and sermons delivered on special occasions, and recollections of personal intercourse, extending over a quarter of a century, furnished the necessary material.

"You have done me great honor by sending me so interesting a work in so kind a manner."

W. E. GLADSTONE.

"The book is invested with a perennial power. It gives a full and faithful view of one of the most remarkable preachers of our century, who was a poet and a humorist as well as a preacher, and the delineation is therefore, in our opinion, likely to live."—Christian Leader.

The Following are Some of the Opinions of the Trade and Press:

"For the time that we have devoted to its examination, are well pleased with it."—ROBERT CLARKE & Co., Publishers and Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"You deserve well of the world till you die, and after, but the book trade is just as ungrateful as any republic, and although they may sling an occasional laurel wreath out your way, the silver buzzard and the golden eagle 'flieth not so fast nor so far.' There is but one Directory of the Book and Stationery Trade and that is Caspar's."—P. F. VAN EVEREN, New York.

"It is just splendid. The most complete book of the kind we have seen."—J. H. KURZENKNABE & SONS, Harrisburg, Pa.

"I am greatly pleased with your Directory. It is the best work of the kind ever issued and deserves a large sale."—NATURAL SCIENCE PUBLISHING Co., New York.

"It seems more complete than anything of the kind I have seen before."—J. B. MARTINDALE, Chicago.

"We like it very much, and we don't know but what it is the best thing of the kind we have ever seen."—P. R. McCARGO & Co., Boston.

"Am very grateful to you for the conscientious care and painstaking effort in preparing so valuable and so complete a work. Be kind enough to enter my name, and mail me all addenda sheets in future, and do not fail to notify me of any new project in this line you may engage in."—Geo. H. COLBY, Bookseller, Lancaster, N. H.

"We have looked it over with great interest and appreciate the fact that it will be of great value to us."—W. O. DAVIS & Co., Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"I think your book a most valuable one and believe it will be better appreciated as it becomes better known."—WILL H. LYONS, Newport, Ky.

"Even a cursory examination of this important directory will convince any one of the thorough manner in which it has been put together and of the value of the completed work. Mr. Caspar has produced a work which, if properly kept up from year to year, will be the standard."—The American Stationer, New York City.

"The Appendix to 'Caspar's Directory of the American Book, News, and Stationery Trades' is a most valuable compilation, exhaustive and complete. The information it contains is absolutely unique and not to be procured from any other source. Hence it is of the first importance to every one in the trades. It is admirably arranged; the references are simple, and being grouped under special heads, makes consultation a matter of little or no difficulty. Such a work is really a great trade textbook, from which the initiated can feel the pulse of the whole book-publishing world. It is a monument of careful, painstaking and accurate labor, and is as reliable as it is extensive. . . . The preparation of this useful volume must have been a work of immense labor and patience, and Mr. Caspar must be congratulated on the success which he has achieved. It is a manual for publishers, booksellers, newsdeales, stationers, and libraries, indispensable to them all."—The American Bookseller.

SOUND ENGLISH

A Language for the World.

By A. KNOFLACH,

Author of "German Simplified," "Spanish Simplified,"

63 pp., 16mo, paper, 25 cts., retail.

The author has invented an entirely new and original system, by which he expresses the thirty-nine sounds of the English language without casting a single new type, and without using any vowel combinations or diacritical marks. Moreover, he designates the accent in every word, symbolically, without using an accent mark. By this means the English language will be simplified to such a degree that any foreigner of average intelligence will be able to master it, for the ordinary purposes of every-day life, in two or three weeks!

Here is a book that will attract attention!

A Naturalist's Voyage Around the World.

JOURNAL OF RESEARCHES INTO THE NATURAL HISTORY AND GEOLOGY OF THE COUNTRIES VISITED DURING THE VOYAGE ROUND THE WORLD OF H. M. S. "BEAGLE." By CHARLES DARWIN. New illustrated edition. With maps and 100 views of the places visited and described, chiefly from sketches taken on the spot, by ROBERT TAYLOR PRITCHETT. One vol., 8vo, $5.00.

The object of this edition is to aid the author's descriptions by actual representations of the most interesting places and objects of natural history referred to in them. This has been effected by securing the services of an artist who has visited the countries which Darwin describes.

"One of the most interesting narratives of voyaging that has fallen to our lot to take up, and one which must always occupy a distinguished place in the history of scientific navigation."—Quarterly Review.

II.

Djambek the Georgian.

A TALE OF MODERN TURKEY. From the German of Von Luttner, by H. M. JEWETT. Appletons' Town and Country Library. 12mo, paper, 50 cents.

The translator of this romance, the Hon. H. M. Jewett, is the American Consul at Sivas, Turkey. Mr. Jewett's long residence in Asia Minor enables him to testify to the accuracy of its pictures of social and political life. It is mainly a love-story, full of interest, with experiences and incidents comparatively new.

The Following are Some of the Opinions of the Trade and Press:

"For the time that we have devoted to its examination, are well pleased with it."—ROBERT CLARKE & Co., Publishers and Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"You deserve well of the world till you die, and after, but the book trade is just as ungrateful as any republic, and although they may sling an occasional laurel wreath out your way, the silver buzzard and the golden eagle 'flieth not so fast nor so far.' There is but one Directory of the Book and Stationery Trade and that is Caspar's."—P. F. VAN EVEREN, New York.

"It is just splendid. The most complete book of the kind we have seen."—J. H. KURZENKNABE & SONS, Harrisburg, Pa.

"I am greatly pleased with your Directory. It is the best work of the kind ever issued and deserves a large sale."—NATURAL SCIENCE PUBLISHING CO., New York.

"It seems more complete than anything of the kind I have seen before."—J. B. MARTINDALE, Chicago.

"We like it very much, and we don't know but what it is the best thing of the kind we have ever seen."—P. R. McCARGO & Co., Boston.

"Am very grateful to you for the conscientious care and painstaking effort in preparing so valuable and so complete a work. Be kind enough to enter my name, and mail me all addenda sheets in future, and do not fail to notify me of any new project in this line you may engage in."—Geo. H. COLBY, Bookseller, Lancaster, N. ## NOTES IN SEASON.

D. C. HEATH & Co. have just published for the directors of the Old South Studies a translation of the "Constitution of Switzerland," by Prof. Albert B. Hart, of Harvard University, with careful historical and bibliographical notes.

P. BLAKISTON, SON & Co. will publish at once a new Medical Dictionary, by George M. Gould, A.B., M.D. It will be a compact one-volume book, containing several thousand new words and definitions, collected from recent medical literature, and elaborate and useful tables of the bacilli, leucomaines, ptomaines, micrococci, etc.; of the arteries, nerves, etc., and of the mineral springs of the U. S., together with other collateral information.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just issued the second volume of "What I Remember," by the octogenarian novelist Thomas Adolphus Trollope, the elder brother of the late Anthony Trollope. The first volume, which was published about two years ago, closed with the death of Mr. Trollope's first wife in 1865; the new volume covers the period from that date to the year 1889. Among the well-known people with whom the reader becomes acquainted in these pages are Liszt, Von Bülow, General Sheridan, King Humbert, Pope Leo, Salvini, Ristori, Cardinal McCloskey, Jenny Lind, Lanciani, and Holman Hunt.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING CO. have just issued "The Pope and the New Era," by William T. Stead, the letters from the Vatican written 1889, which have appeared in many leading periodicals and newspapers in which the question is asked: "Can the Holy See be relied upon as an effective moral force in the solution of the social, economical, and political problems that must be settled in one way or another by us and by our children?" "David Todd," by David MacLure, a romance of the life and loving of a Scotch clergyman; and "Tin-Types Taken in the Streets of New York," a collection of sketches of metropolitan life, by Lemuel Ely Quigg, with illustrations by Harry Beard of many scenes and characters that are familiar to New Yorkers.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish next month a work by the venerable Dr. Martineau, entitled "The Seat of Authority in Religion." The work is said to represent the author's attempt to make clear to himself the ultimate ground of pure religion in the human mind, and the permanent essence of the religion of Christ in history. Its scope is best indicated by the titles of the books into which it is divided, viz.: Authority Implied in Religion; Authority Artificially Misplaced; Divine Authority Intermixed with Human Things; Severance of Undivine Elements from Christendom; The Divine in the Human. The work is addressed not to philosophers or scholars, but to educated persons interested in the results of modern thought. They will also publish about the same time William O'Brien's historical novel, "When We Were Boys," and Marlon Crawford's new novel.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GEORGE H. WATKINS, of the publishing firm of Brown, Thurston & Co., of Portland, Me., was found dead in his room in the United States Hotel, on the evening of the 6th inst. He was to have been married that evening to Miss Mary Bain, daughter of Captain James Bain, of Portland. The guests had assembled in the house to be occupied by the couple, where the marriage ceremony was to be performed, when the announcement was made that Mr. Watkins was ill and the ceremony must be postponed. Later the sad news was broken to Miss Bain and the guests. Mr. Watkins was apparently as well as usual, but during the day his friends were unable to find him. He was supposed to be about the city, and no alarm was felt until the hour for the wedding approached. Then the room was entered and it was learned that Mr. Watkins was dead. The cause of death was hemorrhage from the lungs or stomach. It is supposed death occurred during Wednesday night. Mr. Watkins was 40 years old. He was a native of New York State.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; in the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Abbot, Francis Ellingwood. The way out of Agnosticism; or, the philosophy of free religion. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., [1890.] c. '89, '90. 10+83 p. D. cl., $1.

Papers addressed "to those who, though able and willing to think, have been distressed or dismayed by the seeming inability of theistic writers in this age to meet and defeat Agnosticism on its own professed ground—the ground of science and philosophy. By a wholly new line of reasoning, drawn exclusively from those sources, this book aims to show that in order to refute Agnosticism, and establish enlightened theism, nothing is now necessary but to philosophize that very scientific method which Agnosticism barbarously misunderstands and misuses."

*In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

Clarke, Hugh A. The Scratch Club. Phil., The Poet-Lore Co., 223 S. 38th St., [1890.] c. '89. 2-140 p. S. pap., 75 c.

Under the title of "The Scratch Club," the author has given a lively record of the meetings of an imaginary group of musicians, who discuss music and kindred subjects, and tell stories, some grave, some gay. Musical taste in America, Handel's "Messiah," Beethoven's "Aurora" sonata, music in the public schools and in the churches, international copyright and bad music, are some of the subjects touched upon.

Olerfayt, Paul. Almanach Californien à l'usage des Français. 1890. San Francisco, Cal., Louis Grégoire & Co., [1890.] 131 p. D. pap., 35 c.

Fyffe, C. A. A history of modern Europe. In 3 v. V. 3, from 1848 to 1878. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1890. 5+572 p. O. cl., $2.50.

"Mr. Fyffe now deals with the Revolution of 1848, the establishment of the Second Empire in France, the Crimean War, the creation of the Italian kingdom, the rise of Prussia to ascendancy in Germany, the war between France and Germany, the war between Russia and Turkey, and the Treaty of Berlin. The most interesting portion of the present volume is, in our opinion, that which relates to the origin, and the circumstances which surrounded the outbreak, of the war of 1870."—London Athenæum.

*Georgia. Supreme ct. Reports of cases in law and equity. Parts of Oct. term, 1888, and March term, 1889. V. 82. Peeples and Stevens, reprints. Atlanta, Ga., J. P. Harrison & Co., prs., 1890. c. 17+882 p. O. shp., $5.

Gibbon, C. Was ever woman in this humor wooed? N. Y., Frank F. Lovell & Co., [1890.] 193 p. D. (Lovell's international ser., no. 48.) pap., 30 c.

Lady Bevan and her six-year-old boy learn in the first chapter of the death of Sir Hubert Bevan, the husband and father, who had always had a passion for African exploration. The news is brought by his friend and companion, Colonel Quinton, who loses but little time in the wooing of the widow. Several strange events create a suspicion of foul play in the death of Sir Hubert, and an exciting, dramatic story is revealed step by step, in which Col. Quinton is deeply implicated.

*Godwin, H. C. Railroad engineers' field-book and explorers' guide. N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1890. 12°, mor. flaps, $2.50.

Greer, D. H., D. D. The historical Christ, the moral power of history. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1890. c. 94 p. S. (The Bedell lectures, 1889.) cl., $1.

Two lectures delivered by the rector of St. Bartholomew's Church, N. Y., on the Bedell foundation of the institutions at Gambier, Cleveland, Ohio.

Guthrie, Arthur. Robertson of Irvine, poet-preacher. N. Y., T. Nelson & Sons, 1890. 5+384 p. por. D. cl., $1.75.

The life of William B. Robertson, who, while he lived, was universally recognized as the poet-preacher of the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland, is contained in this volume. He was born May 26, 1820, near Stirling, and died June 27, 1886. He was for many years pastor of Trinity Church, Irvine, Scotland.

*Hall, Hubert. Court life under the Plantagenets (Reign of Henry the Second); with 5 col. il. and other il. by Ralph Nevill. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 8°, cl., $4.

Hathaway, B. A., comp. The acme declamation-book: containing selections for almost any occasion, and suitable for any age and for either sex. Lebanon, O., The School Supply Co., [1890.] c. '88. 2-175 p. S. pap., 30 c.

Hathaway, B. A. Bad English; or, ungrammatical expressions corrected. Lebanon, O., The School Supply Co., [1890.] c. '89. 2-52 p. T. pap., 30 c.

"A manual of misused expressions occurring daily among all classes, the educated as well as the uneducated, with corrections and principles of English grammar involved; also vulgarisms, slang phrases, etc., pointed out and corrected."

Hearn, Lafcadio. Two years in the French West Indies. N. Y., Harper, 1890. c. 4-431 p. il., D. cl., $2.00.

The introductory paper, "A midsummer trip to the tropics," consists for the most part of notes taken upon a voyage of nearly three thousand miles, accomplished in less than two months. Mr. Hearn's impressions are recorded in the same vivid manner that was so much admired in "Chita." The sketches which compose the bulk of the volume are some of the literary results of a two-years' sojourn in the beautiful island of Martinique. Besides describing the many picturesque types found among the natives, the folk-lore and traditions of the island and its many ethnological problems are thoughtfully dealt with.

*Henry, Victor. A short comparative grammar of Greek and Latin for schools and colleges; authorized tr. from the 2d French ed., by R. T. Elliott, with an introd. note by H. Nettleship. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 12°, cl., $1.90.

*Herodotus. History; tr. into English by G. C. Macaulay. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 2 v., 12°, cl., $4.50.

Hunt, Theodore W. Studies in literature and style. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1890. c. 7+303 p. D. cl., $1.

It is the purpose of these studies to state, discuss, and exemplify the representative types of style with primary reference to the needs of the English literary student. The titles of the studies are: The claims of literary studies; The intellectual style; The literary style; The impassioned style; The popular style; Style and criticism.—The critical style; Prose style and poetry.—The poetic style; Style and satire.—The satirical style; Style and humor.—The humorous style; Matthew Arnold's English style; Emerson's English style; Independent literary judgments. The author is professor of English philology and discourse in the Princeton College of N. J.

Isaacs, Jorge. María: a South American romance; tr. by Rollo Ogden; an introd. by T. A. Janvier. N. Y., Harper, 1890. c. 12+302 p. S. cl., $1.

This romance has been a household story in South America during the past twenty years. It was first published in 1867, and has gone through a number of editions. The simplicity of its theme and beauty of style have made many critics compare it to "Atala" and "Paul and Virginia." The side which appeals most to readers is its beautiful and absolutely truthful portrayal of life in a Spanish-American home. Jorge Isaacs is the son of an English Jew married to a Spanish woman. He was born in the town of Cali, in the state of Cauca, and when but a lad found a home in Bogotá.

J., J. C. Cleopatra. San Francisco, Cal., The Bancroft Co., 1889. c. '89. 8 p. sq. S. pap., 25 c.

Two short poems on the "Meeting of Anthony and Cleopatra" and on the "Death of Cleopatra."

Jerome, Jerome K. Three men in a boat (to say nothing of the dog); il. by A. Frederics. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1890. 2+298 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A trip on the Thames River, occupying the two weeks' summer vacation of three London business men—and a dog—is most humorously described. The author is a rising English writer, his style being fresh and unconventional and extremely funny.

*King, J. E., and Cookson, C. An introduction to the comparative grammar of Greek and Latin. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 16°, cl., $1.40.

Symington, Maggie. Seed, flower, fruit; Sunday chats with little folks. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1890. 4+210 p. D. cl., $1.25.

These little talks are quite practical, although a little story is interwoven with each by way of illustration. Under "Seed," the topics are: Playthings, hands, little feet, learning lessons, patterns, clean clothes, etc. Under "Flower," hunger, thirst, meat, drink, what food gives, little weeds, etc. Under "Fruit," the fruit formed, young trees, the stone in the plum, keeping the fruit, etc.

Taylor, C. H. J. Whites and blacks; or, the question settled. Atlanta, Ga., Ja. P. Harrison & Co., printers, 1889. c. 5+52 p. por. D. pap., 25 c.

Mr. Taylor is a young lawyer of Atlanta, and late U. S. Minister to Liberia. He writes dispassionately and intelligently of the negro race in this country, to which he belongs. He does not believe that immigration, amalgamation, disfranchisement, or extermination will solve the problem of their future. They are here to stay, and we must make the best of them. He offers a great deal of good advice to his people and some suggestions. Among the latter are, that they should divide their vote and if colonization should be insisted upon, that the white people should be asked to leave Louisiana, Mississippi, and South Carolina, where the colored people are in the majority.

Thomas, Annie. The Kilburns: a novel. N. Y., Frank F. Lovell & Co., [1890.] 3-249 p. D. (Lovell's international ser., no. 64.) pap., 30 c.

A pleasant English novel of the familiar type; the scene is laid in a country town, and there are the usual incidents of deaths and marriages, the leading event being the substitution of a false heir for the real one to a title.

*Thucydides. Fourth book; a revision of the text by W: Gunion Rutherford, illustrating the principal causes of corruption in the mss. of this author. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 8°, cl., $2.

Torrey, Bates. Practical typewriting; by the all-finger method which leads to operation by touch; arranged for self-instruction, school use, and lessons by mail. N. Y., Fowler & Wells Co., 1889. c. 64 p. O. cl., $1.

Containing also general advice, typewriter expedients, and information relating to allied subjects.

Trollope, T: Adolphus. What I remember. V. 2. N. Y., Harper, 1890. 2+337 p. il. D. cl., $1.75.

The first volume of Mr. Trollope's reminiscences was published in 1888. That covered some fifty years of English literary life, extending back from 1865. The present narrative takes up his story at that date and carries it to the present. It is more autobiographical than the first volume, entering fully into the details of Mr. Trollope's life after his second marriage, and of his wanderings through Italy, Germany, and Switzerland. It abounds in many charming chapters of description, and many acute observations of the people and conditions of various countries.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 15, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

DUTIES ON BOOKS.

THE very able plea for the abolition of duties on books made by a Tribune correspondent and quoted in full elsewhere in this issue, comes in close coincidence with the action of the Association of State Librarians to bring about free transportation by mail between State libraries, free transportation between libraries and departments of foreign governments, lower postage in general and the exemption from duty of books imported for State libraries. It is not the province of this journal, nor is it our intention, to enter into political discussion, and the tariff is certainly "in politics" as in fact "the paramount issue." But the publishing trade has to face the fact that there are to-day many thinking, patriotic Americans, of various political bias and prejudices, who object strenuously to the "tax on knowledge" imposed by our government on the scholar, collector, or other purchaser of foreign books. Every country in the world, they say, with the exception of half a dozen insignificant ones (with which the United States certainly would not care to be classed), encourages education by admitting books and works of art free of duty. Nor is the tax on literature and art, in the countries excepted, restrictive by any means, but it is exceedingly low and levied only as a part of a general scheme of taxing everything with the purpose of relieving impoverished state treasuries. No such excuse, they say, exists in this country. Furthermore, it is not even an important source of revenue. It is shown by the statistics quoted that the sum realized from duties on books sent through the mails (in which way probably the bulk of books for which exemption is claimed is sent) is much less than the salaries, rent, stationery, and postage required in collecting it.

Certainly the book trade does not desire to oppose the spread of knowledge, for on that it feeds. But one fact thrusts itself upon the trade, at least upon the publishing portion of it—that a repeal of the duty upon books only, would put the American producer at an absolute disadvantage compared with his foreign competitor. So long as the American publisher must pay duty or the equivalent of duty on the paper, ink, type, etc., etc., from which his book is made, so long must he be at a disadvantage if the final and finished product, but not the material for it, comes in free. The publishing trade includes Republicans, Democrats and Mugwumps, protectionists, tariff reformers and free traders; a large portion would undoubtedly accept, if not promote, a tariff policy of "free books," provided they stood on an even footing with foreign competitors as to their materials, but they would generally agree that to take off duties at the top and not at the bottom would be unjust and unwise. The duty on paper is now scarcely operative, though it has been operative and may be so again, but other duties certainly enhance the price of what the publishers must, directly or indirectly, buy.

Admitting, however, that there are valid reasons for taxing foreign books generally when commercially introduced into this country, there is less justification for imposing a duty on books published by foreign societies and public institutions—catalogues it may be, or reports of proceedings—which have no commercial value and do not enter into trade. It is of course virtually impracticable for the government to discriminate as to the purposes for which a book is imported, whether for review or for sale, and indeed many newspapers make a practice of selling copies sent them for review. The Evening Post would be the first to resent the inquisitorial espionage that this would require. A wider latitude, both in law and in practice, would, however, do no harm to any interest, especially if it were extended to the bookseller—who imports as a convenience to his customer, getting on such books only a fee for his trouble and not a commercial price—as well as to the customer himself. A liberal law, liberally administered, just to all, will be of good and not of harm.

FREE TRANSPORTATION OF BOOKS FOR STATE LIBRARIES.

THE Association of State Librarians at a conference held in St. Louis, May 8-11, 1889, where a majority of the States was represented, adopted a series of resolutions for the improvement, right conduct, and ample support of State libraries, the regulated distribution of public documents, the exchange of duplicates, etc., as well as for assistance from Congress in the direction of free exchange through the mails, lower postage on books, and exemption for State libraries from duties on books imported. A copy of the resolutions has just been sent to the Governors and Superintendents of Public Instruction of all the States, and will be printed in full in the March issue of the Library Journal. We give the following extract touching upon free transportations through the mails, etc., it being of general interest to the book trade.

WHEREAS, The National Government has thus far not given to the State and territorial libraries the aid and assistance which it is desirable should be given, therefore be it

Resolved, That Congress should provide :

1. For free transportation by mail between State libraries.
2. By international arrangement, for free transportation of books and other printed matter between State libraries and departments of foreign governments.
3. For a lower rate of postage on books.
4. That the privilege now enjoyed by the Library of Congress and by societies, colleges, and schools, in the exemption of books from import duties, should be extended to State libraries.

NOTE.—Books addressed to the Library of Congress are carried free through the mails because of the high public utility of this institution. For the same reason the official libraries of the several States should be exempted from postal charges on matter transmitted between them, since securing full sets of the documents of each State in the libraries of other States is a part of national and interstate polity rather than a mere local exigence.

Great difficulty is now experienced and great expense incurred in trying to make exchanges between State libraries and foreign governments. Whatever Congress and the Department of State can do to facilitate exchanges and lessen expense, would benefit individual States and the country.

Reducing postage on books would facilitate diffusion of good literature, and would aid popular education through the libraries by removing what the Librarian of Congress recently characterized as "the present unwise and unjust discrimination against good books, which permits all the cheap libraries of novels to go by mail at one cent a pound, while all other books must pay eight cents a pound, thus putting a government premium upon trash, and taxing the diffusion of knowledge eight times as much as the diffusion of fiction."

Through an apparent oversight, State (and public) libraries are not mentioned in the statutes as entitled to import books free of duty. The rulings of the Treasury Department allow libraries exemption from duties, but the law should be made so explicit as not to leave libraries dependent on the rulings of the Treasury, or the decisions of collectors of customs.

ANOTHER OBJECTION TO INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.—Frontier Statesman, Number One: "Say, Turpin, I understand that this international copyright movement is a conspiracy against the piratical publishing business."—Frontier Statesman, Number Two: "Well, if it is, I am opposed to it. The only novels worth reading are the pirate stories, and if they stop them, my novel-reading is at an end."—Puck.

DUTIES ON BOOKS.

AMONG the questions with which Congress has to deal in readjusting the tariff, one of the most important is that of duties on books. Other questions relate to money; this to education. The loss of a few dollars to the Treasury, or to a certain class of manufactures, is not to be compared with that which the people sustain by obstructing the avenues to intelligence and thought.

As the world is now organized, books are necessities of life, or even more, they are necessities of civilization. They are to the mind what food is to the body, and without them healthful growth is retarded or wholly checked. Nations are to-day respected more for their advancement in wisdom and in the arts that embellish life than for their armaments, and this advancement may be measured by the diffusion among the people of books and artistic objects. The wants of bare necessity are limited in number and cost. Those of civilization are of infinite and increasing variety. Knowledge, science, and taste develop new wants that give impetus to manufactures and set in motion the wheels of commerce.

In the year 1888, as reported by the Commissioner of Education, the expenditures for common schools in the United States reached the vast sum of $115,103,886. We willingly submit to this outlay because we believe that education is the corner-stone of our free institutions. And yet while with one hand we spend our money lavishly to make knowledge free to all, with the other we close the door against it by taxing the very books which we have taught our children and ourselves to read. We seem anxious that our people should have a smattering of knowledge, but if they seek to go further and become truly learned, we refuse their desires by means that have no parallel in the history or practice of mankind, civilized or savage.

What is acquired in our common schools is not education, but only the tools of knowledge, and success in life depends largely on our keeping these tools sharp and using them efficiently. It is a great error to suppose that after spending a few years at school the work of education is finished. It is, in fact, only begun, and the whole after-life should be spent in completing the structure of which only the foundation was laid in youth.

We seem to care less for our offspring than for our cattle. Animals for breeding purposes are, under our tariff, admitted free. We think it important to improve the bodies of our helpers because they have a computable value, but we do not concern ourselves to improve the minds of our children by giving them untrammelled access to the best wisdom of the world.

Our policy in respect to the tariff on books is without precedent among men, past or present. A few of the foreign nations are so impoverished that, in order to raise the revenue needed for their support, they are forced to tax everything imported, books with the rest, but the policy of taxing these articles as a protective measure has never been adopted in any country but ours. Every government in Europe except Spain admits books free, even Russia, self-centred and intolerant as she is of foreign ideas. They are free in Sweden, Norway, Great Britain, the German Empire, Austria, Belgium, and France. Even China and Japan, nations which we in our pride and self-conceit call uncivilized, and whose people we shut out from our shores, have sufficient intelligence to make a tariff that, in this respect, should put us to the blush.

The only nations in which duties on books are charged are the following (see Senate Document, 1884 "Foreign Tariffs"):

Liberia.

Hayti, 1 to 20 cents per volume.

Mexico, about 40 cents per 100 pounds.

Argentine Republic, 5 per cent.

Guatemala, 10 per cent.

Spain, about 80 cents per 100 pounds.

Of these six countries, two are peopled by negroes, all are poor and burdened with debt, and some of them are only recently emerging from the dominion of superstition and misrule. But bad as their financial and intellectual condition may be, they do not try to make it worse by imposing a restrictive tax on knowledge. Their duties are small, while our rich and powerful nation with an overflowing Treasury exacts a sum two and a half times as high as the highest of them, and greater than that of all the nations of the earth added together.

It may be stated that in all the European countries above named, paintings and engravings are also free, except in Spain, where a duty of one peseta on each picture is exacted. The painting of Turner, recently purchased by a public-spirited amateur in New York, might travel free through every custom-house in Europe, until it reached Spain, where it would be subjected to a tariff of exactly 20 cents. When it reaches the United States it will be weighted with a duty 150,000 times as great, or say $30,000.

This is not a case of patriotism, or of protection. Ours is not the only nation that has adopted the policy of encouraging domestic industry. Germany, Austria, France, and Russia are thoroughly protective, but they are able to see that there are other things worth possessing besides money. Expression of the mind and improvement of taste are more honorable to a people than the miserly occupation of heaping one dollar on another. The worst thing that can happen is to let our people discover that protection and education in this country cannot coexist. If we are compelled to choose between the two the issue will not be always doubtful.

Our policy is so opposed to that of every other enlightened nation that the difference cannot be harmonized. If we are right all the rest of the world must be wrong; there is none to imitate or apologize for us. We must accept the pity or censure of mankind, and submit to be looked upon as a superficial, sordid people, devoid of taste and culture, caring little for literature, art, or science, and wholly absorbed in the ignoble pursuit of getting money.

It was not always so. In the first tariff of 1789, framed by the wise men who won our independence and who founded our political institutions, books were made free, and they so continued for nearly half a century. The law of 1847 imposed a duty of only 8 per cent., and this continued down to 1861, when the war tariff raised the rate to 15 per cent. It is only since 1883 that the present rate of 25 per cent. has been in force.

The Tariff Commission appointed by President Arthur in 1882 recommended that the then existing duty of 15 per cent. be continued, and that books by foreign authors, not reprinted in the United States, for use and not for sale, should be free. In the face of this report the duty was nearly doubled.

By our present law books, etc., are admitted free when imported for any philosophical, literary, or religious society, or for any college, school, etc. Why? If we say it is because they are necessary aids to education, then the whole argument for the duty falls to the ground, unless we take the position that although education is a good thing, protection is better. Surely it is more useful that a man should own a volume than that he should be compelled to resort to a public library to look at it. If it is his own he can study it until he has mastered its contents, but libraries are few, and to most readers inaccessible.

Our existing tariff does, it is true, admit without duty books that are over twenty years old, and with that we are told to be content. But this concession is an insignificant matter, for these amounted last year to only 12 per cent. of the books imported. (Report of Bureau of Statistics.) Moreover, old books are not the ones we most need. This is an age of intense movement, when even steam and electricity are too slow. Twenty years count for more to us than a century did to our ancestors. The student, the scientist, the chemist, the physician, the engineer, and even the skilled workman, must keep up with the time, and he can only do this by informing himself of what the latest and most advanced thinkers and workers are doing, not in America alone, but in the world beyond. It is not enough that we should have what all the rest of mankind knew twenty years ago. Within that period the wonderful discoveries in chemistry, dyeing, photography, steam, electricity, explosives, machinery, etc., have revolutionized the industry of the nations and altered the map of the earth, and yet our tariff hinders us from reading of these things in foreign works, until the knowledge has ceased to be practical or useful. If we thirst for knowledge of Pasteur, Koch, Darwin, or Huxley, we are told that we must satisfy ourselves with Bacon, Addison, Schiller, and Jeremy Taylor.

When our present tariff was under consideration in 1883, it was proposed to exempt from duties the publications of foreign governments and learned and scientific societies. As these works are not published to sell, have no market price, and are never reprinted, American industry could in no way be injured, and it would seem to be impossible to object to their admission. Yet the measure was voted down by legislators who were "opposed to importing our literature or our politics from foreign countries." This happened not in Russia or in China, but in our American Congress.

Our imperative need is that all books shall be absolutely free. If we tax any, let it be those that are over rather than those that under twenty years old. But if we are not wise enough to make all books free we can at least add to the free list "books, maps, and engravings specially imported, not more than one copy for the use of any individual, and not for sale; books in any other language than English, and books in the English language more than one year old, and not republished in the United States."

Illustrated books and engravings especially should be admitted free since they are never republished, and they are of infinite value for industrial as well as artistic purposes.

The above law could harm no one, and it would seem as if it ought to meet with no opposition in any quarter. The clause relating to books "specially imported" would apply to an inconsiderable number of objects, but it would greatly aid thousands of students and scientific men who are not generally overburdened with money. Importers should be pleased, for they would gain by an increase of trade. If, however, they object, they should be promptly informed that they have no business to interfere, for we do not make tariffs for their profit. The tariff is for the producer, the workman, and not for the trader or middleman. It would be a novel thing to levy duties to benefit the importer, and there can be no good reason why the government should tax knowledge 25 per cent. in order that some tradesman may be able to tax it another 25 per cent.

It might be objected that it would be difficult in practice to ascertain what books had not been reprinted, but this is purely an imaginary difficulty. Probably 90 per cent. of the volumes so imported would be such that the average customs officer could readily decide, from the subject, the place of publication, or other characteristics, whether the book is reprinted or not. As to the remaining 10 per cent., in case of doubt the oath of the receiver might be demanded, which would leave only an infinitesimal margin for error. But if a few mistakes should occur, the loss would be trifling compared with the benefits. The whole question finally resolves itself into this: Shall we consult the wishes of a few re-printers of a few foreign books, or the earnest needs of 60,000,000 of people? It is for Congress to decide.

One word as to the duties on books by mail. of all petty annoyances this is the worst. In 1884 the number of book packages coming by mail from abroad was 60,225, the duties were $10,497, an average of 17 cents per package. This sum was less than the salaries, rent, stationery, and postage required in collecting it, so that the only profit the government gained was in harassing 60,000 of its citizens. There is probably no tax levied by any government in the world which is collected in such small sums, from so many different people, and which is more than absorbed in the cost of collection.

From the New York Evening Post, March 10.

LANGUAGE fails us when it comes to characterizing our abominable tariff on knowledge. Here is the third volume of Mr. B. F. Stevens' splendid series of "Facsimiles of MSS. in European Archives Relating to America," just arrived. The undertaking is one proper for the Government of the United States, and would be an honor to it. In default of its initiative or patronage, how ought the government—i.e., the people—of this country to regard the patriotic American who takes the risk of the enterprise commercially? Might it not fitly send a national ship for the volumes, if that were needed as a token of its appreciation? On the contrary, it does what it can to exclude them, and to insure Mr. Stevens' failure to recover his outlay. It imposes (except in the case of public libraries) a duty on each portion of the work, and increases for any collector or student the subscription price by one-quarter. There was question whether the "Facsimiles" might not come in as periodical issues. At home we allow the Pirates' Own libraries to circulate through the mails at periodical rates of postage. But mark the determining consideration: these precious "Facsimiles" must be somehow enveloped in order to avoid destruction in transit, and they are actually placed in "substantial boxes made of cloth and leather," thus, though they are unstitched, being assimilated to books.

Hence the Treasury finds that the true (and we may as well relieve ourselves by saying the infernal) intent of the law is, that a tax should be clapt upon American—not foreign—disinterestedness, devotion, arduous application, skill, scholarly research, and popular knowledge of the history of these United States.

At the same time we receive from a London firm an inquiry how to send to this journal the catalogue of an important English library without making us chargeable with the duty. We are obliged to reply, with shame, that we know of no way, though the work has of course no commercial value, is beyond the dreams of American pirates or the jealousy of American paper-makers, type-founders, printers, and publishers. We could add that, as a critical journal, we are constantly in receipt of foreign works for review, on which we regularly pay a tax according to the caprice of the postal customs; yet it is only by our examining and reporting upon such works that our public can (for the most part) learn of their existence and value. We can give still another instance, of a different class, within our cognizance, where the son of an eminent American was obliged to pay a paltry tax on a volume bestowed by a foreign author by way of homage to his ancestor.

COALITION OF SCHOOL-BOOK PUBLISHERS.

REPLYING to an inquiry as to what truth, if any, there is in the various reports concerning the formation of a School-Book Trust, Messrs. Ivison, Blakeman & Co., said to a representative of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY on Thursday that there was no truth whatever in these statements in so far as what is generally understood as the "trust" principle is involved, notwithstanding the most positive assertions to the contrary. Surprise was expressed that apparently reputable people and newspapers should make such unwarranted allegations against honorable houses engaged in legitimate pursuits. There has been a constant effort for several years, on the part of some of the larger school-book publishing houses to introduce better and more economical methods in the conduct of their affairs, but the expenses have kept on growing, increasing year by year, until finally it looked as if they would eventually destroy the business altogether. This condition of things has seemed to point to a closer relationship between these houses, but no combination which would be in the nature of a monopoly or in any way odious to the community has been contemplated for one moment; on the contrary, the natural result would be a reduction in the price of books. If there is to be any outcome at all (and it is quite probable), as a result of these considerations, it will simply be a corporation under State laws, the stock of which will be held by the present owners, and it will be practically under the same management, and carried forward on the same principles which apply to such concerns as the Century Company, the J. B. Lippincott Company, the American News Company, the University Publishing Company, etc. "You may say for us, that should we go into this enterprise we shall do so because we think it for the best interests of our business and because it is a perfectly legitimate and honorable method of doing business, and we shall fully advertise our plans and purposes as we solicit the patronage of the public." This firm further state that their house has been known to the public—especially that part of it which comes in touch with the public school system of the country—for over half a century, and that they have confidence that the same rights and privileges will be accorded to them by the public in the management of their business as is accorded to other manufacturing and industrial enterprises, whether operating as corporations or firms.

The corporation, in case arrangements are completed, will consist of Ivison, Blakeman & Co., Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., D. Appleton & Co., and Barnes & Co.

OLD BOOK CHAT.

A WATER-COLOR drawing by Thackeray, considered one of the best efforts of his genius, sold for £20 recently in London.

THE report which created so much excitement among "old" bookmen that Lord Spencer's library was to be sold, is entirely unfounded.

SOME original charts, drawn by the great Captain Cook, including the first one made of Otaheite, were sold in the Brevoort collection at Bangs'. They fetched less than a dollar apiece!

IT looks as though British collectors are becoming poor, or Dickens is going out of fashion. The library edition of his works, presented and inscribed by the author, at the late sale of Wilkie Collins' books, brought only £14, and a first edition of "Pickwick" brought but £3 15s.

NEW YORK is sadly in want of a "Quaritch"—a recognized head to the second-hand business. The man is here no doubt—his making rests with the auctioneers, but the purse-strings of the book auctioneers are held more tightly in New York than in London, and the bookseller is not encouraged to plunge.

THERE is much complaint in the trade of the high charges of auctioneers for their services. From some instances which we have heard, the complaints are far from groundless. Legally auctioneers are entitled to too little—actually by means of special contracts they get far too much. The English houses, Sothebys, Putticks and Hodgsons, the leading book auctioneers of London, get along very nicely on 10 per cent. without charging for cataloguing, except in special instances. I believe where books do not fetch £5 per page a charge is made. Now the London houses mentioned pay in proportion nearly as much in rent and wages as the New York auctioneers—why cannot the latter sell for an inclusive charge of 10 per cent.?

You called attention to a stupid and apocryphal account of the adventures attending some early editions of Shelley's works, etc., which appeared in the Evening Post a week or two back. Since then an article evidently inspired from the same source has been printed in the Morning Journal. As might be expected it is full of misstatements, some of which are ludicrous in their sublime audacity. The writer speaks of a collector who goes in for the "best Shakespeare and Shelley mss." Think of it! the "'best' Shakespeare manuscripts." We would be content with one of the "worst," and at a pretty high figure too. Grolier "editions," the "Quaritch sale," and some misstatements about the Columbus letter in the Barlow sale, are other remarkable expressions in the article. I am afraid the Journal readers as a rule do not care much for old books anyway. But why fill them up with such stuff as that?

I MUST confess to a feeling of disappointment at a first hasty inspection of the Hamilton Cole sale catalogue. The books are hardly up to the high standard that has been claimed for them, and the catalogue, though printed by DeVinne, is not as free from typographical errors as it ought to be. The presswork on it, however, is well done. Although the Cole collection has been overestimated, it is by no means unworthy of attention—more so when the circumstances of its collecting are considered. Mr. Cole, I am told by a friend of his, began collecting when quite young, and relinquished it after a comparatively short time. He never parted with a book, and the catalogue, therefore, contains all his "mistakes," which collectors all more or less make. On the other hand, the purchases of his more matured taste are very charming books. Those items which will appear of the most interest are, among printed books, as follows: (Lot 49), a fine copy of the "Stultifera Nauis" of Sebastian Brandt, the rare edition of 1506. It contains over a hundred most remarkable and vigorous wood-engravings, and forms one of that class of books which American collectors of these latter days are so eager to possess. A magnificent set of Brunet on large paper (66) demands attention, as also a large-paper copy (80) of Burton's "Book-Hunter," of which only twenty-five were printed. Coryat's "Crudities" (122) is one of those books hardly well known enough among collectors here to command a high price. It brings about £50 in London, however, and is a very interesting book. The collection of books relating to the "Danse des Morts" is a good one, though not of that unique interest which has been claimed for it. Very beautiful indeed is the set of Dibdin's Works, one of the first, it is safe to say, in this country. It comprises, with two exceptions, every book in which Dibdin had a part. The fifty-six volumes are bound in full crimson morocco, with uncut edges, by Matthews. Fabian's "Chronicle" of 1559; Granger's "History," with extra plates; Holland's "Heræologia Anglica," with all the beautiful portraits; no less than six copies on large paper of Ireland's "New York Stage," and a splendid series of Peignot's works, I can do no more than briefly mention. Then again a full copy of the Nuremberg Chronicle; the first, second, and third editions of the "Hypnerotomachia" of Francesco Colonna, are also among treasures that would overrun my space with any account of them. The "gem" of the sale is undoubtedly a copy of Pickering's edition of "Walton and Cotton's Angler," which has been extended to six folio volumes by the insertion and "inlaying" of a number of valuable and beautiful prints. I have purposely refrained from speaking of the manuscripts in the above collection, as a description of them would serve no useful purpose, and would fill far too much space. Suffice it to say they are, though, a small yet valuable and beautiful collection. The sale commences April 7, and will occupy Messrs. Bangs & Co. three days.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

JEAN INGELow is writing her reminiscences for Longman's Magazine.

WILLIAM SHARP has finished his "Life of Browning," in writing which he has received assistance from the poet's family, and which is to be published as the April volume of the Great Writers' Series.

MR. GLADSTONE has now all but finished his articles on the Old Testament for Good Words. The first, on "The Impregnable Rock of Holy Scripture," will appear in the April number, and this will be followed by others on "The Creation Story," "The Mosaic Legislation," "The Psalms," "The Method of the Old Testament," etc.

The Paper World for March contains an interesting sketch of the Bellamy brothers—Charles J. and Edward—and their struggles to establish the Springfield Daily News, which was finally made successful by the indomitable pluck and perseverance of Mr. Charles J. Bellamy. In alluding to Charles J. Bellamy's latest book, "An Experiment in Marriage," the writer of the sketch mentions the fact that this book does not embody Mr. Bellamy's own views and preferences, but that it is intended as "a supplement to and commentary on his brother's famous dream of nationalism, in which the family and the relations of the sexes are touched so gingerly. . . . He is not a Socialist, and totally condemns the aim of the Socialists to destroy the marriage relation and the family."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

SWAN SONNENSCHN & Co. are adding to their Social Science Series a volume entitled, "Prince Bismarck and State Socialism in Germany," by Mr. W. H. Dawson.

IN the Lake Shore disaster of the 6th inst. Mr. J. U. Coombes, of J. B. Lippincott Co., fractured a rib, and was besides badly bruised and cut. At last report he was at the Iroquois, Buffalo, as comfortable as the care of good friends in the trade could make him, and hoping to be able to get home before the end of this week.

"A BITTER BIRTHRIGHT," a new novel by Dora Russell, will be published serially by the Tillotson Syndicate next month. From the same house will issue in May "A Mint of Money," by Geo. Manville Fenn, and in July William Black's new story. The latter has not yet been christened, but it is announced that it will deal incidentally with certain aspects of Socialism.

MEYER'S KONVERSATIONS-LEXIKON (4th edition), published by the Bibliographisches Institut of Leipzig, is now complete. The Börsenblatt in noticing this work states that it required 817,000 reams of paper to print the complete work. This amount of paper if laid one sheet upon the other would form a pile more than four times as high as the highest mountain in Europe—Mont Blanc. So says our German contemporary; we haven't had time nor a tape long enough to verify his figures.

THE HAMILTON BANK of New York City has just issued an attractive pamphlet of forty-two pages, giving an account of the duel between Aaron Burr and Alexander Hamilton at Weehawken in 1804. It comprises the correspondence between Burr and Hamilton and between the seconds, with a contemporaneous newspaper account of the duel, Hamilton's will, and the paper written by Hamilton before the encounter explaining what he called his "conduct, motives, and views." The compiler, Mr. Irving C. Gaylord, has supplied the notes and other explanations necessary to make a connected history.

JUDGE BEACH, on the 10th inst., on the motion of Roger Foster, attorney for George Munro, entered judgment in the Supreme Court in accordance with the decision of the General Term declaring that the word Sleuth is a trade-mark of the plaintiff and owned exclusively by him, and perpetually enjoining Erastus F. Beadle and William Adams "from using the word Sleuth, either alone or in conjunction with any other words, as part of the title of any publication or series of publications, or as the pseudonym of the author of any publication or series of publications, or as the name of any character in any publication."

WM. CUSHING's admirable collection of "Anonyms," published at his own expense, has now been sold with the exception of nineteen sets. It is to be hoped that these will be promptly taken up, that the author may be reimbursed for his actual outlay—no profit is hoped for. The library profession, literary workers generally, and the book trade have been greatly benefited by Mr. Cushing's work, and it is but justice that no effort should be spared to secure from loss a man public-spirited enough to undertake such a task. The work will very likely not be reprinted, so that those who want the work will do well to order it without delay.

THE third volume of Stevens' "Fac-similes of Manuscripts in European Archives Relating to America, 1773-83," just ready, continues the subject of the secret intelligence which the British Government obtained through its political agents and spies concerning American affairs, and especially with reference to the negotiations at Paris in 1777 and 1778. Directions are given as to one method of carrying on correspondence, by putting a bottle in a hole at the root of a tree in the Tuileries Garden. The volume contains also accounts of the doings of the American Commissioners, of the employment by the British of the American Capt. Joseph Hynson, and of the capture of despatches to Congress of the American Commissioners. King George had, it seems, a "settled opinion" that the spies were encouraged by Deane and Franklin, and gave intelligence only to deceive.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish this week an entirely new edition of Darwin's "A Naturalist's Voyage Round the World." The extraordinary minuteness and accuracy of Mr. Darwin's observations, combined with the charm and simplicity of his descriptions, have insured the popularity of this book with all classes of readers, and that popularity has even increased in recent years. No attempt, however, has hitherto been made to produce an illustrated edition of this valuable work; numberless places and objects are mentioned and described, but the difficulty of obtaining authentic and original representations of them drawn for the purpose has never been overcome until now. Most of the views given in this work are from sketches made on the spot by Mr. Pritchett (well known by his connection with the voyages of the Sunbeam and Wanderer), with Mr. Darwin's book by his side. Some few of the others are taken from engravings which Mr. Darwin had himself selected for their interest as illustrating his voyage, and which have been kindly lent by his son.

A NATURALIST'S VOYAGE ROUND THE WORLD.

By CHARLES DARWIN, F.R.S.

An entirely new edition, handsomely illustrated, consisting of Views of the Places visited, and Representations of the Animals described. The illustrations are chiefly from Sketches taken on the Spot by R. J. Pritchett.

The extraordinary minuteness and accuracy of Mr. Darwin's observations, combined with the charm and simplicity of his descriptions, have insured the popularity of this book with all classes of readers—and that popularity has even increased in recent years. No attempt, however, has hitherto been made to produce an illustrated edition of this valuable work: numberless places and objects are mentioned and described, but the difficulty of obtaining authentic and original representations of them drawn for the purpose has never been overcome until now.

Most of the views given in this work are from sketches made on the spot by Mr. Pritchett (well known by his connection with the voyages of the Sunbeam and Wanderer), with Mr. Darwin's book by his side. Some few of the others are taken from engravings which Mr. Darwin had himself selected for their interest as illustrating his voyage, and which have been kindly lent by his son.

With Maps and 100 Illustrations. 8vo, cloth. Price, $5.00.

A. C. Armstrong & Son's New Books.

714 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

NOW READY:

History of Art in Sardinia, Judæa, Syria, and Asia Minor.

BY GEORGES PERROT AND CHARLES CHIPIEZ.

Edited by W. ARMSTRONG, B.A., Oxon., with about 400 illustrations. Two vols., imperial 8vo, uniform with "History of Art in Ancient Egypt," "History of Art in Chaldea and Assyria," "History of Art in Phœnicia," etc. Handsomely bound in cloth, $15.50; half levant morocco, $22.50.

This New Work is the fourth in the Series by these distinguished writers on the "History of Ancient Art," the three previous works having achieved remarkable success and being accepted by the Highest Authorities as the Standard Works on the Subjects.

This great history is, in many respects, the most important contribution of modern times to the literature of art and archæology. As it progresses, its value becomes more and more apparent. The illustrations are admirable as illustrative art, and abundant to bring the descriptive text within the comprehension of the ordinary reader, as well as the student. The value of these works to every reader of history, whether of mankind or of what man has produced, consists in the fact that we have here from a scholar of the first rank (and none holds higher rank than Perrot) the results, in digested form, of the extensive contributions of knowledge made by Layard, Rawlinson, Loftus, George Smith, Lenormant, Maspero, Oppert, and a host of other distinguished laborers in the field.

II.

THE UNKNOWN GOD;

Or, Inspiration Among Pre-Christian Races. By C. L. Brace. 8vo, cloth, $2.50.

"This new volume from the author of 'Gesta Christi,' which is already in its fifth thousand, is very welcome. The author, who has something like an ecumenical reputation as a scholar and as an apostolic example of practical Christianity, plants himself in this new work on the broadest ground of catholic thinking and scholarship. We do not know where to turn for another presentation to be compared as to fulness and scholarly adequacy with this."—N. Y. Independent.

III.

REV. JAMES STALKER'S NEW WORK.

IMAGO CHRISTI. The Example of Jesus Christ. With Introduction by Rev. Wm. M. Taylor, D.D. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"This book is sure to have a wide circulation. It is a thoroughly readable book. This topical method of treating the subject has an advantage which will be warmly appreciated. It will be proved a specially useful book in connection with the study of the Life of Christ, and in the Sunday-School Lessons for the year."—Chicago Advance.

IV.

Uniform with "Book-Lover's Library."

STUDIES IN LITERATURE AND STYLE.

By Prof. T. W. Hunt. 12mo, cloth, net, $1.00.

It is the aim of these studies to state and illustrate the fundamental types of styles, with primary reference to the needs of English literary students. The discussion is both philosophical and practical, developed in scholarly and yet popular form, and always in obedience to the high demands of literary art and taste.

3d Thousand of the First Series of

The Salt-Cellars, Proverbs and Quaint Sayings. "A to L." 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Around the Wicket Gate; or, A Friendly Talk with Seekers Concerning Faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Illustrations. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents.

"A story of real life so startling that it is thought to excel in power and pathos even his masterpiece, 'A Fool's Errand.'"

Pactolus Prime.

A Novel. By ALBION W. TOURGÉE, author of "A Fool's Errand," "Figs and Thistles," "Bricks Without Straw," etc., etc. 1 vol., 12mo, new and unique binding, $1.00.

This is perhaps in all respects the most unique, fascinating, irresistible, and yet scathing and profound, of all Judge Tourgée's works. It cuts across American civilization in a new place, with a new knife, and will make some people smart who never thought of being called to answer such accusation, while other types will draw a sigh of relief that they are touched so lightly, and to many more it will come as a vivid, blinding revelation of undeniable facts for the first time clothed with tragedy and pathos. Hardly anything this author has written is destined to have so wide an audience.

EDITION FOR 1890.

"Infinite Riches in a Little Room."

Cassell's Pocket Guide to Europe.

Planned by E. C. STEDMAN, of New York; compiled by EDWARD KING, of Paris; revised by M. F. SWEETSER, of Boston. 1 vol., leather, $1.50.

For accuracy, fulness, legibility of text and maps, compact beauty and usefulness, and very moderate price, the publishers recommend it as the model book of its kind.

The Pope and the New Era.

Being Letters from the Vatican in 1889. By WILLIAM T. STEAD, author of "The Truth About Russia," late editor of the Pall Mall Gazette and editor and founder of The Review of Reviews. 1 vol., 12mo, $1.50.

"With that thirst for knowledge which can only be quenched at fountain-head. Mr. Stead went directly into the house of the Pope to study the inner workings of the Roman Catholic religion."

Orations and After-Dinner Speeches of Chauncey M. Depew

One octavo volume, with portrait, $2.50; édition de luxe, autograph edition. Limited to one hundred (100) numbered copies, signed by the author. With two portraits and bound in half leather, $6.00.

Tin-Types.

Taken in the Streets of New York. A series of stories and sketches portraying many singular phases of Metropolitan life. By LEMUEL ELY QUIGG. With fifty-three illustrations by Harry Beard. 1 vol., 12mo, striking cloth cover, gilt top, $1.50.

"They are of the soil, racy, and they possess all that fascination that goes with stories of life in a great city."

Australian Poets.

1788-1888.

Being a selection of poems upon all subjects written in Australia and New Zealand during the first century of the British Colonization, with brief notes on their author, etc. Edited by DOUGLAS B. W. SLADEN, B.A. 1 vol., 12mo, extra cloth, gilt top, paper label, $2.00.

NEW EDITIONS AT REDUCED PRICE OF THE GREAT SUCCESS OF 1889.

Spring Announcements.

THE HOUSE OF THE WOLFINGS.

A Tale of the House of the Wolfings and all the Kindreds of the Mark. Written in prose and in verse by WILLIAM MORRIS, author of "The Earthly Paradise." Edition de luxe, limited to 500 copies, with photogravure portrait from a recent photograph. Bound in antique style, crown 8vo, $3.00. (Ready.)

This is one of those rare creations of genius which reproduce the life and manners of a remote past and of peoples of a grand kind that civilization cannot assimilate.

THREE TRANSLATIONS BY MISS K. P. WORMELEY.

SONS OF THE SOIL.

By HONORÉ DE BALZAC. Translated by Katharine Prescott Wormeley, 12mo, bound in half russia, $1.50. (Ready.)

FAME AND SORROW,

And Other Stories. By HONORÉ DE BALZAC. Uniform with preceding volumes.

THE BAGPIPERS.

By GEORGE SAND, author of "Mauprat," "The Snow Man," etc. 12mo, half russia, uniform with our edition of "Balzac's Novels," $1.50. (Ready.)

"When it is added that the translator is Miss Katharine Prescott Wormeley, whose translations of Balzac have given her such a high reputation, enough is said to indicate the excellence of the work. George Sand has never been translated by a writer so capable of rendering her spirit and the graces of her style as Miss Wormeley, and a new interest will be awakened in the author of 'Consuelo' by this undertaking."—ALEXANDER YOUNG in Critic.

A REMARKABLE BOOK.

THE FUTURE OF SCIENCE.

By ERNEST RENAN, author of "History of the People of Israel." 1 volume, cloth, 8vo.

This volume is certain to add to the reputation of this great writer, whose former works have shown him to be an original thinker and a man of ideas.

ONE SUMMER'S LESSONS IN PRACTICAL PERSPECTIVE.

Told in the form of a story, for young people, by CHRISTINE CHAPLIN BRUSH, author of "The Colonel's Opera Cloak," "Inside Our Gate." With illustrations. One volume, cloth.

A charming book for young people, instructive and entertaining, and told by an author who is always popular.

ALBRECHT.

A Story by ARLO BATES, author of "A Lad's Love," "Berries of the Brier," etc. 16mo, cloth, $1.00. (Ready.)

"Mr. Arlo Bates has made in 'Albrecht' the latest American contribution to romantic prose fiction of the Germanesque sort, and, if our memory is not sadly at fault, he has surpassed therein any and every effort of our men of letters, dead as well as living."—R. H. STODDARD.

MISS BROOKS.

A Novel. By ELIZA O. WHITE, author of "A Browning Courtship." 16mo, cloth.

A story of Boston life, told in a fresh, interesting way.

I.

God in His World : An Interpretation.

Book I. From the Beginning.—Book II. The Incarnation.—Book III. The Divine Human Fellowship. Pp. xli., 270. Post 8vo, cloth, gilt tops, $1.25.

It is not a theological work, nor in any way controversial. It is a consideration of Nature and Humanity as an unfolding of the Divine life, without reference to any outward authority—a view of the truth of life as unfolded from the life itself—a view in which Christ takes the central place, not only in the Gospel revelation, but also in all true explication of Nature and Society.

II.

Hearn's West Indies.

Two Years in the French West Indies. By LAFCADIO HEARN, author of "Chita," etc. pp. 517. Copiously illustrated. Post 8vo, Cloth, ornamental, $2.00.

This volume contains some of the literary results of a voyage to the island of Martinique and a sojourn there of two years. . . . Mr. Hearn's glowing, vivid style is well suited to the portrayal of the picturesque, half-savage, half-poetic life of the tropics. In an Appendix to the volume are given some Creole melodies.

III.

María : A South American Romance.

By JORGE ISAACS. Translated by ROLLO OGDEN. An Introduction by THOMAS A. JANVIER. 16mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.00. (Uniform with "The Odd Number," by GUY DE MAUPASSANT.)

W. H. Bishop, in Scribner's Magazine for February, says: "'María: Novela Americana' is one of the most charming stories I have ever read, and worthy the leading author of any country. It is an idyl of the valley of Cauca, in Colombia, which would seem a sort of earthly Paradise."

IV.

Trollope's Further Reminiscences.

What I Remember. By THOMAS ADOLPHUS TROLLOPE, author of "Durnton Abbey," "Lindisfarn Chase," "Siren," etc. Vol. II. 12mo, cloth, $1.75. (Uniform in style and price with the first volume.)

Mr. Trollope's first volume extended over a long period, and was devoted to personal and exceedingly entertaining reminiscences of some of the most famous men and women of Europe and America, with whom in his wanderings he had become acquainted. . . . In the second volume he preserves more of what he recollects of places and events. No library in any way devoted to the collection and preservation of current biography can afford to permit itself to forget what he remembers.

Published by HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

 The above works are for sale by all booksellers, or will be sent by HARPER & BROTHERS, postage prepaid, to any part of the United States, Canada, or Mexico, on receipt of the price. HARPER'S NEW CATALOGUE, a descriptive list of over 3000 volumes, sent, postpaid, on receipt of Ten Cents.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; in the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.) D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl. nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights

*American and English corporation cases: a collection of corporation cases, both private and municipal (excepting railway cases), decided in the courts of last resort in the United States, England, and Canada; J. C. Thomson, ed., W: M. McKinney, asst. ed. V. 26. Northport, N. Y., E: Thompson Co., [1896.] c. 5+704 p. O. shp., $4.50.

*American and English railroad cases: a collection of all the railroad cases in the courts of last resort in America and England; J. C. Thomson, ed., W: M. McKinney, asst. ed. V. 39. Northport, N. Y., E: Thompson Co., [1890.] c. 6+740 p. O. shp., $4.50.

Baptist Church. Thirty-two articles of Christian faith and practice: Baptist confession of faith; with Scripture proofs; adopted by the ministers and messengers of the General Assembly which met in London in 1689; with preface by the Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Balt., Md., Wharton, Barron & Co., [1890.] 2-44 p. S. pap., 10 c.

Blake, E. Vinton. The Dalzells of Daisydown. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1890. c. 3+411 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

An American story of home life, school and vacation life. The scene is laid at the old seaside village of Daisydown, in New York City, at Newport, and on the banks of the Hudson. There are many bright descriptions of fox-hunting, riding, rowing, fishing, sailing, etc.

*Brandt, J: L. Turning points; or, great questions for young men and women; with introd. by F. D. Power. Cin., Standard Pub. Co., 1890. c. 225 p. 12°, cl., $1.

Brinton, Dan. G., M.D. Essays of an Americanist. Phil., Porter & Coates, 1890. c. 5-489 p. O. cl., $3.

Many of these articles have never before been published, and others have been collected from many scattered sources and almost rewritten to bring them up to the latest researches in their special field. They are grouped as Pt. 1, Ethnologic and archæologic; Pt. 2, Mythology and folk-lore; Pt. 3, Graphic systems and literature; Pt. 4, Linguistic.

Curtin, Jeremiah. Myths and folk-lore of Ireland. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1890. c. '89. 345 p. il. D. cl., $2.

It is believed that this volume is one of the most valuable contributions which has ever been made to Irish folk-lore. The myth tales it includes were collected personally by the author, during 1887, in the west of Ireland, in Kerry, Galway, and Donegal, and taken down from the mouths of men, who, with one or two exceptions, spoke only Gaelic, or but little English, and that imperfectly. To this is due the fact that the stories are so well preserved, and not blurred and rendered indistinct, as is the case in places where the ancient Gaelic language, in which they were originally told, has perished.

Daniel, J: W. Oration on the life, services, and character of Jefferson Davis; delivered under the auspices of the General Assembly of Virginia, at Mozart Academy of Music, Jan. 25, 1890. Richmond, Va., J. W. Randolph & English, 1890. 3-51 p. O. pap., net, 25 c.

Darwin, C: Journal of researches into the natural history and geology of the countries visited during the voyage round the world of H.M.S. Beagle, under the command of Capt. Fitz Roy, R. N. New ed., with il. by R. T. Pritchett. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. 14+551 p. O. cl., $5.

Mr. Pritchett, who illustrates this edition, made his sketches on the spot, with Mr. Darwin's book by his side. The il. add much to the work, aiding the author's descriptions by actual representations of the most interesting places and objects of natural history referred to.

*Fawcett, Edgar. A daughter of silence: a novel. N. Y., Belford Co., 1890. 12°, cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

*Filippini, Alessandro. The table; how to buy food, how to cook it, and how to serve it. N. Y., C: L. Webster & Co., 1890. 8°, oil-cl., subs., $2.50; full seal rus., $4.50.

God in his world: an interpretation. N. Y., Harper, 1890. c. 42+270 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The publishers say this "is not a theological work, nor in any way controversial. It is a consideration of nature and humanity as an unfolding of the divine life, without reference to any outward authority—a view of the truth of life as unfolded from the life itself—a view in which Christ takes the central place, not only in the gospel revelation, but also in all true explication of nature and society."

*Gould, G: M., M.D. A new medical dictionary. Phil., P. Blakiston, Son & Co., 1890. 520 p. 8°, leath., $3.25; with thumb index, hf. mor., $4.25.

*Gould's (W. R.) lawyers' diary for the year 1890. Pub. annually. N. Y., W. Reid Gould, [1890.] c. 444+53 p. S. cl., $1.

*Grant, G: Monro, ed. Picturesque Quebec; with a preface by Julian Hawthorne; il. by J. Moran, F. B. Schell, Gibson, Ogden, and others. N. Y., Belford Co., 1890. 141 p. 4°, cl., subs., $5; hf. mor., $7.50; full mor., $10.

*Gray, J: Chipman. Select cases and other authorities on the law of property. V. 4. Cambridge, C: W. Sever, 1890. c. 13+841 p. O. cl., net, $5.25.

Great Britain. Reports of state trials. New ser., v. 2, 1823 to 1831; ed. by J: Macdonell. Published under the direction of the state trials committee. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1889. 5+1129 p. por. O. cl., net, $3.50.

This volume contains many reports—some of them hitherto unpublished—of trials for seditious libel. In the appendices are historical documents and law officers' opinions as to important cases.

*Illinois. Supreme ct. Reports of cases; Norman L. Freeman, rep. V. 128, cont. cases in which opinions were filed in April and May, 1889, and some cases in which applications for rehearing were denied at the Mar. and Oct. terms, 1889. Springfield, pr. for the rep., Norman L. Freeman, 1890. c. 767 p. O. shp., $2.25.

*Jacobi, A., M.D. A treatise on diphtheria.

*In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

- N. Y., W: Wood & Co., 1890. 252 p. 8°, cl., $2.
- Maclure, D: David Todd: the romance of his life and loving. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1890.] c. 4+238 p. D. (Cassell sunshine ser., no. 43.) pap., 50 c.
- After fourteen years' ministry in the sleepy little parish of Crosscairn, Scotland, David Todd asks the Squire's daughter in marriage, and is refused. Perceiving shortly where the girl's affections are placed, there comes a great temptation to withhold facts required to make the girl's marriage possible. A study of conscience upon a very light background of every-day incidents.
- Macvane, S. M. The working principles of political economy in a new and practical form: a book for beginners. N. Y., Effingham Maynard & Co., 1890. c. 3-392 p. D. cl., net, $1.
- "The aim of this book is to give, in small compass, a sufficient view of economic doctrine for the ordinary needs of intelligent citizens. I have had two principal motives in writing it. In the first place, I wished to show that the principles of political economy may be developed in such a form as to bring out, more clearly than is done in the standard books, their close and vital connection with every-day industry. In the second place, I wish to suggest some modifications, chiefly in points of detail, [of the conclusions commonly accepted hitherto by the leading economists.]—Preface.

- *North Carolina. Laws and resolutions passed by the general assembly at its session of 1889, begun and held in the city of Raleigh, on Wednesday, the 9th day of Jan., A.D. 1889; to which are prefixed a register of state officers, judiciary, a list of commissioners of affidavits, etc. Pub. by authority. Raleigh, Josephus Daniels, st. pr., 1889. no. c. 38+1119 p. O. hf. shp., $3.50.
- *Noyes, H: D., M.D. A text-book on diseases of the eye. N. Y., W: Wood & Co., 1890. 670 p. il. 8°, cl., $6.; shp., $7.

*Ohio. The verified revised statutes of the state, incl. all laws of a general nature in force Jan. 1, 1890; verified from enrolled copies by Hon. Daniel J. Ryan, secretary of state; ed. and annot. by Rufus B. Smith and Alfred B. Benedict. Cin., The Ohio Valley Co., 1890. c. '89. 2 v. 34+1962; 1963-3384+580 p. O. shp., $12.

*Pennsylvania. Supreme ct. Cases; being reports of all the cases not reported in the state repts., from Oct. 1, 1888, with some prior cases. V. 1. Ed. by Ja. Monaghan, assisted by Albert B. Welmer (et al.) Phil., G: T. Bisel & Co., [1890.] c. 48+810 p. O. shp., $5.50.

*Pennsylvania. Supreme ct. digest, v. 4, cont. abstracts of the decisions, motions, and orders in the supreme court of Pa. for the year 1889; by C: H. Bannard. Phil., T. & J. W. Johnson & Co., 1890. c. 25+425 p. O. shp., $3.50.

*Poe, Edgar Allan. Tales of adventure, mystery, and imagination; with a critical introd. by the editor. N. Y., Ward, Lock & Co., 1890. 550 p. por. and il., 12°, cl., 75 c.; hf. mor., $1.50.

Quigg, Lemuel Ely. Tin-types taken in the streets of New York: a series of stories and sketches portraying many singular phases of metropolitan life; il. by Harry Beard. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1890.] c. 4+297 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The thirteen sketches of as many different types of New York character as seen in the streets are written with point and humor; we have the professional thief, the pawnbroker, the lawyer who advertises for the heirs of a large estate in England, etc., etc. They are all well illustrated.

Reynolds, Mrs. W: Primary class manual: for the use of primary class teachers and scholars. Rev. ed. Chic., C. H. Whiting, 1890. c. 16 p. T. pap., 8 c.

Sensenig, D: M. Numbers universalized: an advanced algebra. Pt. 2. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. c. 7+315-492 p. D. (Appleton's mathematical ser.) cl., $1.25.

Embraces all algebraic subjects usually taught in the preparatory and scientific schools and colleges of this country. For convenience the work is divided into two parts, which are bound separately and together. Pt. 1 is noticed in Weekly Record of P. W., Aug. 25, 1888, [865.]

Shelley, Percy Bysshe. The skylark and Adonais, with other poems; with introd. and explanatory notes by J. W. Abernethy. N. Y., Effingham Maynard & Co., [1890.] c. 46 p. S. (English classic ser., no. 85.) pap., 12 c.

Stead, W: T. The Pope and the new era: being letters from the Vatican in 1889. N. Y., Cassell & Co., 1890. 3-256 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The well-known editor of the Pall Mall Gazette and the author of "The truth about Russia" made a journey to Rome in 1889, with letters to the Vatican from prominent Englishmen. His avowed mission was to find out to what extent the Pope and necessarily the Catholic Church were in sympathy with what he calls the "distinctive characteristics of the new era"—the passing of the world into the hands of the English-speaking people, the reorganization of society on a socialist basis, and the granting of equal rights to women. While he says much that may prove unpleasant to Catholics, on the other side he shows a remarkable fairness in his appreciation of the good points of Catholicism. The general progression of thought and the liberality on public questions to which he testifies is most valuable.

Suttner, A. G. v. Djambek, the Georgian: a tale of modern Turkey, from the German by H. M. Jewett; with an introd. by Mangasar M. Mangasarian. N. Y., Appleton, 1890. 4+258 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 49.) pap., 50 c.

Mainly a love-story, with experiences and incidents comparatively new. The translator is the American consul at Sivas, Turkey. His long residence in Asia Minor enables him to testify to the accuracy of its pictures of social and political life.

*Tyler, B. B. Peculiarities of the disciples: a series of five sermons. Cin., Standard Pub. Co., 1890. c. 72 p. 12°, pap., 25 c.

United States. Treasury Department. Annual report and statements of the chief of the Bureau of Statistics on the foreign commerce and navigation, immigration, and tonnage of the U. S. for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889. Wash., D. C., Government Print. Office, 1890. 122+1002 p. O. cl.

Varney, G. J. A brief history of Maine. 2d ed. Portland, Me., McLellan, Mosher & Co., 1890. c. '88. 5-336 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

*Warren, J. Collins, M.D. The healing of arteries after ligature in man and animals. N. Y., W. Wood & Co., 1890. 184 p. il. 8°, cl., $3.25.

Wendel, F. C. H. History of Egypt. N. Y.,

Appleton, 1890. c. 158 p. map, T. (History primers.) cl., 45 c.

Treats of the history of ancient Egypt from the earliest times to the conquest by Alexander the Great. In preparing the little book, the author's object has been twofold: First, to give to American readers a brief account of Egyptian history, which would be as reliable as the present state of Egyptological science permits; and second, to create a deeper interest in the study of ancient Egypt.

*Wharton, Morton Bryan, D.D. Famous women of the New Testament: a series of popular lectures delivered in the First Baptist Church, Montgomery, Ala. N. Y., E. B. Treat, 1890. 340 p. il. 12°, cl., $1.50.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 22, 1890.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE PRESENT OUTLOOK.

THE announcements of books in preparation and issued for this season, embodied in this number of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, while not so numerous as in previous years, make a fair showing, and, taken all in all, give good hopes for a coming revival in the publishing trade. It seems to us particularly hopeful that the ephemeral lines are dropping out more and more, and that their place is being taken by literature of a better character. The decline is especially noticeable in the department of booklets, which in former seasons almost threatened to swamp the bookseller. For a time this line of goods no doubt proved acceptable to the public and profitable to the trade; but it had its limitations, and found its death in the endless repetition of styles, and, finally, in the numerous cheap imitations. Another hopeful sign is that the individual houses are restricting themselves to fewer books, better books, and better-made books. This applies even to the publishers of the cheap books. We learn that the Lovell combination intend to have a clearing out of their old stock of "twelvemos" and "Poets," and that, after August, the new editions will be better made and sold at better prices—all buyers to have the same advantages.

The general feeling in the trade is encouraging, not only for the present season, but for the whole year. Somehow publishers seem to have awakened to the fact that all is not as it should be in the trade, and they seem to be making an effort in the right direction. In good time, therefore, we hope we shall see our profession take the rank which belongs to it in the commercial world. Two things once established—a fair international copyright law and the proper regulation of discounts—the dawn of a new and brighter day will not be far off.

However, all does not depend upon the publisher alone; the bookseller, also, must awaken to a new sense of duty. Hard as has been his lot, has not much of it been of his own making? Has he been as watchful of his interests as he might have been?—we will not say, ought to have been. Has he not, to single out but one instance, brought upon himself the one abuse under which he now suffers most—the abnormal discount? Has he kept abreast of the times, even, and improved every opportunity offered, and adapted himself to new conditions and methods of doing business? Since the economy of the human body undergoes an entire change at stated periods, is it reasonable to suppose that the economy of trade remains stationary? On the contrary, those of the present generation, especially, have had opportunities of observing the most radical changes in every form of life about them, and must also have learned that those who refuse to keep up with the times must go under. Progress, however, must not be made synonymous with sharp practice. Honesty must be the unchanging basis of the constantly changing conditions as it has been of all successful methods of the past. On this line, then, let our motto be Forward!

TROW'S PRINTING AND BOOKBINDING COMPANY: AN EXPLANATION.

REFERRING to an editorial article in our issue for Feb. 15, we desire to say that it was not intended to state or imply that the corporation organized and doing business under the name of Trow's Printing and Bookbinding Company had passed through bankruptcy. The failures to which we referred were those of the Trow concerns preceding the organization of the present corporation. This matter had not been called to our attention until recently, and we take the first opportunity, as is the usual practice of this journal, to express regret that any misapprehension should have been possible.

THE BOWEN-MERRILL COMPANY FIRE.

ABOUT three o'clock in the afternoon of the 17th inst., what seemed to be an insignificant fire broke out near the furnace in the sub basement of the immense establishment of The Bowen-Merrill Co., 16 and 18 West Washington Street, Indianapolis, where they have been housed for nearly forty years. The building is four stories high, with a marble front, facing Washington Street, just west of Meridian. The Fire Department, when it arrived, seemed at a loss to locate the fire, and began pouring water into the building at the front, when the seat of the trouble was in the rear. For two hours the fight had continued in this way until a majority of the spectators had left, under the impression that the fire was out. About 5:30 o'clock, however, there was a terrible crash, and the entire building, except the front wall, fell inward. A later report announces that this wall has since fallen, injuring several men at work in the ruins. At the time of the fire, a number of firemen, variously estimated at from eight to twenty, were on the roof of the building, and were buried in the débris, which were piled forty feet high within the walls. Ten men were killed outright, and fifteen badly hurt, some fatally, it is feared.

The Bowen-Merrill Company was one of the largest as well as the oldest bookselling concerns in Indiana. The Company was supposed to carry $125,000 worth of stock, very little of which, if any, has been saved. The house was established in 1838, and did business at various times under the following firm-names: Bowen, Stewart & Co., Merrill, Meigs & Co., Merrill, Hubbard & Co., Merrill & Field, Merrill & Co., and, since 1885, The Bowen-Merrill Co. The officers of the Company are President, S. T. Bowen; Secretary, Chas. D. Meigs, Jr.; Treasurer, W. H. Elim; Superintendent, S. Merrill. Col. S. Merrill is colonel of President Harrison's old regiment, and was recently made consul-general at Calcutta, for which post he intended leaving next week. Judging from the proverbial enterprise of this firm, we are confident that they will be on their feet again in a very short time.

NO SCHOOL-BOOK TRUST IN IOWA.

THE joint legislative committee, in session at Des Moines, Iowa, to discover whether there were any oppressive trusts in Iowa, reported on the 15th inst. It spent five days in investigation, and confined its inquiries to the school-book question. It was the original intention to have the committee inquire into all kinds of trusts; but as so little time was given them they looked for nothing but a school-book trust. They examined a number of witnesses, including some agents of school-book publishing houses, but failed to find anything in the shape of a trust. They report that there is no evidence that the publishing houses have combined to form a trust or to control or stifle competition in Indiana, and they submit that as a final report. The result of this investigation will probably lessen in large degree the clamor for State publication of text-books, since the legislators themselves find that there is nothing done to prevent national competition among school-book publishers.

HOW MR. MARSTON CELEBRATED HIS SIXTY-SIXTH BIRTHDAY.

"MR. E. MARSTON, of the firm of Sampson Low, Marston, Searle & Rivington, on his way to Egypt to meet Stanley, was awakened one morning under curious circumstances and called upon to assist in celebrating his sixty-sixth birthday. It appears that on the 11th or 12th of February, upon reaching Zukuzik, a station midway between Ismailia and Cairo, a telegram was received by one of the passengers: "Hotel [at Cairo] full. Advise all passengers to stop till to-morrow." "Consternation reigned supreme," writes Mr. Marston to the Publishers' Circular. "What could be done? Camping-out seemed to be the general expectation. Being safely provided for myself, I comforted them as well as I could by the reflection that it was not a very cold night, and it would soon be morning. About 2 o'clock my opposite fellow-traveller woke me out of the first doze I had just got into by seizing my hand and wishing me 'many happy returns of the day' (it being my birthday). Then there was shaking my hands all round. My health was proposed and drunk, the beverage being one bottle of soda-water, which was all that the company could muster, and which was decanted by lucifer-match light. Songs were sung. I was called upon to return thanks, which I did in the dark and with becoming brevity. Thus it happened that my sixty-sixth birthday was celebrated in an Egyptian railway carriage, in profound darkness—for our lamp had long since gone out—and in the midst of a delightful company of ladies and gentlemen whom I never saw before I met them on the boat, and whom, in all probability, I shall never see again."

[We offer our post-festum congratulations. May Mr. Marston live to a ripe old age, and continue to direct and inspire with counsel and good example the profession to which he is a devoted friend, and which is honored through him.—ED. P. W.]

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

M. FRANCOIS COPPEE, the French poet and novelist, is bringing out a psychological romance, "Tonte une Jeunesse," which is said to be practically an autobiography.

MR. G. S. MACQUOID has just finished a record of travel in Switzerland and Germany which will be published by Ward & Downey, of London, under the title of "Up and Down."

MR. HOWARD CARROLL, author of "Twelve Americans," published several years ago by Harper & Bros., is engaged upon a biography of President Arthur, with whom he was intimately acquainted for many years.

It will interest those who have nothing else to do but say unkind things of Mr. Howells' work, that the general public does not agree with them. The sales of his books are enormous, and his income is not far short of $25,000 a year.—Brooklyn Times.

THE University of Alabama has adopted Mr. Hannis Taylor's work on "The Origin and Growth of the English Constitution" (published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co.) as a text-book in the departments of law and history, and conferred the degree of LL.D. on the author.

By the death and will of Dr. Westland Marston, Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton comes into possession of the type-written and other original writings of his son, the late Philip Bourke Marston, together with £200, and she is understood to be editing some of the poems hitherto unpublished for a volume that is to appear shortly. This legacy Philip Marston himself left to Mrs. Moulton; but so long as his father lived she refused to receive it.

"NELLIE BLY" (Miss Pink Elizabeth J. Cochrane) was formerly from Indiana, and became known throughout that State as a daring newspaper correspondent. She ran for Librarian of the State, and was defeated. From Indiana she went to Pittsburg, and thence to New York. Her piece of reportorial work in passing herself off as a lunatic and thus getting into the inner workings of the asylum there, which was published in the New York World, with which she had attached herself, made her name famous as a woman of sensational undertakings and fearless daring all over the world. When it was decided by the World as a sensational advertising scheme, to test the practicability of going around the earth in less than 80 days, Nellie Bly was the one chosen to make the trip.—Western Journalist.

OLD BOOK CHAT.

IRELAND'S "History of the New York Stage" is perhaps the most valuable reference-book of its kind in existence. Unfortunately it possesses a very incomplete and perfunctory index, which mars its value. I hear, however, that Mr. Edward Kindberg, with the author's permission, has compiled a most copious and useful analytical index. It has cost him two years' hard labor, and now he proposes to print sixty copies and sell them at the cost of printing. This is purely a labor of love, and dramatic students should feel grateful and give it hearty support.

MESSRS. SOTHEY, London, will sell April 1 a very choice collection of books similar in character to those which were contained in the Johnson sale. Among them are Ainsworth's "Tower of London," first edition in original parts, with autograph letter from the author. A copy in cloth in the Mackenzie sale brought £21 10s. Also included is a copy of the "German Popular Stories" first edition, 2 vols., 1823-26. It is in morocco, by Bedford, and uncut. Another rarity, is "Oliver Twist," first octavo edition in parts. Worthy of mention, too—Dickens' "Strange Gentleman," 1837, uncut. By the way, this should have a frontispiece—though the latter is of such rare occurrence as to be almost introuvable. A collector would be happy to possess lot 144, being a copy of "Real Life in London" in the original parts. The catalogue comprises two hundred and sixty-seven lots.

It is a long time since I have had the privilege of examining so interesting a collection as that which forms the library of Mr. Hart, of Montreal, soon to be dispersed by auction. While not, when compared with the Barlow, the Sunderland, or such collections, to be classed as great, yet Mr. Hart's library bears trace of anxious thought, wise expenditure, and a refined though not perfect taste, in its bringing together. The catalogue is of the briefest description, yet stretches to just upon three hundred pages and embraces over three thousand lots. Upon looking over it (it reaches me at the last minute before going to press) the impression left is, the books in fine bindings and the collections relating to Canada are the most important and interesting subjects in the sale. A large number of eighteenth century French books remarkable for their plates claim attention. I notice too a copy of the second folio Shakespeare, with ms. emendations, also a copy of the inevitable Nuremberg Chronicle. Of the latter but a poor description is given. The catalogue is in remarkable distinction to the "penny plain tuppence colored" style, so popular once but now on the wane in New York. It is arranged alphabetically, is concise, and presupposes some knowledge on the part of its readers. Another innovation, too, the books are sold subject to collation. This is to be welcomed, especially in a country, of great distances, where many buyers are prevented from attending a sale except by proxy.

BIBLIOPHILUS.

MISSOULA, MONT.—Jno. Roberts, bookseller, stationer, etc., is reported to be selling out.

NEW HAVEN, CT.—C. M. Loomis, a well-known music publisher and dealer of New Haven, died on March 9, of pneumonia. He was fifty-nine years old and was editor of the Masonic and Musical Journal, published in New Haven.

NEW YORK CITY.—The stock, shelving, and fixtures of White & Allen, 32 Great Jones Street, N. Y., were sold by auction on the premises, Friday morning, March 21, by virtue of bill of sale to Mary L. White, by White & Allen.

NEW YORK CITY.—C. H. Blanchard publisher, formerly doing business as Blanchard & Co., at Broadway and Warren Street, and at Boston, made an assignment on the 15th inst. to Roderick Smith. He published The Family Magazine and dealt in novelty goods.

NEWTON, KAN.—G. A. Hawley, bookseller and stationer, has had his stock damaged by fire.

OAKLAND, CAL.—The stock of books belonging to C. J. Krytser, has been advertised at sheriff's sale.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The office of the Book Notes has been removed from 11 Westminster Street, to No. 61 Snow Street (next door to the Public Library), where will be kept a large collection of old and (many of them) rare books for sale; and where Mr. Sidney S. Rider will assist all who desire, in the purchase of good books, and prevent them, so far as he can, from buying bad ones.—Rider's Book Notes.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Steele & Avery, the oldest business firm in the city of Rochester and one of the oldest firms of booksellers in the State of New York, intend to dissolve partnership July 1, when Mr. Steele will retire from business permanently, having by long and close attention to affairs fairly earned his right to rest. Mr. Avery is not yet disposed to retire from active participation in the world's business. The firm of Steele & Avery was formed in 1855 and succeeded to the business of David Hoyt, who had conducted it for a great many years and retired on account of ill health. The period during which this firm has been in existence has seen some of the most memorable events in the political and business history of the United States. It covered the panic of 1857, the war and the panic of 1873. Through all the trying events of those periods the house of Steele & Avery stood firm and came out with increased strength and reputation. Among the incidents of its career the firm recalls with interest the fact that it introduced and sold the first photograph album in Rochester—an article about 6 x 4 inches in size, made to hold twelve pictures. It also sold the first professional baseball—both members of the firm being enthusiastic devotees of the game in the early days before playing became a trade.

RUSSELLVILLE, KY.—D. C. Caldwell, stationer and bookseller, has sold out.

SIDNEY, O.—C. W. McKee, bookseller, has gone out of business.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

FRANK MURPHY, of the publishing house of John Murphy & Co., of Baltimore, was recently granted an audience by the Pope, after which Mr. Murphy presented his Holiness with a handsomely bound copy of Cardinal Gibbons' book, "Our Christian Heritage."

REUBEN B. POOLE, librarian of the Young Men's Christian Association, delivered an illustrated lecture on "Book-Making in Ancient Times," before the Young Men's Association Congregation Ahawath Chesed, 55th St. and Lexington Ave., N. Y., on March 20.

MR. J. E. RAMSEY, for the past ten years the Secretary of the Moss Engraving Co., and for three years previous with the Photo-Engraving Co. of New York, has just organized the Ramsey Engraving Co. for the manufacture of photo-engraved relief plates in both line and half-tone work.

THE METHODIST BOOK CONCERN consigned eighty-one tons of plates to the metal pot when they removed the offices to their new quarters. Some of the plates, type, and cases destroyed were almost as much of a curiosity to the printer of the present time as the Plantin collection in Antwerp.

AT the Jefferson Market Police Court, New York, on the 14th inst., Henry W. Robinson was held in $500 bail, charged with stealing from The R. Worthington Co. books worth $8.50 and the manuscript of a novel valued at $200. The prisoner was employed by Worthington as an advertising agent. The books and manuscript were found in his trunk at No. 218 West 34th St., where he boarded. He said he had bought the books and paid for them, and that as for the manuscript, which was written by the Marquise De Lanza, and had been sent to Mr. R. Worthington by R. U. Johnson, of The Century, he had merely taken it home to read it.

SAMUEL HART, Superintendent of the Butterick Publishing Company, New York City, and four boys in the company's employ, were arrested on the 17th inst., charged with stealing the books of the company. There had been some differences between the Superintendent and the firm, and some days ago the dispute was carried to the Supreme Court. On the 17th the company discharged Hart, and he went to the safe and took out all the books of the company. These he handed to the boys to carry out. For this they were all arrested and taken to a police court, but as no complaint was made, the prisoners were discharged.

THE Dunlap Society, now in its fourth year, will issue, in addition to the two books by William Winter, noted in our last issue, "Occasional Addresses of the American Stage," edited by Laurence Hutton and Wm. Carey. This work is to be supplementary to Mr. Hutton's former collection of "Opening Addresses." These books are to be printed by the De Vinne Press in limited editions of less than two hundred, and are not for sale. They will be forwarded, when ready, to any one who pays the annual subscription of five dollars. The Secretary of the Dunlap Society is Mr. Brander Matthews, No. 121 East Eighteenth Street, New York.

UNDER the title of English Leaders of Religion, Messrs. Methuen, of London, propose to begin in the fall the publication of a series of short biographies, free from party bias, of the most prominent leaders of religious life and thought in this and the last century. Each volume will contain a succinct account and estimate of the career, the influence, and the literary position of the subject of the memoir. Mr. A. M. M. Stedman will edit the series, and the following are already arranged for: "Cardinal Newman," by Mr. R. H. Hutton; "John Keble," by the Rev. W. Lock; "Charles Simeon," by Mr. H. C. G. Moule; "Bishop Wilberforce," by the Rev. G. W. Daniel; "John Wesley," by Canon Overton; "F. D. Maurice," by Col. F. Maurice; and "Thomas Chalmers," by Mrs. Oliphant.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD have undertaken the publication in this country of The Contemporary Science Series, edited by Havelock Ellis, the purpose of which is to bring within general reach the best that is known and thought in all departments of modern scientific research. Most of the volumes will be illustrated, the size will be crown octavo, and the price will be $1.25 each. The titles of the volumes now ready, all of which are fully illustrated, will show the wide scope and high character of the undertaking: "The Evolution of Sex," by Professor Patrick Geddes and J. Arthur Thomson; "Physiognomy and Expression," by P. Mantegazza; "The Village Community in Britain," by G. L. Gomme; "Electricity in Modern Life," by G. W. de Tunzelmann; "The Origin of the Aryans," by Dr. Isaac Taylor, and "Evolution and Disease," by J. Bland Sutton.

DESCRIPTIVE SUMMARY OF THE SPRING ANNOUNCEMENTS.

THE descriptive summary which here follows presents as usual, in its alphabetical arrangement by publishers, a survey of the entire field, so far as the necessary information is at hand. Other books, not yet fully determined upon, will find mention in subsequent issues. In our announcement lists proper, the books will be found arranged by classes, while the advertising pages will afford further detailed information as to prices, sizes, styles, etc.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready an entirely new edition of Charles Darwin's "Journal of Researches into the Natural History and Geology of the Countries Visited during the Voyage Round the World by H. M. S. Beagle, under the Command of Captain Fitz Roy," with illustrations, chiefly from sketches taken on the spot by R. T. Pritchett, consisting of views of the places visited and representations of the animals and objects described. The house makes no further announcements except of periodical volumes for the Town and Country Library, the titles of which for several reasons are not yet to be made public.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON announce the volumes to be issued in the third series of The Expositors' Bible, which, subject to contingencies, will be: "Judges and Ruth," by Rev. R. A. Watson; "Prophecies of Jeremiah," by Rev. J. C. Ball; vol. 2 of the "Prophecies of Isaiah," by Rev. G. A. Smith; "Gospel of St. Matthew," by Rev. J. Monro Gibson; "Book of Exodus," by Dean Chadwick; and "Acts of the Apostles," by Rev. G. T. Stokes. A new book by Spurgeon will be added to the publications of the house, to be entitled "Around the Wicket Gate" — referring to Bunyan's immortal conception of the road to heaven and giving friendly talks to present pilgrims concerning faith in Jesus Christ and the steering clear of Sloughs of Despond. Prof. T. W. Hunt, of Princeton College, has just completed his "Studies in Literature and Style," a practical and philosophical discussion developed in scholarly and yet popular form, with primary reference to the needs of English literary students. The three parts already published in Perrot and Chipiez' "History of Ancient Art" having proved successful, a fourth part, divided into two volumes, will be issued, covering "Ancient Art in Sardinia, Judea, Syria, and Asia Minor," with 395 illustrations, and the same handsome type, paper, and binding of the former volumes.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR Co. will publish during the spring "Talks with Ralph Waldo Emerson," by Charles J. Woodberry, who has written a record of many thoughts spoken in unpremeditated utterance to a sympathetic friend. A hitherto unpublished portrait of Emerson will give the book additional interest.

C. W. BARDEEN makes several announcements, of which full titles may be found under the heading Education, Language, etc., in classified list elsewhere in this issue.

THE BELFORD Co., N. Y., will publish by subscription "Jefferson Davis, Ex-President of the Confederate States," the memoir prepared by his wife.

BENZIGER BROS. have arranged to bring out in translations several foreign works which have an acknowledged place in Roman Catholic literature. "Sermons for Sundays," by St. Alphonsus de Liguori, edited by Rev. Eugene Grimm, will be the sixteenth volume of the Centenary Edition of the works of St. Alphonsus. "The Life of Father Charles Sire, of the Society of Jesus," written by his brother, Rev. Vital Sire, Professor of Moral Theology at the Theological Seminary of Toulouse, will be a translation from the French; as will also "Marriage," by Very Rev. Père Monsabré, conferences delivered in Nôtre-Dame, Paris, translated by the author's special permission; and "Twelve Views of a Good Teacher," by Rev. H. Pottier, translated from the twelfth French edition by a Sister of Mercy, a book specially suitable for mothers and all instructors charged with the education of girls.

ROBERT BONNER'S SONS announce a new book by Anna Katharine Green, to be called "The Forsaken Inn," said to be quite equal to any story as yet published by the talented author of "The Leavenworth Case," "Behind Closed Doors," etc., which will be illustrated by Victor Perard; and "A Mad Betrothal, or Nadine's vow," by Laura Jean Libbey, the much-talked-of author of "Miss Middleton's Lover."

BRENTANO's and the proprietor of Neal's Library, 248 Rue de Rivoli, Paris, conjointly announce the immediate issue of the first yearly edition of the "Anglo-American Annual," a volume dealing exclusively with the English and American colony in Paris and environs. The contents include a concise directory of Anglo-American residents, and professional and commercial houses of the capital. Information is also given for the guidance of intending residents, students, and visitors. The official section will contain the latest reports on all the Anglo-American institutions of Paris, charities, mission work, commerce, and sport.

A. L. BURT makes announcement of a most important new series to be called Burt's Library of the World's Best Books, which will aim to place within the reach of all a complete, rich, and uniform library of the classics of the literature of every language. The text of the volumes included in the series will be in every case thoroughly reliable and unabridged, and the translations will always be of acknowledged merit. When likely to be of value to students and general readers indexes, biographical sketches, and explanatory notes will be given. The books will be printed on good paper, in large, clear type, and neatly and durably bound. The announcements of books already under way show excellent literary judgment. We briefly mention the volumes thus far planned: "The Discourses of Epictetus," including the "Encheiridion" and "Fragments" translated with notes, a life of Epictetus, and a view of his philosophy, by George Long; Goethe's "Faust," translated by Anna Swanwick; Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield;" Bacon's "Essays," with introduction by Henry Morley; Ruskin's "Crown of Wild Olives" and "Sesame and Lilies;" Creasy's "Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World," with introduction by Frank Parsons; Proctor's "Other Worlds Than Ours" and Washington Irving's "Sketch-Book." Other works will be announced later.

CASSELL & Co. publish steadily and add many valuable books to their list month by month. They have just brought out "The Pope and the New Era," letters written from the Vatican in 1889 by William T. Stead, author of "The Truth About Russia." Mr. Stead went directly to the home of the Pope to study the inner workings of the Roman Catholic religion, and laying aside Protestant prejudices conducted his investigation with earnestness, meeting with great courtesy on the part of His Holiness and others in authority, which helped him very much in putting into shape the matter which makes a very interesting book. In strong contrast as to subject and style is "Tin-Types Taken in the Streets of New York," the series of sketches portraying many phases of metropolitan life, by Lemuel Ely Quigg, which first appeared in the columns of the New York Tribune, and is now gathered into a book which has fifty-three illustrations by Harry Beard. Two novels are also announced: "Pactolus Prime," a new story by Judge Tourgée, which it is said will be a scathing and profound picture of a phase of American civilization that will make some people smart who never thought of being called to answer such accusations; and "Two Women or One," by Henry Harland (Sidney Luska), who has put his well-known talent into a novel of psychological interest. "David Todd," by David Maclure, a novel of Scotch life of which the hero is a Scotch clergyman who fights and conquers a peculiar temptation, has just been noted in our Weekly Record.

THE CENTURY CO. will bring out in book-form Mr. Frank R. Stockton's "The Merry Chanter," with C. D. Gibson's illustrations, which began in the November number and was finished in the March number of the Century Magazine. It will make a book of about two hundred pages, and will be sold in paper and cloth.

ROBERT CLARKE & CO. will publish "The History of the Girtys," by Consul Wiltshire Butterfield, in which he will give an authentic life-record of three renegades of the American Revolution, Simon, James, and George Girty, participants in many of the events of the history of our country, and all notable for their tragically romantic lives. The Girtys were Pennsylvanians by birth, prisoners to the Indians during the old French war, and Tories during the last five years of the Revolution. The number printed of this remarkable biography will depend upon advance orders received, a fact the trade are desired to note for immediate action. They will publish for the Ohio Commandery of the Loyal Legion of the United States "Sketches of War History," comprising twenty-two papers mostly on operations in the Southwestern field, with papers on the critical engagements of the Army of the Potomac, and diplomacy and the navy; and for the Geological Society of Kentucky two monographs—"Kentucky Fossil Corals," by William J. Davis, treating of the growth and habits of coral-making animals, their place in nature, etc., illustrated by 139 artotype plates, containing 900 specimens, which have been prepared and executed with great care, and "Kentucky Fossil Shells," by Henry Nettelroth, which will contain material obtained during long years of collecting, fully illustrated. This house has also in press "The Life and Times of Ephraim Cutler," prepared from his journals and correspondence by his daughter, Julia P. Cutler, said to be full of personal recollections of well-known members of the legal profession at the beginning of the century. There will also be law-books of which the titles appear in classified list in this issue under heading Law, Government, etc.

DE WOLFE, FISKE & CO., who have undertaken to publish all Mr. W. H. H. Murray's works in a style that will commend them to the public, now announce "The Busted Ex-Texan, and other stories," with photogravure portrait of Mr. Murray and eight full-page illustrations by Thomas Worth; and a volume to contain "Mamelons" and "Ungava," the two stories which have been running as serials in The Arena, the new Boston magazine. "Mamelons" is a legend of the Saguenay, and Ungava its companion idyl takes its name from a bay indenting the northeast corner of the Peninsula of Labrador. This house also will issue "Lake Champlain and its Shores;" and a work of fiction by William Henry to be entitled "Gilbert Thorn-dike."

DODD, MEAD & CO. have just published some important books. A new work by Prof. Dana is entitled "Characteristics of Volcanoes," and contains contributions of facts and principles from the Hawaiian Islands, illustrated with many maps and other illustrations. There will also be another new edition of Prof. Dana's "Corals and Coral Islands," first issued eighteen years ago, which has been once more thoroughly revised and brought down to date by the addition of upward of fifty pages of new matter. The series of Great Explorers and Explorations has received two new volumes, "Palestine," by Major Conder, leader of the Palestine Exploration Expeditions, and "Magellan and the Pacific," by Dr. H. H. Guillemard, both filled with excellent maps and illustrations. "The History of the United States under the Constitution," by James Schouler, formerly published by W. H. Morrison, of Washington, has been added to the list of Dodd, Mead & Co., and a new edition in four volumes has been brought out. A new novel by Fani Pusey Gooch is entitled "Miss Mordeck's Father."

E. P. DUTTON & CO. announce "The Historical Christ, the Moral Power of History," by Rev. D. David H. Greer, Rector of St. Bartholomew's Church, New York City; "Five Sermons," by Henry B. Whipple, Bishop of Minnesota; "An Easter Sermon," by Rev. Phillips Brooks; and "Robert Brett, His Life and Work," by Dr. T. W. Belcher, a valuable record of the work done by this generous, energetic, and deeply religious physician, which necessarily gives a picture of the Tractarian movement in England. The usual large and tasteful supply of all manner of cards and booklets for the Easter season is once more ready, many of which were described in the WEEKLY of March 8. A book that will doubtless prove of great use to teachers and preachers of sermons to young children has been issued in Maggie Symington's "Seed, Flower, and Fruit," a little volume of Sunday chat with little people on all manner of subjects.

ESTES & LAURIAT will bring out a new revised edition of Coues' "Key to North American Birds," and announce a new édition de luxe of "Charles Dickens' Complete Works" in forty-five volumes, to be issued at the rate of two volumes a month. The type is from a new font especially cast for this work; the paper combines excellence of finish with lightness of weight; the illustrations are the original etchings of Cruikshank, carefully reëtched line for line from brilliant original proof impressions and woodcuts, printed from electrotypes furnished by Dickens' original publishers and never before used. The edition will be limited to 1000 sets sold by subscription, and no orders will be taken except for complete sets. The fine art illustrated editions of George Eliot's "Romola" and Bulwer's "Last Days of Pompeii," which have been in preparation three years, will shortly be issued. The illustrations will be from photographs of Florentine and Pompeian scenes collected by Mr. Estes on the spot, printed from photogravure copper plates. "Les Misérables" is announced as the next volume in the édition de luxe of Victor Hugo's works.

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT will have ready in April "Midnight Talks at the Club," reported by Amos K. Fiske, a free discussion of morals, politics, temperance, dogma, religion, etc.

FUNK & WAGNALLS make several announcements in their special field of moral reform and theology. Of special interest will be a "Life of Wendell Phillips, the Agitator," by Carlos Martyn, who for many years was an intimate friend of the great orator and philanthropist; "A Cyclopædia of Temperance and Prohibition," which will be a large and valuable work, treating every relevant topic, from the most elementary to the most advanced phase of the liquor question, designed for special workers in the cause; and "The Economics of Prohibition," by Rev. J. C. Fernald, an attempt to apply the principles of political economy to the whole subject of the liquor traffic. Their most important religious publications will be "The Seven Churches of Asia," by Howard Crosby, who will read lessons from the messages of St. John, applicable to the churches of the present day; "Calvary Pulpit, or, Christ and Him crucified;" a book of sermons preached by Dr. R. S. MacArthur at Calvary Baptist Church, New York City; "Fourfold Gospel," by Glentworth R. Butler; "Divine Rod and Staff," by Rev. J. M. Anspach; "Epic of Saul," by Prof. William Cleaver Wilkinson; and the third volume of Kurtz's "Church History." They also announce a new juvenile to be called "Song Stories for Little People," by Rev. W. Luckenbacker.

GINN & Co.'s list of spring announcements will be found under the heading of Education, Language, etc., in the classified list elsewhere in this issue.

S. C. GRIGGS & Co. announce a work to be entitled "Semitic Philosophy," by Philip C. Friese, designed to show the ultimate social and scientific outcome of original Christianity in its conflict with surviving ancient heathenism, and said to be full of peculiar and original ideas upon such questions as the relations of church and state, and church and school, the purification of politics, the labor question, and many phases of the race problem. They have also in press "The World Energy and its Self-Conservation," by W. M. Bryant, said to discuss with clearness the deepest questions of science; and "A Digest of English and American Literature," the last completed work of the late Prof. A. H. Welsh, said to be peculiarly adapted to those who desire to follow the contemporaneous social and political development of the world, while making a special study of England's literature, being arranged chronologically and giving the characteristics and chief events of any author's period, with a crisp critical synopsis of his life and writings, all information being classified and systematized for immediate reference.

HARPER & BROS. have just ready "God in This World," an interpretation of human development beginning with the dawn of time and tracing through India, Egypt, Greece, Rome, Palestine, the prophecy, antetype, and fulfilment of the coming of Christ, illuminating the well-known dogmas with the light of a poetic and aspiring spirit. The author's name is withheld. Competent critics agree that he has written a book of great power and beauty. In April this house will publish "The Life of Bishop Matthew Simpson," by Rev. Dr. George R. Crooks. Matthew Simpson was, in the sober judgment of those who knew him, the greatest of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, a man of deep human sympathy, large knowledge of men and wide influence over them, as well as a gifted pulpit orator, and Dr. Crooks, his life-long friend, is well fitted to treat his subject with literary and dramatic skill, and readers will feel the charm of a noble character presented by a strong and discriminating hand. A dainty volume will be Theodore Child's "Delicate Feasting," a sort of higher handbook of the kitchen and dining-room, based upon scientific and artistic observation in the centres of civilization which suggests elevating every dinner to the dignity of a delicate feast, tells what good eating is and how to get it, and gives many practical hints and directions and some recipes; and Janvier's American story, "The Aztec Treasure House," with illustrations by Frederic Remington, which has been running in Harper's Weekly, is also nearly ready. Several school-books will also be forthcoming, full titles of which will may be found in the classified list in this number under heading of Education, Language, etc.

D. C. HEATH & Co.'s list of spring announcements will be found under the heading of Education, Language, etc., in the classified list elsewhere in this issue.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish at once "Idle Thoughts of an Idle Fellow," by Jerome K. Jerome, the author of the irresistibly funny "Three Men in a Boat (not to Speak of the Dog)." In their text-books they will add "Introduction to Systematic Botany," by Charles E. Bessey, Professor in the University of Nebraska.

JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY, through its publication agency, just issued "Local Government in Wisconsin," by David E. Spencer, of the University of Wisconsin; "The Enoch Pratt Free Library of Baltimore," by Dr. L. H. Steiner, Librarian of the Pratt Library; and "The Needs of Self-Supporting Woman," by Miss Clare de Graffenried, of the Department of Labor, Washington, D. C. Later on will be brought out "Essays and Studies," by Basil L. Gildersleeve; "The Study of History in France, Germany, Belgium, and Holland," by Prof. Paul Frédéricq, of the University of Ghent, translated by Henrietta Leonard, of Smith College; "Development of Municipal Unity in the Lombard Communes," by William Clapp Williams; "Spanish Colonization in the Southwest," by Frank W. Blackmar, Professor of History and Sociology in the University of Kansas; and "A Description of the Johns Hopkins Hospital," with about sixty plates, etc.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish this spring, in the department of fiction, a new characteristic story by Bret Harte, entitled "A Waif of the Plains;" "Jack Horner," a dramatic and very well-told story of the war for the Union, by Mrs. Mary F. Tiernan, author of the Round Robin novel, "Homoselle," which enjoyed a good degree of popular favor; a new story by Mrs. Clara A. Burnham, "The Mysteries of Beech Knoll;" "The Master of the Magicians," a story of the prophet Daniel and of his times, involving much research into the period to which the story relates, its civilization and customs, by the Rev. Herbert D. Ward, assisted by his wife, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, a story which is likely to attract an unusual degree of attention; Henry James' "Tragic Muse," which has appeared serially in the Atlantic Monthly for more than a year past, and is so long a story that it will be issued in two volumes, but if the story is as good as Mr. Lowell and other competent judges pronounce it, the reading public will find it none too long; a new volume of "Short Stories Told for Young Children," by Mrs. Wiggin, who has proved to be one of the most engaging and popular of the newer generation of story-writers; and "Sixty Folk Tales" from Slavonian sources, translated and edited by A. H. Wratislaw, of London. In the department of poetry there will be but two volumes, namely, the poems of John Hay, including the "Pike County Ballads," published several years ago and sold in large numbers, together with the poems written by Col. Hay since the publication of that volume; and "Easter Gleams," a book containing twenty or more poems by Miss Larcom, not printed in her previous books, and relating specially to the associations and aspirations of the Easter season, which has just been issued. In history there are also two works, "The Economic and Social History of New England," in two volumes, by Mr. Wm. B. Weedon, a successful manufacturer of Providence, and quite well known as a writer on topics relating to history and political science; a book by Prof. Horsford on "The Problem of the Northmen," a letter to Judge Daly, of the American Geographical Society, controverting the statement by Mr. Justin Winsor that "though Scandinavians may have reached the shores of Labrador, the soil of the United States has not one vestige of their presence." In biography a volume on John Jay, by George Pellew, a lawyer of Boston, and a relative of the distinguished subject of his book, will be added to the series of American Statesmen; and a new edition of Dr. Griffis' interesting life of Commodore Matthew Calbraith Perry, who gained great celebrity by his brave and wise conduct in Japan, and who was virtually the father of the steam navy of the United States. Other volumes will include "Liberal Living upon Narrow Means," by Mrs. Christine Terhune Herrick, a book of receipts and also of helpful suggestions for inexperienced housekeepers; the second volume in the Riverside Scientific Series, on the "Physical Property of Gases," by A. L. Kimball, of Johns Hopkins University; a volume of Baldwin Lectures on Christianity, by the late Dean Gray, of the Episcopal Theological School, at Cambridge; and the seventh volume in the Riverside Library for Young People on "Java, the Pearl of the East," by Mrs. S. J. Higginson, author of the remarkable story, "A Princess of Java."

WILLIAM R. JENKINS makes announcements in his special fields of French literature and veterinary surgery. Jules Sandeau's romance of "La Maison de Penarvon" will appear in the Romans Choisis, as will also "Les Millions du Père Rachet;" Hugo's "Les Travailleurs de la Mer" is in press; Madame Berthe Beck has edited and annotated "La Fontaine's Fables" for schools; and Ponsard's comedy, "L'Honneur et l'Argent," has been edited for schools by Prof. F. C. Sumichrast, of Harvard University. Koch's "Treatise on Comparative Tuberculosis" will be reprinted from the American Veterinary Review, and will form an important addition to the science of comparative medicine.

E. L. KELLOGG & Co. announce several books, full titles of which will be found under the heading of Education, Language, etc., in the classified list elsewhere in this issue.

LEE & SHEPARD have nearly ready "Stories of the Civil War," by Albert F. Blaisdell, who has made a careful adaptation for school purposes of the best accounts of the Civil War, which will be published uniform with "Stories of American History," "Noble Deeds of Our Forefathers," etc.; "Heroes and Martyrs of Invention," the papers of George Makepeace Towle, which originally appeared in Harper's Young People, and have been revised and enlarged for issue in book-form; and new and revised editions of "The Guest Book," "Baby's Kingdom," and "A Primer of Darwinism and Organic Evolution." In fiction the house will bring out "Marion Graham," by Margaret Woods Lawrence, still writing under the pseudonym of "Meta Lander," who will aim to exhibit the utter incongruity of some of the dogmas of Calvinism with the humane Christian sentiments of the present day; and "Nora's Return," in which Ednah D. Cheney will give a sequel to Henrik Ibsen's "Doll's House," inculcating a moral lesson aiming at the ennobling and advancement of women. Lelia J. Robinson, who so cleverly compiled "The Law of Husband and Wife," will have ready for this house the "Law of Wills and Inheritance;" and "Practical Decorated Upholstery," by F. A. Mooreland, will be issued in appropriate style. The long list of souvenirs for Easter on the catalogue of the house are once more ready in the newest and most tempting "outward and visible form."

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have brought out many books since the beginning of the year and have still several in preparation. "The Recollections of George W. Childs," which have been appearing in Lippincott's Magazine, have been edited by Melville Philips and will shortly be ready in book-form; "Old Country Life," by S. Baring-Gould, will contain some of the author's characteristic work and give vivid descriptions of families, squires, hunting parsons, country parsons, country dances, old roads, old servants, and many bits of human history and descriptions of the customs and beliefs prevalent in the Old-Country localities he introduces; "The Rajah's Heir," a novel by a new writer, will be the next issue in Lippincott's Series of Select Novels; "How to Remember History" will be a method for memorizing dates, with a summary of the most important events from the sixteenth to the nineteenth centuries, arranged for the use of schools and private students by Virginia Conser Shaffer; "The Historic Note-Book," by Rev. E. Cobham Brewer, will be a continuation of his much-appreciated "Reader's Handbook" and will do for readers of history the same useful work this did for students of general literature; and "As You Like It" will be issued as volume 8 of Furness'

Variorum Edition of Shakespeare. Two volumes a month will be issued in the new Library Edition of the "Works of William H. Prescott," of which "The Reign of Charles the Fifth" is the forthcoming volume. A new novel by Ouida to be called "Syrlin" will also be ready in April. New editions of several important medical works are also announced, full titles of which may be found under the heading of Medical Science in the classified list elsewhere in this issue.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just published "Myths and Folk-Lore of Ireland," by Jeremiah Curtin, a most valuable contribution to Irish folklore. The myth tales it includes were collected personally by the author during 1887 in the west of Ireland, in Kerry, Galway, and Donegal, and taken down from the lips of men who, with one or two exceptions, spoke only Gaelic, which accounts for the preservation of the stories and makes them more reliable than those gathered in places where the ancient Gaelic has perished. Mr. Curtin has also translated "Fire and Sword," the novel which placed Henryk Sienkiewicz at the head of Polish novelists past and present, according to competent authorities, who pronounce him gifted with Dumas' facility for conceiving and carrying out a complicated romance, Bret Harte's dry humor and laconic pathos, and Turgénieff's melancholy suggestiveness, with much of his delicacy of touch. In this "Fire and Sword," Sienkiewicz gives a grand picture of Polish history in the seventeenth century in its political, intellectual, and social aspects. Mr. Curtin is specially gifted as a translator, and the publishers expect an epoch-making novel for their list. Among further announcements are the fifth and final volume of Palfrey's "History of New England;" and "The Influence of the Sea-Power upon History," by Captain A. T. Mahan, U. S. Navy. "The Way Out of Agnosticism," by Francis Ellingwood Abbot, the author of "Scientific Theism," and a new edition in paper of Chaplin's "Five Hundred Dollars" have just been issued.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. make numerous announcements in almost every department of literature. Of artistic interest will be the second edition W. J. Henderson's "The Story of Music," which has happily met with well-merited appreciation; in description there will be "France and Her Republic," a record of things seen and learned in the "Centennial Year" 1889, by William Henry Hurlburt; in education "The History of the University of Dublin," by John William Stubbs, a record from its foundation to the end of the eighteenth century, with an appendix of original documents which for the most part are preserved in the college; and many text-books for schools and colleges, full titles of which will be found under Education, Language, etc., in the classified list elsewhere in this issue. Mrs. De Salis, whose name has become synonymous with good house-keeping, has prepared another of her valuable domestic manuals which will be called "Wrinkles and Notions for Every Household." Fiction will be represented by "Snap: a legend of Lone Mountain," by C. Philipps-Wolley, and "The Captain of the Polestar," by A. Conan Doyle, whose "Micah Clarke" was so widely read last year; history by the third and completing volume of Richard Bagwell's great work, "Ireland under the Tudors," covering the subject from the first invasion of the Northmen to the year 1603; and a story for children is promised in "The Will of the Wisp," by Mrs. Hugh Bell. A book of literary interest in press is entitled "Old Friends, essays in epistolary parody," by Andrew Lang, said to be in the style of his "Letters to Dead Authors," which proved so great a success some years back. Medical students will be gratified by "A Manual of Anatomy for Senior Students," by Edmund Owen, and students of electrical science will find a useful work of reference in "Electrical Engineering for Electric Light Artisans and Students," by W. Slingo and A. Brooker.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY announce for issue as among their spring publications, Miss Frances C. Sparhawk's Indian story, "A Chronicle of Conquest," which has interested so many readers of the Christian Union; Miss Grace Livingstone's picture of child life, "A Little Servant;" Mrs. Tallman's (Miss Mariana M. Bisbee) Sunday-school story, "The Fairhaven Fourteen;" Mrs. S. R. Graham Clark's story of practical Christian endeavor, "Go's Goings;" a new book by "Pansy" (Mrs. G. R. Alden), "Her Mother's Bible;" Mr. Henry Boynton's study of the French and American revolutions, "The World's Greatest Conflict;" Mr. Malcolm Townsend's exhaustive American handbook and patriot's vade mecum, "U. S.;" Miss Gertrude Hamlin's direct and practical talks with women about horseback riding, "In the Riding School;" a new volume in the Spare Minute Series, being selections from Henry Ward Beecher, edited by Mary Storrs Haines, "The Crown of Life;" a new book for children by Katherine Lee Bates, "Hermit Island;" a little help to Bible readers, "What Saith the Scriptures?" compiled by Mary P. Lord; and "Chuck Purdy," a story of boy life in New York, by that favorite writer for young people, Mr. William O. Stoddard.

A. LOVELL & Co. will publish in April the second volume in their Parallel Edition of the Classics, which will consist of "The First Six Books of Vergil's Æneid," the original and translation arranged on facing pages in the manner of the first volume of the series, which was "The First Four Books of Cæsar."

THE LOVELL PUBLISHING HOUSE (Frank F. and John W. Lovell) regardless of seasons bring out their regular quota of books week by week. Among their latest announcements are: "Here and There in Yucatan," giving a vivid picture of early American civilization in that remarkable land; "Luck in Disguise," by William J. Dexter; "The Bachelor Girl," a novel by Hosea Ballou, treating of the adventures of the hero of the Aerostat; and "The Mystery of the Fast Mail," by Byron D. Adsit. Frank F. Lovell will publish in the series of American Authors "Los Cerritos," by Gertrude Franklin Atherton; "Betty," a last century love-story by Anna Vernon Dorsey; "My Sister's Husband," by Patience Stapleton, a story of life in Galveston, Texas; "A Magnetic Man," by E. S. Van Zile; and "In the Valley of Havilah," by Frederick Thickstun Clark; and in his International Series of Modern Novels will bring out "A True Friend," by Adeline Sargeant; "A Little Chat-claine," by the Earl of Desart; "The Wages of Sin," by Lucas Malet; "The House of Girdle Stone," by A. Conan Doyle; "In Her Earliest Youth," by Tasma; "The Lady Egeria," by J. B. Howard; "Without Love or License," by Hawley Smart; "A Smuggler's Secret," by Frank Barrett; "Position," by Ouida; "A Daughter's Sacrifice," by F. C. Philips and Percy Fendall; "The Haunted Fountain" and "Hetty's Revenge," by Katherine P. Macquoid; "Plain Tales from the Hills," by Rudyard Kipling; and "A Family without a Name," by Jules Verne. John W. Lovell will publish as the first issue of Lovell's International Series "Misadventure," by W. E. Norris, and those who are always looking for something to read aloud will find it worth while to examine "Lines and Rhymes," by James Clarence Harvey, which will be ready shortly.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have made preparations to issue "A Short History of Mexico," by Rev. Arthur H. Noll, a compact work covering the whole ground of Mexican history in a single volume, made available for reference by a well-made and full index and designed to be a link between the great work of Prescott and the many books on Mexico, specially intended for tourists, which have appeared during the past few years; "Russia: its people and literature," a translation by Fanny Hale Gardiner of a short course of lectures on Russia, delivered by Señora Emilia Pardo Bazán before the Spanish Athenæum at Madrid, bringing out strongly the impressions made upon the oldest, most polished, and most decadent nation of Europe by the slowly awakening, uncouth giant destined to take a guiding hand in the Europe of the future; "A Winter Holiday in Summer Lands," by a Chicago lady who spent a winter in Cuba and Mexico and has shown playful wit and literary taste in describing her wanderings; Lamartine's classic story of "Raphael" in their dainty series of Laurel-Crowned Tales; and "A Foreign Match," by Madame Charles Bigot, of Paris, formerly Miss Mary A. Healy, a story of Parisian life, introducing several American characters.

MACMILLAN & Co. announce "Cults and Monuments of Ancient Athens," by Miss Jane Harrison and Mrs. A. W. Verrall, with numerous illustrations; "Among the Selkirk Glaciers," by William Spotswood Green, author of "The High Alps of New Zealand"; a new and revised edition in three volumes of "The Poetical Works of John Milton," edited with an introduction and notes by Professor David Masson, with portrait; "The Elements of Politics," by Henry Sidgwick, Professor of Moral Philosophy in the University of Cambridge, and author of "The Methods of Ethics"; an English edition of "Capital and Interest," by Böhm-Baerck, prepared with the author's sanction by William Smart; "The Statesman's Year-Book," edited by J. Scott Keltie, a statistical and historical annual of the states of the civilized world, revised after official returns for the twenty-seventh year of publication under date of 1890; a new volume of essays by Thomas Henry Huxley; a new edition of "Scientific Lectures," by Sir John Lubbock; and a collection of "Lectures and Essays," by E. Ray Lankester, Professor of Zoölogy and Comparative Anatomy in University College, London.

JOHN P. MORTON & Co., Louisville, will publish for the Filson Club, "The Political Beginnings of Kentucky," by the late John Mason Brown. Early orders should be sent in, as the edition is limited, but price will be lowered as soon as a demand for these valuable publications justifies a larger issue. The house has also in press "Kentucky Jurisprudence," by Lewis N.

Dembitz, and early orders for this work are also desired.

JOHN MURPHY & Co., Baltimore, Md., will publish shortly "Carmel in America," a history of the Carmelite nuns; "1791: a tale of San Domingo," an account of the uprising of the negroes in 1791 which destroyed the famous old French colony; and "Kathleen Mavourneen," a story by Clara Mulholland.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS have ready for the spring trade their usual supply of religious and juvenile books, and strange as it must appear, have actually discovered new styles in which to issue an Oxford Bible and a Prayer-Book. "Robertson of Irvine, Poet-Preacher," contains the life of William B. Robertson, born in 1820, and for many years pastor of Trinity Church, Irvine, Scotland, who was universally recognized as the poet-preacher of the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland; and "Gloria Patri" is a book of private prayer for morning and evening, by J. R. Macduff, D.D., beautifully printed with red-lined pages and red initial letters for every prayer. The juvenile books are "Going on Pilgrimage," by Lucy Taylor, a companion to "The Pilgrim's Progress," beginning with a short biographical sketch of John Bunyan, and then making his classic clear to young people; "Timothy Tatters," an Irish story, by J. M. Callwell; "Aunt Bell, the Good Fairy of the Family," by Henry I. Alden, telling the story of an unselfish girl who helped her sister nurse her sick children, and then brought them to her own delightful house to play with four wonderful black dogs; "Granny," a story of village life in England, in which an innocent boy is suspected of theft and finally proved innocent; "Tuke," by Isabel Hornibrook; "Sir Aylmer's Heir," by Evelyn Everett Green; "Master Travers," by Florence M. Story; "Dickie Winton" and "Fairy Cobbler's Gold," by Ethel Primrose, all stories specially suitable for boys. A superb edition of the "Oxford Parallel Bible" contains the Authorized and Revised Versions in parallel columns, printed in minion type on "Oxford" India paper, and furnished with twelve maps and the index, making a book of  $9\frac{1}{4} \times 6\frac{3}{4}$  only one inch in thickness; and the same edition, including the "Oxford" Teachers' Bible Helps, is brought out in a volume only  $1\frac{1}{4}$  inches thick, bound in turkey or levant morocco. The Revised Version of "The Book of Psalms" is also ready in long primer type, crown 8vo size, in Venetian and Persian morocco. The greatest novelty ever made in Church of England prayer-books is the wonderful "Finger Prayer-Book," a tiny volume, only one inch in breadth, three and a half inches in length, and one-third of an inch in thickness, which contains over six hundred pages and weighs only three-quarters of an ounce. The type, though necessarily minute, is clear, distinct, and perfectly legible. This cute little booklet appears in Venetian morocco and limp calf, with round corners and red under gold edges, and should be brought to the notice of customers as a dainty Easter souvenir.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. publish a volume every second week in their twenty-five cent series, into which they are now putting many of their most popular books, and the books now in press for this series will be found under heading of Fiction in the classified list elsewhere in this issue. The house also announces a new edition of the popular works of George Lippard.

PORTER & COATES will have ready immediately a valuable contribution to the study of native American tribes, their history, antiquities, religion, and literature, in "Essays of an Americanist," by Daniel G. Brinton, one of the best-known scholars in this branch. The book will be divided into four parts: Part 1, Ethnologic and Archæologic; Part 2, Mythology and Folk-Lore; Part 3, Graphic Systems and Literature; Part 4, Linguistic, and will be made a valuable work of reference by an index of authors and authorities and an index of subjects. As already announced they have in preparation a handsome holiday edition of "Romola," concerning which full information is given in their advertisement in this issue.

JAMES POTT & Co. have just ready the first two volumes of "Records of the Past," being English translations of the Assyrian and Egyptian inscriptions on monuments, prepared under the editorship of Prof. A. H. Sayce; and announce for the coming months "The Greatest Thing in the World," an address on the thirteenth chapter of I. Corinthians by Henry Drummond; "Saddler on Colossians;" and "Little Gladness," by Nellie Hellis, author of "Little King Davie." There will also be new editions of "A Southern Planter," by Susan Dabney Smedes; "Sermons Preached in Rome" and "Sermons Preached in Florence," by Padre Agostino da Montefeltro, called by his countrymen "the modern Savonarola;" and "Christianity in Relation to Science and Morals," by Malcolm MacColl.

L. PRANG & Co. as always offer an extensive line of Easter goods made especially noticeable by their thoroughly American workmanship, the text being supplied by American authors, the designs by American artists, and the manufacture being all accomplished in this country. The Easter art-prints on satin are very attractive, and include pads, book-marks, sachets, perfume bags, handkerchief boxes, portfolio and magazine covers, cushions, chair and easel scarfs, etc. There is a very large assortment of small Easter Booklets ranging in prices from 6c. to 40c. The Art Books issued for this season are "A Spring Song," "The Robin's Song," "The Hermit Thrush," and "The Messenger of Spring," all illustrated by F. Schuyler Matthews in monochrome and pen drawing; "Winged Winds" and "Jesus, Lover of my Soul," illustrated by Louis K. Harlowe; "Christ is Risen," illustrated in colors by Lucy Comins; and "The Angel at the Sepulchre," a poem by Esther B. Tiffany, with full-page illustrations by William S. Tiffany.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce a new series to be called The Heroes of the Nations, to include biographical studies of the lives and work of representative, historical characters, who have been accepted in many instances as types of the several national ideals. This series will be under the editorial supervision of Evelyn Abbott, Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford; each "hero" will be given one twelvemo volume, provided with maps and adequate illustration. The volumes already planned for, which will begin to appear in April and follow one another in rapid succession, will be entitled "Nelson, and the Naval Supremacy of England," by W. Clark Russell, author of "The Wreck of the Grosvenor;" "Pericles, and the Golden Age of Athens," by Evelyn Abbott, the editor of the series; "Gustavus Adolphus, and the Struggle of Protestantism for Existence;"

"Alexander the Great, and the Extension of Greek Rule and of Greek Ideas," by Benjamin J. Wheeler, of Cornell University; "Theodoric the Goth, the Barbaric Champion of Civilization," by Thomas Hodgkin; "Charlemagne, the Reorganizer of Europe," by George L. Burr, of Cornell University; "Henry of Navarre, and the Huguenots in France," by P. F. Willert, of Exeter College, Oxford; "William of Orange, the Founder of the Dutch Republic," by Ruth Putnam; "Cicero, and the Fall of the Roman Republic," by J. I. Strachan Davidson; "Julius Cæsar, and the Organization of the Roman Empire," by W. Warde Fowler; "Sir Walter Raleigh, and the Adventurers of England," by A. L. Smith; and "Bismarck, or, the new German Empire; how it arose, what it replaced, and what it stands for," by James Sime, author of "A Life of Lessing." To The Story of the Nations Series will be added "The Story of Russia," by W. K. Morfill; "The Story of the Jews under Rome," by Rev. W. Douglas Morrison; and "The Story of Scotland," by James Macintosh; and in the Series of Knickerbocker Nuggets will appear "Letters of Philip Dormer, Fourth Earl of Chesterfield," with a memoir of Lord Chesterfield by the Earl of Carnarvon; and "The Sayings of Poor Richard," being the prefaces, proverbs, and poems of Benjamin Franklin, originally printed in Poor Richard's Almanacs for 1733-1758, collected and edited by Paul Leicester Ford. Students of American history will be glad to learn that "The Writings and Correspondence of John Jay," edited by Henry P. Johnston, will be brought out in four volumes uniform in size and style with the Hamilton, Franklin, and Washington memoirs already issued by the house; a new and cheaper edition will be brought out of Jusserand's "English Wayfaring Life in the Middle Ages," translated by Lucy Toulmin Smith; and a third edition of "A Far Look Ahead, or, the Diothas," is already called for. Rev. Alfred C. Church has ready a tale of Palestine in the time of Judas Maccabæus, which will be brought out under the title, "The Hammer;" and "The Trials of a Country Parson," by Augustus Jessopp, will be brought out uniform with "Arcady" and "The Coming of the Friars." To this long list will also be added "The Poetry of the Anti-Jacobin," comprising the celebrated political and satirical poems, parodies, and jeux d'esprit of Canning, Frere, Wellesley, Gifford, Pitt, and others, edited by Charles Edmunds, and illustrated from the original plates by Gilroy. To the poetry will be added a number of prose selections, including the papers on American affairs, the personal and abusive indexes, etc. Of this interesting book there will be but a limited edition, and orders should not be delayed. There will also be some new volumes of political and social value, of which the titles will be found in the classified list elsewhere in this issue.

RAND, McNALLY & Co. announce additions to their Rialto Series of "A Strange Infatuation," by Lewis Harrison, "In Love's Domain," by Marah Ellis Ryan, and "Burritt Durand," by John McGovern; and to their Globe Library of "Cloister Wendhusen," from the German of W. Heimburg, and "Hayne House," by Anna Oldfield Wiggs. In time for summer purchase they will have ready "Shooting on Upland, Marsh, and Stream," edited by William Bruce Leffingwell, and profusely illustrated, and "Camping and Camp Outfits," by G. O. Shields, a manual of instruction for young and old sportsmen, also illustrated. Of translations from the French there will be an edition in paper of "The Journal of Marie Bashkirtseff," just issued in cloth, and Daudet's "Numa Roumestan," put into English by Virginia Champlin, and illustrated by E. Bayard. A valuable book will be "The Polyglot Pronouncing Handbook," a key to the correct pronounciation of current geographical and other proper names from foreign languages.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. announce some new and important works and several new editions of successful books. In 1884 this house issued "The Life and Times of Jesus, the Messiah," by Alfred Edersheim, a work eminently adapted to fit the wants of scholars, but almost too cumbersome and necessarily too costly to be as widespread as desirable among general readers of average means. The author, himself, realizing this fact, had begun an abridgment of the work when he died in the spring of last year, and this has now been completed by his daughter, his constant assistant in the larger work, with the help and supervision of Professor Sanday, of Oxford, and has just been issued under arrangement with the author and English publishers. The new volumes in the Pulpit Commentary will be "II. Kings" and the second volume of "The Gospel of St. Luke;" volumes 2 and 3 of "St. Luke will be added to The Biblical Illustrator;" "Ought the Confession of Faith to be Revised?" will be a series of papers, pro and con, on the question by John De Witt, D.D., Henry J. Van Dyke, D.D., W. G. T. Shedd, D.D., and Benj. B. Warfield; and the latter paper, an argument against revision, will also be published separately. "Will and Providence," by Howard Crosby, will be a strong presentation of the doctrine of the freedom of the human will; and "Joshua and his Times," by Rev. William J. Deane, will be added to the Men of the Bible Series. "Leah of Jerusalem" will be a story of the time of St. Paul, by Edward P. Berry; and "God and Little Children," by Dr. Henry Van Dyke, will contain thoughts concerning the blessed state of those who die in childhood. In poetry the publishers will bring out "In the Morning," poems by W. Boyd Allen; "Poems of Two Worlds," by Thomas Hempstead; and "Four Songs of Life," two voices of faith and two of doubt, by Matthew Arnold, John Greenleaf Whittier, William Ernest Henley, and Tennyson. "The History of the Westminster Assembly of Divines," by Professor William M. Hetherington, Glasgow, first issued in 1843, has now been revised and enlarged, and will be brought out with notes and fac-similes of title-pages of the original editions of the Confession of Faith, the Catechisms, and the Directory of Church Government and ordination of ministers.

J. W. RANDOLPH & ENGLISH have secured control of "Soldier Life in the Army of Northern Virginia, C. S. A.," by Carlton McCarthy, private in 2d Co. Richmond Howitzers, and offer it to the trade at a liberal discount. The book is illustrated by W. L. Sheppard, a lieutenant in the author's regiment, thoroughly competent to make sketches of Confederate soldier life. The work has been praised in the N. Y. Tribune and other leading papers. Another announcement of historical interest is a story of Colonial days to be entitled "The Witch of Jamestown," by James T. Bowyer, of Fincastle, Va., which will introduce Bacon's Rebellion.

FLEMING H. REVELL intends to be active as ever during the coming months and makes announcements of many new little and big volumes, as well as of additions to his famous Bible wall maps and roller maps, and new editions of many of his popular religious books. He announces as almost ready "Seventh-Day Adventism," by D. M. Canright; "Scripture Outlines and Bible Themes," by William G. Carr; "Christian Progress in China," by Arnold Foster; and "A Century of Christian Progress," by Rev. James Johnstone. Mr. Meyer, an English writer of devotional literature, has prepared a series of little books to be neatly gotten up and published under the titles "The Shepherd Psalm," "Christian Living," "Abraham, or, the obedience of faith," "Elijah: the secret of his power," "Israel: a prince with God," etc., besides sixteen different kinds of tracts to be called The Seven Rule Series and sold by the dozen at low prices. "The Swiss Guide," by Dr. Parkhurst, will be illustrated and gotten up in leatherette binding; and the "World's Sunday-School Convention" held in 1889 will be described fully, and the book will contain a special American introduction. A new volume of "Twelve Striking Sermons" will be added to their Spurgeon series; Dr. Edward Robinson's "Harmony of the Four Gospels" will be brought out in dainty shape, and Rufus M. Stanbrough's "The Scriptural View of Divine Grace" will also claim notice for intrinsic merit and style of issue. Several volumes will be added to the Popular Missionary Biographies; and dainty little souvenirs will be the daily text-books "The Blue Bell" and "The Mountain Daisy." Professor Weidner's "Studies in the Book," containing studies on the historical books of the New Testament, the seven general epistles, and the Apocalypse, prepared for D. L. Moody's Bible Institute at Chicago, have been put in permanent form and will be issued in a handy volume. There will also be new additions to the sets in boxes by such authors as A. L. O. E. (Mrs. Tucker), Hesba Stretton, and other writers dear to children. All the new titles will be found in the classified list in this issue under their special headings.

ROBERTS BROS. have just issued George Sand's "The Bagpipers," translated by Miss Wormeley, and Arlo Bates' "Albrecht," that poetic story of a kobold of the Black Forest. They promise almost immediately "The House of the Wolfings," the story of a branch of the Gothic people in their picturesque life in the woods and their struggle with the Romans, written in both prose and true poetry by William Morris. Thiodolf's death to save his people fires the rare genius of the author of "The Earthly Paradise" and is worked into prose and verse that will lay hold upon critical appreciation. Miss Wormeley, impossible as it seems, has completed the translation of another of Balzac's studies in human life, "Les Paysans," which will be published under the name of "Sons of the Soil." It is a story of the land question in France, and the motto of the first chapter suggests the trend of the powerful book: "Whoso land hath, contention hath." This lady has also ready a volume of Balzac's short stories to be published under the title "Fame and Sorrow." A volume certain to add to the reputation of a great writer will be "The Future of Science," by Ernest Renan. "Miss Brooks" will be the title of a novel by Eliza O. White, author of "A Browning Courtship;" and "One Summer's Lessons in Practical Perspective," by Christine Chaplin Brush, the author of "The Colonel's Opera Cloak," will teach useful lessons in the form of a story.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS will issue, uniform in style with their Daudet books, Guy de Maupassant's powerful story of "Pierre and Jean," translated by Hugh Craig and illustrated from designs by Ernest Duez and Albert Lynch. The book will have a preface by the author. It gives a telling picture of family life, and is a subtle psychological study of the two brothers whose names make the title.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS' list of spring announcements is headed by Henry M. Stanley's forthcoming narrative of his perilous and adventurous journey to rescue Emin Pasha, the title of the work being "In Darkest Africa, or, the quest, rescue, and retreat of Emin, the Governor of Equatoria." It will be in two large octavo volumes, of the size of Stanley's "How I Found Livingstone," and will contain two steel-engravings, 182 full-page and other illustrations from photographs and sketches made by the party, with 16 maps, etc., which will make the story perfectly clear. The work will be sold only by subscription. Reginald B. Birch, whose illustrations for Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's "Little Lord Fauntleroy" have made the little hero of the author's most popular story known in hundreds of thousands of homes, has made no fewer than twelve full-page drawings for Mrs. Burnett's new book for young readers, "Little Saint Elizabeth, and other stories." The other tales in the book, "The Story of Prince Fairyfoot," "The Proud Little Grain of Wheat," and "Behind the White Brick," are, like the title story, full of the delightful humor and tenderness of feeling characteristic of Mrs. Burnett. The book will have a specially designed decorative cover and will be uniform with "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Three volumes, translated from the French of Imbert de Saint-Amand, by Thomas Sergeant Perry, give some extraordinarily vivid and entertaining pictures of the society and great personages of the period preceding, during, and following the French Revolution. These pictures are grouped around the three famous French women who gave brilliancy to the French court in this period and who give the titles to the volumes, "The Wife of the First Consul" (Josephine), "Marie Antoinette, and the End of the Ancient Régime," and "The Happy Days of the Empress Marie Louise." Each volume will contain a portrait, and the three will be uniform in price and in style of binding. A new volume of travels by the Rev. Dr. Henry M. Field is in press, this time a narrative of home journeyings in the Southern States, whither the author went for rest and health. The title of the book is "Bright Skies and Dark Shadows," which is suggestive of the beauty and attractiveness of nature and of the shadow of the race problem which hangs over that fair land. Dr. Field's book is not only descriptive and pleasantly historical in its pictures of some of the great scenes and in its portraits of some of the great figures of the war, but has much that is instructive and suggestive in his examination of the social and political problems which the presence and attitude of the colored race have brought to the front among public questions. In the domain of new fiction there is promised a new story, "The Lawton Girl," by Harold Frederic, a remarkably strong and artistic study of life in central New York;

"Expiation," by Octave Thanet, fully illustrated by A. B. Frost, an Arkansas story of the last year of the Civil War, containing many graphic pictures of the reckless life of the period and some subtle character studies, the rapid movement and exciting incidents of the tale uniting to make it remarkably fascinating reading; "The Broughton House," by Bliss Perry, a son of Professor Arthur L. Perry, of Williams College, a picture of a New England town during a summer, the place and the people being described with extraordinary vividness; and finally a collection of short stories by T. Russell Sullivan, the title of which is "Day and Night Stories." Mr. Sullivan's volume of stories, together with "The Lawton Girl," "Expiation," and a new story by Marion Harland entitled "With the Best Intentions," will be published in the Scribner's Yellow Paper Cover Series, as well as in cloth; and in the same series will also appear new editions of George W. Cable's "Bonaventure" and Edward Everett Hale's "Philip Nolan's Friends." Edward Eggleston's "Hoosier School-Boy" will also be issued in an edition specially arranged by the author for use as a reader in schools and with the addition of definitions and occasional notes and questions. A new book of peculiar timeliness by Professor Newman Smyth is "Personal Creeds, or, how to form a working-theory of life," which will be published in paper as well as in cloth covers, in order to give this striking work the widest possible popularity. Another important contribution to theological discussion will be Professor George P. Fisher's "Nature and Method of Revelation," consisting of the papers which have appeared in the Century, together with five new essays exhibiting the present state of critical discussions respecting the origin and date of the Gospels, and setting forth the main points of evidence for the genuineness and credibility of the Gospel narratives. In a pamphlet entitled "The Proposed Revision of the Westminster Standards," Professor W. G. T. Shedd, of the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, gives the conservative, anti-revision view of this great question. The lectures which the Rev. Dr. A. J. F. Behrends, of Brooklyn, delivered at Yale University last year will be published under the title of "The Philosophy of Preaching." "The Negro Question," by George W. Cable, consists of the address which the author delivered in Boston on Washington's Birthday in reply to the late Henry W. Grady's speech in the same city last winter, and of the "open letters" which the author has published on this important topic. In the realm of pure fun a new book of designs by the author of the popular "Stuff and Nonsense," A. B. Frost, will hold undisputed sway, the title being "Dizzy Joe, and other comics." Professor F. L. Ritter's "Music in America," enlarged by about a hundred pages, appears in a new edition; and a new and cheaper edition of W. A. Paton's delightfully written and beautifully illustrated "Down the Islands: a voyage to the Caribbees," is also issued. Travellers to Europe will also welcome the new edition of Professor L. C. Loomis' elaborately illustrated "Index Guide to Travel and Art Study in Europe."

SCRIBNER & WELFORD will put their imprint on "The Uncollected Writings of Thomas De Quincey," to be published in two volumes with preface and annotations by James Hogg and not to include writings published in any other edition of this author. They will complete The Henry Irving Shakespeare with the publication of the eighth volume. New volumes in the Ideal Series will be "Matthew Prior's Selected Poems," and "A New Pilgrimage," by Wilfrid Scawen Blunt; and among the early volumes in the third series of Illustrated Biographies of Great Authors will appear memoirs of "The Barbizon School," including Corot, Rousseau, Millet, Diaz, Daubigny, De Wint, etc., etc. There will be a second edition of "The Lord's Prayer," a practical meditation by Rev. Newman Hall; of "Robert Browning: essays and thoughts," by John T. Nettleship; and of "Cavendish on Whist." In the Bohn's Novelists' Library will appear Madame d'Arblay's "Evelina" and "Cecilia," with introduction and notes by Annie Raine Ellis, and Bjornson's "Arne and the Fisher Lassie." Several new volumes will also be added to Bohn's Standard Library.

W. J. SHUEY (United Brethren Publishing House) will issue in a short time "The People's Hymnal," edited by Rev. E. S. Lorenz, which will contain a large number of standard hymns with their most popular tunes and will be gotten up in various bindings ranging from the cheapest to full morocco. The editor's careful work on other books of similar character is guarantee of his fitness for his task of compiler, and the book will no doubt be suitable for general devotional use.

E. & F. N. SPON will bring out some good technical works, full titles of which will be found in our classified list under the heading of Arts and Sciences.

FREDERICK A. STOKES & BROTHER will have ready for Easter and spring "Lily Time," new pictures of children by Maud Humphrey, representing six little children among masses of lilies, and "The Dead Bird," in which Mrs. J. Pauline Sunter represents five little children and their dog mourning over a dead robin, under an apple tree in full blossom. A new volume in the Good Form Series will be "Dinners," in which the author of "Social Etiquette of New York" describes ceremonious and unceremonious dinners with modern methods of serving them. A remarkable little volume in leather binding of quaint and unique appearance will be made of "Warwick's Spare Minutes, 1637," and the house announces many new volumes in the Handy Volume Standards.

E. B. TREAT has just ready a new edition of "The Lost Cause," by Edward A. Pollard, late editor of the Richmond Examiner, which gives an authentic account of the rise and progress of the Southern Confederacy, with twenty-four steel portraits of Confederate leaders, and includes an appreciative sketch of Jefferson Davis, by Hon. Wm. F. Sanford, of Alabama. He has lately issued "Famous Women of Sacred Story," a series of thirty-two lectures by Rev. M. B. Wharton. The "Medical Annual" for 1890, and the "Home Physician" for 1890 are also ready, and new editions have been prepared of his various medical publications.

D. VAN NOSTRAND Co. make several important announcements, of which full titles will be found in the classified list in this number under the headings of Arts and Sciences, or else under Education, Language, etc.

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & Co. announce the concluding volume of Stedman's and Hutchinson's "Library of American Literature." This eleventh volume of this monumental publication will be composed of biographical notices of every author mentioned in the work, an exhaustive topical index, and extracts from recent important literary productions, besides a classified literary analysis of the whole work, with the number of selections under each heading which appear in the book.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just ready "The Battle of Life," a series of mission sermons by Rev. H. J. Wilmot-Buxton; "Church and Creed," sermons preached in the chapel of the Foundling Hospital, London, by Alfred Williams Momerie, Professor of Logic and Metaphysics in King's College, London; the second series of "Sermons by Rev. H. P. Liddon," in the Contemporary Pulpit Library; a new cheap edition of "Footprints of the Son of Man," by Herbert Mortimer Luckock; "The Church in Thy House," daily family prayers by Rev. Rufus W. Clark, Rector of St. Paul's, Detroit; and "Beside the Cross," Good Friday meditations, by Rev. George Hodges. He announces to be issued shortly "Christian Theism," by Rev. C. A. Row; "Truth to Live By," by Canon Farrar; and "Cecil's Story of the Dove," by an author hidden under the initials E. A. B. S.

JOHN WILEY & SONS make several important announcements, of which full titles will be found in the classified list in this number under the headings of Arts and Sciences, or else under Education, Language, etc.

THE JOHN WILKINSON Co., Chicago, will issue "The Amateur Photographer's Handbook," a manual of instruction of photography made easy by Arthur Hope, author of "Wood-Carving," "Engraving on Wood," etc., a practical book explaining the various practices of the art clearly, so that one entirely unacquainted with even the rudiments of photography can learn to do good work in a short time.

THE WORTHINGTON Co. announce another novel by W. Heimburg, to be entitled "Lucy's Mistake," and also a new story of American fashionable life, to be called "The Feet of Love," by Anne Reeve Aldrich, author of a volume of poems brought out under the title of "A Rose of Flame."

WILLIAM H. YOUNG, Troy, N. Y., has in press two books by Arthur James Weise, to be issued about the first of June under the titles "Representative Men" and "One Hundred Years." Both volumes will be illustrated.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

ELSIE LESLIE LYDE and her share in "The Prince and the Pauper" is the subject of an article by Edward Fales Coward in Harper's Young People this week. The article is illustrated by photographs and a drawing from life by Albert E. Sterner.

THE current issue of Garden and Forest prints a complete list of the works treating of landscape gardening, which have been published in English, French, German and Italian since 1625, the date of Lord Bacon's famous essay. It includes not only all books and pamphlets, but all articles and reviews on the subject, and covers nearly five closely printed pages. To make room for this list, which is a work of permanent value, the paper has been enlarged, and contains, besides an illustration of Clermont on the Hudson, with a description by Charles Eliot, its usual amount of matter in the various fields of horticulture and forestry.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

FOR SALE.—THE EXCHANGE PUBLISHING Co., 54 Broad St., N. Y., retiring from business, offers for sale the new electrotypes plates and copyright, 1889, of the dramatic novel,

A FALSE COUPLE,

227 pages, large type, and retailed at 50 cents. A limited edition of only 1750 was published.

To sum up press comments: "Bright, cheery, intensely dramatic, almost every chapter ending like a play. The humorous story running through it is just as interesting as the most serious parts. It will repay reading."

Parties having the facilities, and understanding the book-business, this is a good chance.

Books printed from these plates, on cheap paper, in quantities, can be gotten up at cost of about 3½ to 4 cents a book.

An attractive engraving for the cover also included. Any reasonable bid will be accepted. Bids solicited.

HEROES OF THE NATIONS.

A series of biographical studies of the lives and work of certain representative historical characters, about whom have gathered the great traditions of the nations to which they belonged, and who have been accepted, in many instances, as types of the several national ideals. With the life of each typical character will be presented a picture of the national conditions surrounding him during his career. "The Heroes of the Nations" will be under the editorial supervision of EVELYN ABBOTT, M.A., Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford. To the life of each "Hero" will be given one duodecimo volume, handsomely printed in large type, provided with maps, and adequately illustrated according to the special requirements of the several subjects. The volumes will be sold separately as follows: cloth extra, $1.50; cloth extra, uncut edges, gilt top, $1.75; large paper, uncut edges (planned for extra illustrations; but 250 copies printed), $3.50.

THE FIRST ISSUES IN THIS SERIES WILL BE:

Nelson, and the Naval Supremacy of England. By W. CLARK RUSSELL, author of "The Wreck of the Grosvenor," etc. (Ready in April.)

Pericles, and the Golden Age of Athens. By EVELYN ABBOTT, M.A., Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford.

Gustavus Adolphus, and the Struggle of Protestantism for Existence. By C. R. L. FLETCHER, M.A., late Fellow of All Souls College, Oxford.

THESE WILL SHORTLY BE FOLLOWED BY:

Alexander the Great, and the Extension of Greek Rule and of Greek Ideas. By Prof. BENJAMIN J. WHEELER, Cornell University.

Theoderic the Goth, the Barbarian Champion of Civilization. By THOMAS HODGKIN, author of "Italy and Her Invaders," etc.

Charlemagne, the Reorganizer of Europe. By GEORGE L. BURR, M.A., Cornell University.

Henry of Navarre, and the Huguenots in France. By P. F. WILLERT, M.A., Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford.

William of Orange, the Founder of the Dutch Republic. By RUTH PUTNAM.

Cicero, and the Fall of the Roman Republic. By J. I. STRACHAN DAVIDSON, M.A., Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford.

Julius Cæsar, and the Organization of the Roman Empire. By W. WARDE FOWLER, M.A., Fellow of Lincoln College, Oxford.

Sir Walter Raleigh, and the Adventurers of England. By A. L. SMITH, M.A., Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford.

Bismarck. The New German Empire: How It Arose; What It Replaced; and What It Stands for. By JAMES SIME, author of "A Life of Lessing," etc.

THE STORY OF THE NATIONS.

XXVI.—The Story of Early Britain. By ALFRED J. CHURCH, author of "The Story of Carthage," etc., $1.50.

"A better volume than 'Early Britain' will scarcely be found, and when we say that about it, we mean to praise it very much indeed, for the series is a most admirable one. Prof. Church has succeeded not only in gathering an enormous amount of information into little compass, but he has also succeeded in making it read like a story-book."—Civil Service Gazette.

XXVII.—The Story of the Barbary Corsairs. By STANLEY LANE-POOLE, author of "The Story of Turkey," "The Moors in Spain," etc. With the collaboration of Lieut. J. D. Jerrold Kelley, U. S. Navy. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.50.

"It is scholarly, accurate, finished in style, abounding in graphic description, and is, in short, a thrillingly interesting history."—Boston Traveller.

XXVIII.—The Story of Russia. By W. R. MORFILL, of Oriel College, Oxford.

XXX.—The Story of Scotland. By JAMES MACINTOSH, LL.D.

English Wayfaring Life in the Middle Ages (Fourteenth Century).

By J. J. JUSSERAND. Translated from the French by Lucy Toulmin Smith. New and cheaper edition. Fully Illustrated. Octavo, pp. 451, $3.50.

"We can heartily recommend this book as one of the pleasantest and most carefully executed pictures of a side of English mediæval life that we have met with for a long time."—Saturday Review.

"Have you seen a book just published by M. Jusserand, of the French Embassy, entitled, 'English Wayfaring Life in the Middle Ages'? If not, let me assure you that the sooner you get it the better for yourself and your friends, for you are certain to talk about it, and talk out of it, and in proportion as you do so will the liveliness of your conversation be remarked upon!"—AUGUSTUS JESSOP in Nineteenth Century.

A History of Austro-Hungary from the Earliest Time to the Year 1889.

By LOUIS LEGER. Translated from the French by Mrs. Birkbeck Hill, with a preface by Edward A. Freeman. With map, $2.25.

"We have for the first time a succinct and easily consulted history, in our own tongue, of a state which, though slightly and imperfectly known, has undoubtedly a great role to play in the affairs of southern Europe."—The Critic.

The Writings and Correspondence of John Jay, First Chief Justice of the United States. Edited by HENRY P. JOHNSTON, Professor of American History in the College of the City of New York, with the coöperation of John Jay. The set is to be complete in four volumes octavo, uniform in size and style to the editions already issued of the writings of "Hamilton," "Franklin," and "Washington." The edition, will, like these, be printed from type, and will be limited to 750 copies. The price for the set of four volumes will be $20.00.

The Poetry of the Anti-Jacobin. Comprising the Celebrated Political and Satirical Poems, Parodies, and Jeux d'Esprit of Canning, Frere, Wellesley, Ellis, Gifford, Pitt, and others. With explanatory notes, biographical and historical notices, complete list of the authors, and an index. Edited by CHARLES EDMUNDS. Illustrated from the original plates by Gilroy. To the poetry will be added a number of the prose selections, including the papers on "American Affairs," the personal and abusive indexes, etc. Limited edition, crown octavo $2.50.

The Trials of a Country Parson. By AUGUSTUS JESSOP, D.D., author of "Arcady," etc. 12mo, cloth extra, uniform with "Arcady" and "The Coming of the Friars," $1.75.

Knickerbocker Nuggets.

XXVI.—The Garden, as Considered in Literature by Certain Polite Writers. With a Critical Essay by WALTER HOWE. With portrait of William Kent, $1.00.

"Altogether, it is a charming little book, and no lover of gardens can venture to dispense with it."—The Beacon, Boston.

XXVII.—The Boyhood and Youth of Goethe. Comprising the first eleven books of his autobiography (Truth and Poetry from My Own Life). Two vols., $2.00.

XXVIII.—Letters of Philip Dormer, Fourth Earl of Chesterfield. Second series. 2 vols., $2.00.

XXIX.—The Sayings of Poor Richard. Being the Prefaces, Proverbs, and Poems of Benjamin Franklin, originally printed in Poor Richard's Almanacs for 1733-1758. Collected and edited by PAUL LEICESTER FORD. $1.00.

Six to One. By EDWARD BELLAMY, author of "Looking Backward," etc. 16mo, new and revised edition, pap., 35 cents.

"Humor is not the only quality of this little gem of a story, but it is that for which the reader feels most grateful; it is so quaint, so odd, so indefinable of a sort which is thoroughly individual and independent of opinion."—London Spectator.

A Far Look Ahead; or, The Diothas. Third edition. 16mo, paper, 50 cents.

"The book is devoted to customs, habits, and love in the misty future, and for pure, genuine imagination most charmingly worked out, is unexcelled."—Boston Evening Transcript.

"A fiction like this, which is characterized by so much thoughtfulness, so much ingenuity, so much playfulness, fancy, and imagination, together with a dash of poetry, and which, moreover, is written in so lucid and pleasing a style, ought to be a very great success."—N. Y. Evening Telegram.

The Hammer. A tale of Palestine in the time of Judas Maccabæus. By the Rev. ALFRED C. CHURCH. Illustrated. 12mo, uniform with the "Three Greek Children," and "To the Lions," by the same author, $1.25.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co.'s

NEW BOOKS, SPRING, 1890.

FICTION.

The Master of the Magicians. A Story of Babylon and the Prophet Daniel. By HERBERT D. WARD and ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS. 1 vol., 16mo.

The Tragic Muse. By HENRY JAMES, author of "The Portrait of a Lady," etc. 2 vols., 16mo, $2.50.
Some of the best American critics pronounce this the most noteworthy novel Mr. James has yet written.

Jack Horner. By MARY S. TIERNAN, author of "Homoselle." 16mo, $1.25.
A thoroughly interesting story of the time of the war for the Union.

The Mistress of Beech Knoll. By CLARA A. BURNHAM, author of "Next Door," "Dearly Bought," etc. 1 vol., 16mo.
An engaging story by a popular writer.

A Waif of the Plains. By BRET HARTE. 18mo, $1.00.
Another of Mr. Harte's inimitable stories of far Western life.

Short Stories Told for Young Children. By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN, author of "The Birds' Christmas Carol," "The Story of Patsy," "A Summer in a Cañon."
Mrs. Wiggin's name is quite sufficient guarantee of the sprightliness and charm of these stories.

Sixty Folk-Tales. From exclusively Slavonic sources. Translated, with brief introductions and notes, by A. H. WRATISLAW, M.A., sometime Fellow and Tutor of Christ's College, Cambridge. Crown 8vo, $2.00.

The Story of Margaret Kent. By ELLEN OLNEY KIRK. New edition. 16mo, cloth, price reduced to $1.25.
An attractive, every way desirable edition of a novel which has enjoyed a remarkable popularity.

POETRY.

The North Shore Watch, and Other Poems. By GEORGE E. WOODBERRY, author of "Edgar Allan Poe" in the series of "American Men of Letters." 16mo, in an artistic binding, gilt top, $1.25.

Poems. By JOHN HAY, author of "Castilian Days," etc.
A tasteful edition of Col. Hay's poems, including "Pike County Ballads," and those he has written since the publication of that book.

Easter Gleams. Poems for the Easter season. By LUCY LARCOM. Not included in her previous volumes. Parchment paper, 75 cents.

BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY.

Economic and Social History of New England. A work of great research and interest, by WILLIAM B. WEDDEN. 2 vols., crown 8vo.

The Problem of the Northmen. A Letter to Judge Daly, the President of the American Geographical Society, on the opinion of Justin Winsor, that "Though Scandinavians may have reached the shores of Labrador, the soil of the United States has not one vestige of their presence." By EBEN NORTON HORSFORD. With eight photographs and maps. Quarto, $1.00, net.

John Jay. Vol. 23 in "American Statesmen Series." By GEORGE PELLEW. 16mo, $1.25.

Matthew Calbraith Perry. A typical American naval officer. By WILLIAM ELLIOT GRIFFIS, D.D., author of "The Mikado's Empire," etc. New edition. With portrait, $2.00.

Alexander. A history of the origin and growth of the art of war from the earliest times to the battle of Ipsus, B.C. 301, with a detailed account of the campaigns of the great Macedonian. By THEODORE AYRAULT DODGE, Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel United States Army, Retired List, author of "A Bird's-Eye View of our Civil War," "The Campaign of Chancellorsville," "Patroclus and Penelope," "Great Captains," etc. With 237 charts, maps, plans of battles and tactical manoeuvres, cuts of armor, uniforms, siege devices, and portraits. 8vo, $5.00.

Louis Agassiz. His Life and Correspondence. By ELIZABETH C. AGASSIZ. With portraits and illustrations. Two vols. in one, crown 8vo, $2.50.

New and Forthcoming Publications.

A NEW BOOK BY FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT.

LITTLE SAINT ELIZABETH,
And Other Stories. By FRANCES HODGSON
BURNETT. With 12 new full-page drawings by Reginald B. Birch. Square 8vo, uniform with "Little Lord Fauntleroy," $1.50.

Mrs. Burnett's "Little St. Elizabeth" is a story that reminds one of the author's "Fauntleroy" in the art and feeling with which the girl's character and the incidents of her life are pictured. The lovable little maid is of French birth, and her education has been among priests and with relatives whose devotion to the Church and to the poor is great. Her adventures after she is brought, under peculiar circumstances, to New York, and is placed in the care of a bachelor uncle, form the theme of the fascinating story. The other tales, "The Story of Prince Fairyfoot," "The Proud Little Grain of Wheat," and "Behind the White Brick," are, like the title story, full of the delightful humor and tenderness of feeling characteristic of Mrs. Burnett.

"Elizabeth is as charming a girl creation as Mrs. Burnett's boy hero Little Lord Fauntleroy."—London Graphic

"Elizabeth is one of the most winning of Mrs. Burnett's child heroines."—London Athenaeum

UNIFORM WITH THE ABOVE.

Little Lord Fauntleroy. Illustrated by R. B. Birch. Square 8vo, $1.00.

Sara Crowe; or, What Happened at Miss Minchin's. Illustrated by R. B. Birch. Square 8vo, $1.00.

THREE FAMOUS FRENCH WOMEN.

The Wife of the First Consul.

Translated from the French of Imbert de Saint-Amand, by T. S. PERRY. With portrait, 12mo, $1.25.

From the French of the same author.

The Happy Days of the Empress Marie Louise. With portrait, 12mo. In press.

Within the past few years M. Imbert de Saint-Amand has written a series of volumes which have made him one of the most popular authors of France. Each has for its nucleus some portion of the life of one of the three eminent women who presided over the French court, either at Versailles or the Tuileries, immediately before, during, and after the revolutionary epoch. But though thus largely biographical, the volumes are equally pictures of the times they describe. Probably no times in any country were ever so picturesque, so crowded with events, and so peopled with striking characters, and M. Imbert de Saint-Amand conveys an impression of them unrivalled for reality and vivacity.

English Lands, Letters, and Kings. Vol. II.

From Elizabeth to Anne. By DONALD G. MITCHELL. 12mo, $1.50.

The second volume of Mr. Mitchell's talks about historical and literary England covers the period from James I. to Queen Anne, Shakespeare being the first and Swift the last personage of importance who passes under review of the sympathetic commentator and critic. The novelty of the author's point of view, the suggestiveness of his portraits and pictures, and the unique charm of his style, unite to make the book as noteworthy as its predecessor.

ENGLISH LANDS, LETTERS, AND KINGS. Vol. I., From Celt to Tudor. 12mo, $1.50.

"A bright, pleasant, chatty record, true to history, and full of useful hints and suggestions."—Boston Sat. Eve. Gazette

"A most charming book for lovers of the purest and best literature."—Hartford Post.

THE LAWTON GIRL.

By HAROLD FREDERIC. 12mo, cloth, $1.25 ; paper, 50 cents.

Mr. Frederic's new story is a powerful piece of romantic realism, characterizing vividly not only the personages of the novel, but the entire social life of the town in which the scene is laid. This is, like that of "Seth's Brother's Wife," in Central New York, and the book abounds in local color of a kind that is not merely striking but significant. The story has a very strong human and pathetic side, and the trials, struggles, and accomplishments of "The Lawton Girl" are depicted with a delicate sympathy and a gentle touch that widen the appeal of an already admirable work of literary art.

Literature and Poetry.

By PHILIP SCHAFF, D.D. 8vo, $3.00.

The essays which make up this volume treat of "The English Language," "The Poetry of the Bible," "The Dies Iræ," "St Bernard as a Hymnist," "The University Past, Present, and Future," "Dante Alighieri," and many other interesting literary topics, revealing throughout the breadth of the author's learning, the acuteness of his critical faculty, and the popular character of his method and style.

The Poetry of Tennyson.

By HENRY VAN DYKE, D.D. 12mo, $1.50.

"The volume addresses the cultivated tastes of all who love a true poetry. It is the fruit of years of appreciative study of the poet. We owe the author a debt of thanks for giving us this estimate, so careful, so scholarly, so full of true devotion to poetry in its largest meaning."—Rev. JAMES O. MURRAY, Professor of English Literature in Princeton College.

EXPIATION.

By OCTAVE THANET. Illustrated by A. B. FROST. 12mo, cloth, $1.00 ; paper, 50 cents.

Octave Thanet's short stories of Western and Southern life have delighted magazine readers for a number of years; and this venture into the broader fields of fiction shows a strength and a breadth of artistic purpose that will change this admiration into enthusiasm. The scene of the story is Arkansas in the period when the country was infested with murderous guerillas, the offscourings of the Confederate Army, and the narrative is one of extraordinary vividness and graphic power.

History of the United States.

By HENRY ADAMS. Vols. 1 and 2. THE FIRST ADMINISTRATION OF THOMAS JEFFERSON, $4.00.
Vols. 3 and 4. THE SECOND ADMINISTRATION OF THOMAS JEFFERSON, $4.00.

"It would be difficult to speak too highly of the work. Mr. Adams has exhibited all the qualities of the ideal historian. He is thorough in research, exact in statement, judicial in tone, broad of view, picturesque and impressive in description, nervous and expressive in style."—N. Y. Tribune.

Emigration and Immigration.

A Study in Social Science. By Prof. RICHMOND M. SMITH, of Columbia College. 12mo, $1.50.

Prof. Smith's book is extremely comprehensive in scope and liberal in treatment. It is a popular examination of one of the most urgent of present-day problems from historical, statistical, economic, and social points of view, the information being full and exact, and the author's style being a model of terseness and clearness.

"It is work that in comprehensiveness, conciseness, and usefulness it would be difficult to surpass."—Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

THE NEGRO QUESTION.

By GEORGE W. CABLE. 12mo, 75 cents.

The address which Mr. Cable delivered on Washington's Birthday before the Massachusetts Club, in reply to the memorable speech by the late Henry W. Grady, is the leading feature of this volume, which also contains the "open letters" by Mr. Cable on this timely and important subject.

Religious Aspect of Evolution

By JAMES MCCOSH, D.D., LL.D., Litt.D. 12mo, $1.00.

Dr. McCosh's belief in evolution is well known, and his purpose in this series of lectures is to show that the theory of evolution is not inconsistent with religion, and that one may follow science and still retain his faith in the Bible.

"One of the best epitomes of the relation of the Creator to his earth, in the process of creation, that has been written."—Hartford Courant.

The United States:

ITS HISTORY AND CONSTITUTION. By ALEXANDER JOHNSTON. 12mo, $1.00.

A lucid, scholarly, well-ordered narrative of the history of the United States from the earliest discoveries down to the present day.

"On account of its broad philosophical spirit, its insight into causes, and its lucid style, I regard it as one of the most valuable contributions to American history."—Prof. John Fiske.

The Proposed Revision of the Westminster Standards.

By W. G. T. SHEDD, D.D., Professor in the Union Theological Seminary, New York. 12mo, paper, 50 cents, net.

Dr. Shedd's pamphlet gives, with all of the argumentative force and brilliancy of style of which he is the acknowledged master, the conservative, anti-revision view of all phases of this great question.

IMPORTANT DISCUSSIONS OF THE REVISION QUESTION.

Biblical History.

A Lecture by CHARLES A. BRIGGS, D.D. 12mo, paper, 30 cents, net.

"Prof. Briggs justifies the Higher Criticism, and shows its splendid results in having demonstrated the fourfold method of Biblical composition."—The Critic.

Whither? O Whither?

TELL ME WHERE. By JAMES MCCOSH, Litt.D., LL.D., D.D. 12mo, paper, 50 cents net.

"He deprecates the lack of positive teaching, the effect upon young men, the poetical theories, the Biblical theories, and the middle state teachings of Dorner."—Northwestern Presbyterian.

Creed Revision

IN THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES. By PHILIP SCHAFF, D.D. 12mo, paper, 50 cents, net.

"Dr. Schaff is a stanch advocate of the proposed revision, and his whole pamphlet is full of vigor, catholicity, and interest."—Congregationalist.

Whither? A Theological Question for the Times.

By the Rev. CHARLES AUGUSTUS BRIGGS, D.D. 8vo, $1.75. Third edition.

"A critical treatise on Westminster and modern theology, and also on church life and Christian unity. It attacks great problems of religious thinking, sheds light upon them, and hints at their solution."—The Critic.

A Theory of Conduct.

By ARCHIBALD ALEXANDER. 12mo, $1.00.

"This little treatise aims to dispose alike of all egoistic and altruistic pleas as motives to morality, and to show that the consistent performance of duty must necessarily depend on a recognition of the truths of Christianity."—Boston Beacon.

A LIST OF FORTHCOMING PUBLICATIONS.

The Philosophy of Preaching.

By Rev. A. J. F. BEHREND. 12mo, $1.00.

The Nature and Method of Revelation.

By G. P. FISHER, D.D. 12mo, $1.25.

Personal Creeds; or, How to Form a Working Theory of Life.

By Rev. NEWMAN SMYTH. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

Bright Skies and Dark Shadows.

By Rev. HENRY M. FIELD, D.D. 8vo, $1.50.

With the Best Intentions.

A Novel. By MARION HARLAND. 12mo, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

Day and Night Stories.

By T. R. SULLIVAN. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

The Broughton House.

A Novel. By BLISS PERRY. 12mo, $1.25.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

A NEW WORK BY PROF. DANA.

CHARACTERISTICS OF VOLCANOES

With Contributions of Facts and Principles from the Hawaiian Islands. By JAMES D. DANA, Professor of Geology in Yale University. With many maps and illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $5.00.

CORALS AND CORAL ISLANDS.

By JAMES D. DANA, Professor of Geology in Yale University. With many maps and beautiful illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $5.00.

This book was first issued eighteen years ago, and has passed through several editions. The present one has been thoroughly revised and brought down to date by the addition of upward of 150 pages of new matter. Four full-page plates, in color, have also been added.

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

UNDER THE CONSTITUTION. By JAMES SCHOULER. 4 vols., 8vo, cloth, $9.00.

This standard work, which has heretofore been published by Mr. W. H. Morrison, of Washington, has been added to our list, and a new edition is now offered in a style more worthy of its merits. The old edition will be furnished at the former price until exhausted. Of this work the Nation says:

"It is the most real history of the United States yet produced for the period it covers."

And Hon. GEORGE BANCROFT, the veteran historian, says:

"I recognize in all I have read faithful investigation and superiority to prejudice."

THE STORIES OF THE THREE BURGLARS.

By FRANK R. STOCKTON. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

THE GREAT WAR SYNDICATE.

By FRANK R. STOCKTON. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

Both of these stories are written in that same strain of cheerful humor which has made Mr. Stockton's reputation world-wide.

A POWERFUL NOVEL BY A NEW AUTHOR.

MISS MORDECK'S FATHER.

By FANI PUSEY. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

PALESTINE.

By Major CONDER, R.E., Leader of the Palestine Exploration Expeditions. With maps and illustrations. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

The second volume in the series of "Great Explorers and Explorations."

ALREADY PUBLISHED IN THIS SERIES.

LIFE OF JOHN DAVIS,

ARCTIC EXPLORER AND EARLY INDIA NAVIGATOR, being the first volume of the series of "Great Explorers and Explorations." By CLEMENTS R. R. MARKHAM, C.B., F.R.S. With maps and illustrations. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

D. Lothrop Company's New Books.

A Chronicle of Conquest. By Frances C. Sparhawk, author of "Little Polly Blatchley." 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

Polly, now a brilliant but earnest young lady of eighteen, goes to Carlisle for a season, and becomes intensely interested in the work which is being done for the Indians. The reader cannot fail to catch the contagion of her enthusiasm, as he follows the course of the story to Western plains, to the reservations, to Florida, and wherever the awakened interest in the "nation's wards" is showing its hearty and practical workings. The book is worthy, in its strong and earnest pleading, to take its place beside "Ramona."

The Fairhaven Fourteen. By Mariana M. Tallman, author of "Tent V, Chautauqua." 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

This is a sprightly story of the good work done in a somewhat listless and disorganized Sunday-school by a Young People's Society, formed at first of only fourteen members. The little band of workers achieved noble results in helping the poor, awakening new life in the church, and brightening things generally, and their record cannot fail to act as a spur to all youthful Christian endeavor.

The Dalzells of Daisydown. By E. Vinton Blake. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Given three bright, jolly, wide-awake boys and a girl equally full of spirit and life and earnestness, with a charming country home and all the accessories for enjoyment, and one can well conceive of the gay frolics and adventures that are sure to follow. The story is as bracing as the sea breezes around Daisydown, as wholesome as the breath of its pines, and as fragrant with sweet influences as the rose garden which the young people loved.

A Little Servant. By Grace Livingston, author of "A Chautauqua Idyl." Cloth, 50 cents.

The little girl whose simple summer story is here told was called "God's little servant" by her grandma, because of the faithful work she did for her Master, in her own sweet, innocent way. It is a dainty conception of the possibilities for good in child-life, tenderly and beautifully told.

Eggs: Facts and Fancies About Them. Compiled by Anna Barrows. Illustrated. Cloth, $1.00; gilt edges, $1.25.

Mythology, history, literature, art, theology, commerce, and every-day home-life are all outlined in this novel and quaint summary of what the learned and the unlearned world have known or believed or fancied about the egg. The book has a thoroughly practical as well as an æsthetic side, and will be found especially interesting in the Lenten and Easter season.

The Catholic Man. By Mrs. Lawrence Turnbull. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

A notable new novel of home and society life in New York City during the late Civil War; still in no sense a domestic or society novel. It is a history of aspiration and endeavor, of enthusiasm, of great dreams and generous beliefs as they were manifested in three would-be reformers of very different temperaments—a poet, a physician, and a society girl who wanted to do something with her life. Its key-note is, "The ideal is the real."

"The Catholic Man" is as catholic as its title, and fairly contagious with aspiration. It is a rare novel of which both these things can be said."—Boston Book Bulletin.

Stories of New France. By Miss A. M. Machar and Thomas G. Marquis. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

If any have imagined Canadian history dull reading, this book will thoroughly convince them of the contrary. While it is essentially a history of Canada from the time it was discovered to the fall of Quebec, and as such scholarly and reliable, it is in seeming little more than a collection of captivating stories, through which a slight binding thread of narrative runs. It is a panorama—now beautiful, now joyous, now weird, now desolate—of eventful history and tragic fate. It forms a capital introduction to Canadian history, without which it is impossible to understand our own.

Superior to Circumstances. By Emily Lucas Blackall. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"No Sunday-school need hesitate to place this book in its library, for it is free from all sentimentality, and teaches a practical kind of Christianity of which the world stands in need."—Christian Inquirer, New York.

Aids to Endeavor. Short selections from standard authors, designed for public and private use. With an introduction by Rev. Francis E. Clarke, D.D., President of the United Society of Christian Endeavor. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents; gilt edges, $1.00.

The sudden and great popularity of this book shows that it fills a widely-felt need, not only among Christian Endeavor workers, but in the home and Sunday-school. Its carefully selected extracts touch all phases of life, all moods of the soul, and prove so many seed-thoughts towards the growth of pure and ennobling sentiments.

The Shop. By Albert E. Winship, editor of the Journal of Education. 12mo, cloth, 60 cents.

The author says his "aim is simply to call attention to the possibilities and probabilities of social, home, church, and political reform, through a keener appreciation of the labor-life of the people."

"Full of suggestive and stimulating things which are certain to set readers to thinking."—Boston Journal.

Wellsprings of Wisdom. From the words and writings of England's great divine, Frederick W. Robertson. Edited, with an introduction, by Rose Porter. 12mo, $1.00.

"Splendid courage, exalted fervor, extraordinary insight, and a genuine love for living men and women were blended in him into a rare and radiant manhood that fairly illuminates his writings."—Boston Transcript.

Those Raeburn Girls. By Mrs. A. F. Raffensperger, author of "Patience Preston, M.D." 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"The efforts and experiences of the Raeburn Girls are as interesting as a story as they are valuable as an example."—Portland Transcript.

Wide Awake. Vol. BB. Illustrated. Quarto, $1.50.

It contains "Five Little Peppers Midway," by Margaret Sidney, and J. T. Trowbridge's "Adventures of David Vane and David Crane;" also poems, short stories, travel and biographical sketches, and art papers.

NEW EDITIONS.

Pine Cone Series. By Willis Boyd Allen. New edition. 5 vols., $1.00 each; the set, in box, $5.00.

This series embraces "Pine Cones," "Silver Rags," "Northern Cross," "Kelp," and "Cloud and Cliff," all immensely popular with the young people.

The Boston Herald says: "Mr. Willis Boyd Allen is one of our finest writers of juvenile fiction. There is an open frankness in his characters which render them quite as novel as interesting."

Our Asiatic Cousins. By Mrs. A. H. Leonowens. $1.50.

Around the World Stories. By Olive Risley Seward. $1.25.

Naval Cadet Bently. By H. H. Clark, U. S. N., author of "Boy Life in the United States Navy." $1.50.

Story of the American Soldier. By E. S. Brooks. Uniform with "Story of the American Sailor" and "Story of the American Indian." Library binding. $2.50.

Secrets at Roseladies. By M. H. Catherwood. $1.00.

What's Mine's Mine. By George Macdonald. $1.50.

Our Town. By Margaret Sidney. $1.25.

My Uncle Florimond. By Sidney Luska. $1.00.

The Little Red Shop. By Margaret Sidney. $1.00.

A NEW ÉDITION DE LUXE OF Charles Dickens' Complete Works.

LIMITED TO 1000 NUMBERED SETS.

Unquestionably the handsomest edition of Dickens' writings—the nearest approach to the highest ideals of perfection in book-making—ever attempted in this country.

The type is from a new font, especially cast for it, and never used for any other purpose.

The paper—also especially made for it—combines the qualities of excellence in finish and in the materials used, with a lightness of weight that prevents the volume from being uncomfortably heavy to hold and read.

The illustrations—half the value of a good edition of Dickens—are incomparably superior to any ever issued in any edition printed in this country, and are only excelled—if at all—by the original issues of each volume, sets of which bring from one to two thousand dollars.

All the original etchings by Cruikshank and others have been carefully re-etched, line for line, from brilliant original proof impressions, and proofs taken for this edition on imperial Japanese paper. The wood-engravings are printed on Japanese paper from electrotypes never before used, furnished by Dickens' original publishers.

The set will be completed in 45 volumes, at the rate of about two volumes per month.

Price, bound in vellum cloth, gilt tops, uncut, $2.50 per vol.

Issued by subscription only, and no orders taken except for complete sets. Prospectus, with specimen showing type, page, paper, etc., with specimen illustration, mailed free upon application.

Spring List of New Books, Etc.

JUST PUBLISHED:

ROBERTSON OF IRVINE, Poet-Preacher. By ARTHUR GUTHRIE, Ardrossan, N. B. With portrait and view of Trinity Church. 12mo, cloth extra, $1.75.

The writer in this volume has sought to recall ROBERTSON, the Man and Preacher; his ministerial career in Irvine; addresses, speeches, and sermons delivered on special occasions; and recollections of personal intercourse, extending over a quarter of a century, furnished the necessary material.

"You have done me a great honor by sending me so interesting a work in so kind a manner."

"HAWARDEN, Dec. 26, 1889. W. E. GLADSTONE."

"The book is invested with a perennial power. It gives a full and faithful view of one of the most remarkable preachers of our century, who was a poet and a humorist as well as a preacher; and the delineation is therefore, in our opinion, likely to live."—Christian Leader.

GLORIA PATRI. A Book of Private Prayer for Morning and Evening. By J. R. MACDUFF, D.D., author of "Morning and Night Watches." 16mo, cloth extra, with red line borders, $1.00.

"A most helpful book of prayers for private devotion. This work is most characteristic throughout of Dr. MACDUFF. It is devoutness expressed in felicitous language, and will be a great aid to those who use such helps."—New York Observer.

NEW AND CHEAPER EDITION.

LIFE AND LETTERS OF WILLIAM FLEMING STEVENSON, Minister of Christ Church, Rathgar, Dublin. By his Wife. With portrait. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

NEW SUNDAY-SCHOOL BOOKS.

AUNT BELL, the Good Fairy of the Family. With the story of her Four-footed Black Guards. By HENLEY I. ARDEN. 18mo, cloth extra, 60 cents.

"A capital book for the young." "The aim of the writer is obviously to show the responsibility which attaches to the possession of great privileges."

ACHIEVEMENTS OF YOUTH (The). By Rev. ROBT. STEEL, D.D. 12mo, cloth extra, $1.25.

"A series of examples selected from various spheres of thought and life, to illustrate what has been accomplished by youths who diligently cultivate their powers and opportunities."

"It cannot be too highly commended."—New York Observer.

DICKIE WINTON; or, Between Gate and Front Door. By S. G. 18mo, cloth extra, 60 cents.

"An interesting story for children."

FAIRY COBBLER'S GOLD (The). A Story for Boys. By ETHEL PENROSE, author of "We Fell Out, My Wife and I." 18mo, cloth extra, 50 cents.

"A very amusing and somewhat affecting tale for children. The style is at once lively and attractive, and the moral teaching unexceptionable."

GRANNY. A Village Story. By the author of "Great Englishmen," "Great Englishwomen." 18mo, cloth extra, 50 cents.

"The simple, impressive way in which is shown in this story the beauty of trust in God and of patient, cheerful submission to His will, together with the quiet touches of humor and pathos in which it abounds, will make it acceptable to young folks."

GOING ON PILGRIMAGE. A Companion to the "Pilgrim's Progress," for Young Pilgrims. By LUCY TAYLOR, author of "The Children's Champion, and the Victories He Won." 12mo, cloth extra, 80 cents.

"It has all the interest for youthful minds that Bunyan's immortal work has for minds mature, and more could not well be said."—Journal of Education.

MASTER TRAVNERS. By the author of "Georgie Merton," etc. 18mo, cloth extra, 60 cents.

"The story of a young squire whose self-will leads him into many troubles, and how these, coupled with the well-timed counsels of his guardians, subdue in great measure his besetting sin."

SIR AYLMER'S HEIR. A Story for the Young. By EVELYN EVERETT-GREEN, author of "The Heiress of Wylmington," "Dulcie's Little Brother," "Temple's Trial," "Winning the Victory," etc. 12mo, cloth extra, 80 cents.

"The story of a boy who is both clever and good, and who develops as becomes the offspring of God-fearing people."—The Interior.

"It is brightly written, and the interest is kept up unflaggingly to the end. It is the sort of story the young feel sorry to lay down, and its tone is as healthful as its fascination is great."—New York Observer.

TUKE. A Story for Boys. By ISABEL HORNIBROOK. 18mo, cloth extra, 50 cents.

"This story shows how one, though not possessing any special talent, did much by means of persuasion and example to benefit others."

TIMOTHY TATTERS. A Story for the Young. By J. M. CALLWELL, author of "Dorothy Arden," etc. 18mo, cloth extra, 60 cents.

"An amusing story of life in Ireland, showing the great value of mutual forbearance as a means of dissipating national and social antipathies."

ENGLISH HYMNS, THEIR AUTHORS AND HISTORY,

By Rev. SAMUEL W. DUFFIELD, cites in alphabetical order the first lines of over 1500 Hymns. Under each is given a brief biographical sketch of the author, circumstances attending its composition, and incidents in connection with its use. Exhaustive indexes to authors, to first lines, and to topics are appended. 8vo, cloth, 675 pages, $3.00.

LATIN HYMN-WRITERS AND THEIR HYMNS.

By Rev. SAMUEL W. DUFFIELD, author of "English Hymns, Their Authors and History," "The Heavenly Land," "Warp and Woof" (a book of verse), etc. Edited and completed by Rev. R. E. THOMPSON, D.D., of the University of Pennsylvania. A companion volume to "English Hymns, Their Authors and History." 8vo, cloth, over 500 pages, $3.00.

The Independent, New York, says: "Between them Mr. Duffield and Dr. Thompson have accomplished a notable feat. . . . They have made a book which is at once of value to the scholar and readable by any one who is interested in the history of sacred literature; a book which fills a gap hitherto yawning, and lays claim to literary graces that were absent from all previous volumes upon hymnology."

A COMMENTARY ON THE BOOK OF PSALMS.

By Prof. FRANZ DELITZSCH, D.D., of Leipzig. Complete in three volumes. 1511 pages, 8vo, fine English cloth, each $2.00.

HOWARD CROSBY, D.D., writes: "The author is perhaps the first Hebrew scholar living, and withal a man of devout mind. He is always authority in Old Testament research. His commentary on the Psalms is of rare value to every student of the holy volume, and ought to have general circulation."

LYMAN ABBOTT, D.D., writes: "Professor Delitzsch is recognized among all Biblical scholars as one of the foremost of evangelical interpreters in Germany, and it will be of great advantage to the American pulpit to have his works brought within the reach of the American ministry."

CHURCH HISTORY.

By Prof. KURTZ. A work having a monopoly among German students. Translated and edited from the latest edition by Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON, M.A. Complete in three volumes. Volume I., 503 pages, 8vo, cloth, fine English binding, also Vol. II., 478 pages, now ready, each, $2.00. Vol. III., ready in a few days, $2.00.

PHILIP SCHAFF, D.D., says: "It is a shame that the English translation of Kurtz, which was made from the second edition, is still sold and used as a text-book, although the author long since not only doubled its size, but so entirely reconstructed it as to make the older editions useless and mischievous."

JUST ISSUED.

THE SEVEN CHURCHES OF ASIA; Or, Worldliness in the Church.

By Rev. HOWARD CROSBY, D.D. A new book of sermons on Rev. 2: 1-29; 3: 1-22. 16mo, cloth, 168 pages, $1.00.

LEE AND SHEPARD'S NEW BOOKS.

MARION GRAHAM. By META LANDER, well known to the literary world as "Margaret Woods Lawrence." This is a novel of great interest and power, the peer of "Robert Elsmere" and of "John Ward, Preacher." The author, by inheritance, education, and life-long association, is exceptionally well prepared, both for theological criticism and for unfolding the beauty and power of Christian virtues and graces; and with rare ability and intensity of feeling she makes attractive Christian love and self-sacrifice in the struggle with the affections and desire that centre in self. Not less successfully, also, does she exhibit the utter incongruity of some of the dogmas of Calvinism with the humane and Christian sentiments of our day. Cloth, $1.50. (Nearly ready.)

NORA'S RETURN (a Sequel to "The Doll's House," by Henrik Ibsen). By EDNAH D. CHENNY. The publication of a "sequel" to "The Doll's House," by Henrik Ibsen, written by so distinguished an American author, is a matter of great interest. In "Nora's Return" the heroine is given a future career carrying with it a moral lesson with reference to the ennobling and advancement of woman; and the American authorship of the volume, of itself, is sure to attract public attention to the underlying principles the work seeks to inculcate. Palatine style, 50 cents. (Nearly ready.)

THE GUEST-BOOK. (New edition.) By ANNIE F. COX. Illustrated. In which may be recorded the coming and the going of guests, with pages for autographs, incidents, and sketches pertaining to pleasant visits, social calls, and other gatherings.

BABY'S KINGDOM. By ANNIE F. COX. Illustrated. Wherein may be chronicled as memories for grown-up days the mother's story of the events, happenings, and incidents attending the progress of the baby. Entirely new edition, in black and white, with many new designs.

A PRIMER OF DARWINISM AND ORGANIC EVOLUTION. By J. Y. BERGEN and FANNY D. BERGEN. Being a new and revised edition of the Development Theory. Illustrated. 12mo.

HEROES AND MARTYRS OF INVENTION. By GEORGE MAKEPEACE TOWLE, author of "Heroes of History," "Young People's History of England."

STORIES OF THE CIVIL WAR. (Adapted for Supplementary Reading.) By ALBERT F. BLAISDELL, A.M., uniform with Lee and Shepard's "Stories of American History," "Noble Deeds of Our Forefathers," "Boston Tea-Party," etc.

SPRING ISSUES.

Christie's Next Things. By Minnie E. Kenney. 12mo, 263 pp., $1.00.

A bright and cheery book for young ladies, recounting the efforts and rewards of a circle of girls who took for their motto "Doe the nexte thynges."

Stephen Vane's Trust. By Adelaide L. Rouse. 12mo, 393 pp., $1.50.

A capital story for young people, by a new writer. It is the experience of a Southern orphan girl, entrusted to her father's college friend in New England. It runs through the late war, and is not only instructive, but as interesting as a romance.

A Missionary Twig. By Emma L. Burnett. 12mo, 199 pp., 90 cents.

A pleasant story of a mission band of young girls, their ardor in the work, contagious and increasing even during their summer outing. An attractive book.

American Heroes in Mission Fields. 12mo, 345 pp. In press.

Showing something of what American Christians have done to spread the Gospel in foreign lands. The life and character of these heroes of the faith are finely portrayed.

Studies in Luke's Gospel. By Rev. C. S. Robinson, D.D., LL.D. 12mo, 314 pp., cloth, $1.25; stout paper, with cloth back, 50 cents.

Bright, interesting, and helpful. For International Lessons from January to July, 1890.

Studies in Luke's Gospel. Second Series. Same author. 12mo, 321 pp., cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

For International Lessons from July to December, 1890. This volume on the second half of Luke's Gospel, like the first, will be found a welcome help to many Sunday-school teachers, and full of suggestions to all readers.

Bible Text-Book. Spanish. Large 12mo, 246 pp., $1.00.

An invaluable aid in Bible study, prized in its English form as more useful than many a large tome, and still more needed in Spanish from the lack of Bible Helps in that language.

Soldier Life in the Army of Northern Virginia,

C. S. A.

By CARLTON McCARTHY,

Private 2d Co. Richmond Howitzers.

Illustrated by W. L. SHEPPARD, Lieut. Richmond Howitzers.

CONTENTS.—CHAP. I. A Voice from the Ranks. CHAP. II. The Outfit Modified. CHAP. III. Romantic Ideas Dissipated. CHAP. IV. On the March. CHAP. V. Cooking and Eating. CHAP. VI. Comforts, Conveniences, and Consolation. CHAP. VII. Fun and Fury on the Field of Battle. CHAP. VIII. Improvised Infantry. CHAP. IX. "Brave Survivors" Homeward Bound. CHAP. X. Soldiers Transformed. CHAP. XI. Camp-Fires of the Boys in Gray. CHAP. XII. The Battle-Flag.

12mo, 250 pages, on handsome paper, printed and bound in the best manner, with 12 full-page and 18 smaller illustrations, including Confederate battle-flag in colors and gold.

Mr. Sheppard, who illustrates the book, now ranks as one of the first illustrators in this country, and, having served in the Confederate Army, is thoroughly competent to make faithful and characteristic sketches of Confederate soldier life.

Cloth, stamped in gold and colors, $1.50.

"The descriptions of the march, the bivouac, the battle, the customs of the service, the trials, pleasures, oddities, and routine of a military career as it looks to the men in the ranks, are fresh and vivid, and the narrative passages are full of spirit. Notwithstanding that so much has been written about the war, Private McCarthy seems to have given us something new."—New York Daily Tribune, Nov. 12.

"In fact, we wouldn't be surprised if it should prove to be as popular as has any book treating of the war or its incidents. North and South the private soldiers will read it with delight, and the officers will enjoy it, too."—Richmond Daily Dispatch, leading paper in Virginia.

MYTHS AND FOLK-LORE OF IRELAND.

By JEREMIAH CURTIN. With an etched frontispiece. 12mo, cloth, gilt top. $2.00.

It is believed that this volume is the most valuable contribution which has ever been made to Irish folk-lore. The myth tales it includes were collected personally by the author during 1887 in the west of Ireland, in Kerry, Galway, and Donegal, and taken down from the mouths of men who, with one or two exceptions, spoke only Gaelic, or but little English, and that imperfectly.

To this is due the fact that the stories are so well preserved, and not blurred and rendered indistinct, as is the case in places where the ancient Gaelic language, in which they were originally told, has perished.

THE WAY OUT OF AGNOSTICISM ;

OR, THE PHILOSOPHY OF FREE RELIGION. By FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. Ph.D., late Instructor in Philosophy in Harvard University. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR.

SCIENTIFIC THEISM.

Third edition. 12mo, cloth, $2.00.

FIFTH AND FINAL VOLUME OF PALFREY'S HISTORY OF NEW ENGLAND.

By JOHN GORHAM PALFREY. Vol. V. (Being the History of New England from the Revolution of the Seventeenth Century to the Revolution of the Eighteenth Century.) 8vo, cloth, $4.00 ; the complete set, 5 vols., 8vo, cloth, $18.00 ; half calf extra, gilt top, $30.00.

This volume completes the late Mr. Palfrey's "History of New England," bringing the narrative down to the third day of July, 1775, according to the author's original plan. A full index to the whole work has been appended.

FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS,

AND OTHER STORIES OF NEW ENGLAND LIFE. By HEMAN WHITE CHAPLIN. Second edition. 12mo, cloth, $1.00 ; paper, 50 cents.

The stories embraced in this volume—"Five Hundred Dollars," "The Village Convict," "Eli," "Saint Patrick," "By the Sea," "In Madeira Place," and "The New Minister's Great Opportunity"—have obtained considerable fame, and delighted and amused many readers. Colonel T. W. Higginson pronounces the collection "the best volume of New England stories ever written." Their popularity has seemed to warrant their publication in a shape which would insure the largest circulation, and in the new edition the book therefore appears for the first time in pamphlet form as well as in cloth.

BIRD SONGS ABOUT WORCESTER.

By HARRY LEVERETT NELSON, A.M. 16mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.00, net.

Contents: LETTERS I.-III., April Birds ; IV. AND V., May Birds ; VI., June Birds ; VII., Midsummer Songsters ; VIII., Bird Nomenclature ; Some English and American Birds ; IX., The Birds of Princeton ; X., Off Cape Cod. Whaling in Massachusetts Bay.

"Mr. Nelson is a genuine disciple of Gilbert White, of Selborne. . . . It fills one with the deepest regret that this exquisite lover of our birds should not have been spared to tell us more about them."—Boston Herald.

NEARLY READY.

THE INFLUENCE OF SEA POWER UPON HISTORY.

By Capt. A. T. MAHAN, U. S. Navy. With 25 charts, illustrative of great naval battles. 8vo, cloth, $4.00.

The object of this work is an examination of the general history of Europe and America, with special reference to the effect of sea power upon the course of that history. The period embraced is from 1660, "when the sailing ship era, with its distinctive features, had fairly begun, to the end of the American Revolution. The use of technical language has been avoided in order to bring the work within the comprehension of the unprofessional reader.

WITH FIRE AND SWORD.

AN HISTORICAL NOVEL OF POLAND AND RUSSIA. By HENRYK SIENKIEWICZ. Translated from the original Polish work by Jeremiah Curtin. 780 pages, 12mo.

"The first of Polish novelists, past or present, and second to none now living in England, France, or Germany. . . . He has Dumas' facility for conceiving and carrying out a complicated historical romance; he has much of Bret Harte's dry humor and laconic pathos, and a good deal of Turgénieff's melancholy suggestiveness, with some of his delicacy of touch."—Blackwood's Magazine.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE FOREST AND STREAM PUB. CO. have in press a new and handsomely illustrated work on "Trout and Salmon Fishing," by one of New England's best-known anglers; also a new edition of Grinnell's "Pawnee Hero Stories and Folk-Tales."

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish shortly William O'Brien's novel, "When We Were Boys." The book will contain a fac-simile of a letter of Mr. O'Brien's declaring that the Longmans' edition is the only one from which he will receive any benefit.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish this week "Studies in Hegel's Philosophy of Religion," with an appendix on "Christian Unity in America," by Dr. J. M. Sterrett; "The Spiritual Sense of Dante's 'Divina Commedia,'" by W. T. Harris, LL.D.;

and "The Craze of Christian Engelhart," by G. F. Darrell, a new novel in their Town and Country Library.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co have in press "The Salt-master of Lüneburg" (Der Sulfmeister), by Julius Wolff. The story gives a vivid picture of life in the fifteenth century in the Hanseatic stronghold of Lüneburg, which owed its importance from earliest times to the gypsum and lime quarries of the Kalkberg, near which the town lies, and the rich productive salt-spring at its base. They have also under way "La Hermana San Sulpicio," by A. P. Valdés, translated by N. H. Dole.

THE ALBANY BOOK CO., 36 State St., Albany, N. Y., will publish April 10 in their Hudson River Series William Drysdale's new novel, "The Princess of Montserrat," a volume of West Indian adventures. The author is probably as well acquainted with the West Indies as any living American, having spent the greater part of the last ten years there in the service of the New York Times. His letters in that newspaper have attracted wide attention. Mr. Drysdale is also known as the author of "In Sunny Lands," and as the compiler of Henry Ward Beecher's "Proverbs from Plymouth Pulpit."

PORTER & COATES have just published "Life and Works of the Earl of Beaconsfield," by Judge F. Carroll Brewster. This biography has been prepared after consultation of many authors. Every work of Disraeli has been sketched so as to afford to one who has not studied the novels a complete and satisfactory condensation of plots, characters, and noteworthy passages, whilst to the student of Lord Beaconsfield's works this volume will present interesting keys and useful résumés. They have also just ready, by the same author, "Molière in Outline," being a translation of all important parts of Molière's works, with introductions and notes, historical and critical, abridged from Van Laun and others, to which are added the arguments of the Plays, etc. Both books are handsomely printed and bound.

GINN & Co. will publish at once Sidney's "Defence of Poesy," edited by Prof. Albert S. Cook. This volume will furnish an admirable introduction to a general course in poetry, or to the poetry of the Elizabethan age in particular. As one of the best specimens of the earlier Elizabethan prose, it will be useful to the student of English prose in its historical development; and as the first annotated edition of the "Defence of Poesy," in a critical text formed by the collation of the two earliest copies, it will be indispensable to libraries, public and private. They will publish next month "From Colony to Commonwealth," stories of Revolutionary days in Boston, by Nina Moore Tiffany. The book will be second in the series of which "Pilgrims and Puritans" is the first. These little volumes are intended as an introduction to the study of United States history in schools or at home.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES S. PLUMMER will celebrate their silver wedding at their home in Newark, N. J., on April 5. May the happy couple live to celebrate their golden wedding and beyond. Really, to look at our friend Plummer one wouldn't get the idea that he is getting along in years.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; in the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Balzac, Honoré de. Sons of the soil; tr. by Katharine Prescott Wormeley. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1890. c. tr. 8+419 p. D. hf. rus., $1.50.

The title in French of this story is Les Paysans. It is a story of the land question in France, and appeals to that sense of the inequality of conditions as illustrated by the tenure of this sort of property, which is excited by writers of the same class of subjects in this country to-day. The motto of the first chapter aptly suggests the trend of this powerful story. "Whoso land hath, contention hath."

Cable, G. W. The negro question. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1890. c. 6+173 p. D. cl., 75 c.

These papers constitute a continuous development of a single subject. The opening paper, "The negro question," is a reply to a speech of the late Henry W. Grady. The main topic is further considered under the following heads: National aid to Southern schools; What shall the negro do? A simpler Southern question; What makes the color line? The Southern struggle for pure government.

Callwell, F. M. Timothy Tatters: a story for the young. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1890. 6-192 p. 2 il. D. cl., 60 c.

A family of Irish children, who are about to be afflicted with a step-father, determine to get rid of him if possible. Their mother, Mrs. Moore, is a wealthy, cultured woman. Captain Hammond, her husband in perspective, is an Englishman of some position. Before the wedding, he pays a visit to Ireland, and the children put in operation their scheme of frightening him from the country by writing him letters as if coming from the Land Leaguers, etc.

Calvo, Joaquin Bernardo. The Republic of Costa Rica; from the Spanish, ed. by L. de T., with introd., and additions. N. Y. and Chic., Rand. McNally & Co., 1890. c. '89. 3-292 p. por., il. and maps, D. cl., $2.

A full account of everything relating to this Central American republic. Statistics and details are given of its agriculture, army, banking houses, exports, products, importations, minerals, mining interests, national debt; an account of its birds, flowers, fruits, its history from the time of the Spanish rule; its constitution, presidents, generals, etc. It is also shown how to go to Costa Rica, what to wear there, how to live and where, etc.

Dana, Ja. D. Characteristics of volcanoes; with contributions of facts and principles from the Hawaiian Islands. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1890. c. 14+399 p. il. and map, O. cl., $5.

The purpose of the work is the illustration of volcanic action and principles by special reference to the facts supplied by the open craters of Hawaii, and by comparing and contrasting these with the corresponding features and phenomena of Vesuvius. It begins with an elementary treatise on volcanoes and volcanic action. After these general explanations, the workings of the fires in the two active craters of Hawaii are successively set forth by means of descriptions and illustrations. Pt. 3 contains an account of the topography of the Pacific basin, with a map of deep-sea Pacific and Atlantic soundings, and a discussion of the influence upon the depth of the oceans of volcanic actions. Pt. 4 treats of denudation, or valley-making, on volcanic islands.

*Foster, Roger. A treatise on pleading and practice in equity in the courts of the United States; with chapters on jurisdiction of the federal courts, practice at common law, removal of causes from state to federal courts, and writs of error and appeals, with special reference to patent causes and the foreclosure of railway mortgages. Bost., The Boston Book Co., 1890. c. 80+822 p. O. shp., net, $6.

G., S. Dickie Winton; or, between gate and front door: a story for the young. N. Y., T. Nelson & Sons, 1890. 6-144 p. il. D. cl., 60 c. Tells of a little boy, who, after a happy day's holiday at school, runs away to London to see his mother.

Godwin, H. C. Railroad engineers' field-book and explorers' guide: especially adapted to the use of railroad engineers on location and construction, and to the needs of the explorer in making exploratory surveys. N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1890. c. 13+358 p. il. S. mor. flaps, $2.50.

"I am publishing the following notes because I think they may possibly supply the want of a field-book—a want which I have often felt myself, and have often heard expressed—which, while avoiding as much as possible the intricacies of mathematics, would be of more general application than any of the books of this class which I have as yet come across."—Author's Preface.

Gooch, Fani Pusey. Miss Mordeck's father. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1890.] c. 2+288 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The story of a man who leads a dual existence, being in one existence a man of business, in the other a dashing and reckless gambler. He has two families in different parts of the city; to one he is known as Thomas A. Mordeck, and to the other as Captain Dunbar. He is represented as passing unconsciously from one condition to another, and remembering nothing of any other life but the one he is in. A surgical operation upon his skull is proposed to bring him entirely to himself, his two wives and two daughters being thus brought together.

Granny: a village story, by the author of "Great Englishmen." N. Y., T. Nelson & Sons, 1890. 6-118 p. il. D. cl., 50 c.

Besides "Granny Stalker," around whom the story centres, there is a little boy Benny, who goes out to service in London and is accused unjustly of theft. Many good lessons are taught for young people.

Green, Evelyn Everett. Sir Aylmer's heir: a story for the young. N. Y., T. Nelson & Sons, 1890. 6-215 p. il. D. cl., 80 c.

For boys. The hero is the son of an English officer, who is killed in Egypt; the little boy goes to live with his uncle, upon whose character he has somewhat of the same softening effect as "little Lord Fauntleroy"; a large intelligent dog that is prominent in the story heightens its resemblance to Mrs. Burnett's tale.

*Hicks, W. M. Elementary dynamics of particles and solids. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1890. 6+397 p. 12°, cl. $1.60.

Hornbrook, Isabel. Tuke: a story for boys. N. Y., T. Nelson & Sons, 1890. 7-116 p. il. S. cl., 50 c.

The lessons which this little story teach are to make the best of the talents given us, and to forget our own physical defects in work for others.

*Horsford, Eben Norton. The problem of the Northmen: a letter to Judge Daly, the president of the American Geographical Society. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890. 23 p. map and il. 4°, pap., 4°, net, $1.
